Today

There Is Much News.
There Were Fairies.
Spain's Sudden Change.
Rejoice and Be Glad.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MUCH NEWS today. A person no less important than the Rev. Canon J. A. MacCulloch says belief in fairies has a real foundation. In glacial times there lived in Britain a pygmy race, now disappeared, so small they could have been called fairies.

OTHERS WILL be more interested in news from Stockholm that Greta Garbo is in bed with a bad cold, on her Swedish island.

Those with a "world view" of things will be interested in Germany's argument with Paris on the German demand for the right to build up a big army.

Germany says she will build it anyhow, consent or no consent. France is asking our opinion about it. We ought not to have an opinion, it is not our business.

RUDY VALLEE'S wife decides not to divorce her husband after all and hurries away from Reno as fast as trains, airplanes and taxicabs can take her, saying:

"All a mistake, I love my husband."

The favorite quotation of Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, distinguished editor and publisher of Washington, D. C., fits this occasion.

Souvent femme varie, mal habile, qui s'y fie.

SPAIN HAS abolished the death penalty, the maximum term of imprisonment twenty years, no life imprisonment. Also, new in Spain, unfaithful husbands and wives are to be punished equally, no favors for the husband.

This ending of the death penalty is all the more striking because Spain, through the centuries, has specialized in the infliction of death, with thousands burned and tortured for religious disbelief, death inflicted on slight provocation.

OLD-FASHIONED people will say:

"You can't have any justice if you do away with the death penalty."

In France after the revolution judges said:

"Justice will be a farce if you don't allow us to torture witnesses to make them tell the truth even when they are not accused of any crime."

IF YOU SPECULATE in stocks rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for in August the total value of listed stocks increased ON PAPER by more than seven thousand million dollars.

However, that didn't put the eleven millions idle back to work. An increase of seven thousand million dollars in stock values is pleasant. Not so pleasant is the fact that idleness of eleven million men costs this country more than THIRTY-SIX THOUSAND MILLIONS a year in lost wages. The rise in stocks reminds you of the pretty music that Nero is supposed to have played while Rome burned.

STRANGE SCENE in Germany, Col. Theodore Duesterberg, candidate for the German presidency and second leader of the monarchist Stahlhelm, or Steel Helmet Society of Germany, a man who distinguished himself in the war, resigns his important position, telling his associates:

"I actually originated from Jews, but I have only now learned the facts myself."

His father was named Abraham Selig. Newspapers had attacked him because of his Jewish ancestry.

THE STEEL HELMET gentlemen may learn, as the Kaiser did after 1914, that it is foolish to ignore wise Jewish co-operation and advice if you can get them. Any one of a thousand Jews could have told the Kaiser that Italy would not stick to Germany and Austria, and that England WOULD go to the assistance of France.

Germany's diplomatic service excluded Jews, and Germans paid the price of the exclusion.

SO-CALLED "Reds," who are in reality men out of work, miserable and dissatisfied, demanded a talk with Joseph V. McKee, who for the time is Mayor of New York. To their surprise the new Mayor said:

"Come down on Saturday and we can talk all you like."

That is a queer idea, but it may be a good idea in a country which usually believes in sitting on the safety valve. England has always let people talk to their hearts' content in Hyde Park and elsewhere, on the theory that if you let them TALK they won't ACT.

FAR OFF in London across the bounding sea, Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, says his blood "boils at the raw deal that Chicago is getting in European papers, particularly British."

Nevertheless, he invites everybody to Chicago for the fair next spring, solemnly promising:

"We shall have beer, legal, plenty and well made."

There is no doubt that Chicago will have beer for the exposition, legal or not. To Chicago, as elsewhere, Ring Lardner's remark, "Prohibition is better than no beer or whisky," applies.

DR. BENJAMIN GOLDBERG tells the American Congress of Physical Therapy that our depression has improved the health of the people, but has cut down the birthrate

Insurance companies say "the masses" are learning more about birth control and practicing it. Health is improved, perhaps, by the fact that there is less bootleg whisky drinking, and less of the overeating that breeds disease, when times are bad.

Butler to Go On Stump to Aid Roosevelt

SMEDLEY D. BUTLER

Fiery General Will Help Democrat In Campaign

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired marine commandant, who was defeated by Senator James J. Davis in the last senatorial primary, has volunteered his services in behalf of the Democratic national ticket, according to an announcement today by S. Davis Wilson, chairman of the Roosevelt Independent State Committee.

Butler, who ran against Davis as a "dry" created a sensation recently by declaring the fight to retain the Eighteenth Amendment in the constitution is a lost cause.

Wilson said that in addition to stumping Pennsylvania for Roosevelt, Butler probably would visit other states.

Uninjured in Crash, Killed by Live Wire

CHEBOYGAN, Mich., Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Escaping injury today when the car in which she was riding struck an electric light pole, Miss Marion Meyers, 22, Ashland, O., heiress, stepped from the wreckage onto a high tension wire and was electrocuted.

The driver of the car, Emory Frambach, 25, of Paterson, N. J., was booked on drunken driving charges and later released pending investigation. Frambach is well-known socially in Detroit and Toledo.

Remaining Dates To Qualify for November Polls

Residents of Allegheny County who have been asssessed have two more chances after today to qualify to vote at the November election.

TODAY.

First registration day in Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne. Pittsburgh polls are open from 8 until 11 o'clock this morning and from 5 until 11 o'clock tonight, eastern daylight savings time. In the three other cities polls are open from 8 to 10 a. m., from noon to 3 p. m. and from 5 to 11 p. m.

September 20—Second registration day in cities.

October 8—Third and last registration day. This is also the last day to pay poll taxes. Only those regularly assessed can pay taxes.

Yesterday was the last day to be assessed.

RELATIVES LOSE WILL CONTEST

Lawyer Gets Bequest; Allegheny General Hospital Aided

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—A bequest by Mrs. George Fales Baker, widow of a wealthy financier, of the life income of her $3,000,000 estate to Benjamin Williamson Keen, retired Newark (N. J.) attorney, was upheld today by the Register of Wills after 18 months of litigation.

Six cousins of Mrs. Baker, whose husband was the former president of the Philadelphia Academy of Music, attacked the will on the grounds that the widow was of unsound mind and under the "undue influence" of Keen, who, they said, was 18 years younger than she. Mrs. Baker died in March, 1931, at the age of 73.

PROVISIONS FOR CHARITY

The cousins who attacked the will are Hay Walker, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth W. Pontefract, of Sewickley, Pa.; John Walker, William Walker, Luella K. Haley and Katherine C. Ramsey, of this city.

Upon Keen's death, the will provides that the principal of the estate is to be divided into four parts for charitable purposes. One-fourth is to go to the Allegheny General Hospital, Pittsburgh, in memory of Mr. Baker's parents, William and Eliza Walker, while another fourth is to go to the Trudeaux Sanatorium at Saranac Lake, N. Y., in memory of Mrs. Baker's sister, Mrs. Margaret Watson, wife of the late David T. Watson, a Pittsburgh attorney.

No mention of the six cousins was made in the will.

PROMINENT IN SOCIETY

Elderly Mrs. Pontefract and Mr. Walker both are members of Sewickley's exclusive society circle. Mrs. Pontefract has been active lately in the movement to repeal prohibition. Mr. Walker said today that no decision has been made as to whether the fight to break the will would be continued.

REGISTRATION BEGINS HERE

Today is the first day on which assessed voters of second and third class cities, including Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton may register for the November election. Registrars will sit from 8 to 11 a. m. and from 5 to 11 p. m., daylight saving time.

The second registration day in second and third class cities will be September 20, while the third and last day will be October 8, which is also the last day to pay taxes to qualify to vote.

Because of the last-minute rush yesterday of persons desirous of being assessed for payment of taxes, offices of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes remained open several hours after the regular closing time.

The rush this year was smaller than that during the presidential race four years ago, clerks said. More than two thousand were assessed yesterday, tax board officials said.

Vickerman Shows Some Improvement

John W. Vickerman, director of the County Department of Elections, today was reported to have passed a very favorable night in his battle against pneumonia and a blood stream infection. Physicians last night held out hope of his recovery and his condition this morning showed a slight improvement.

King Albert Scales High Alpine Peak

TRENT, Italy, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—King Albert, of the Belgians, has scaled Crozzon Di Brenta, 9,400 feet high, one of the hardest climbs in the Dolomitic Alps, it was learned here today.

It was reported he made the ascent up the almost perpendicular rocky pinnacle after 10 hours of perilous struggle.

Gale Drives Ship With 241 Aboard to Sea

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 8.—(INS.)—The excursion steamship, Steel Pier, with 241 passengers aboard, was driven back to sea today by a 35-mile-an-hour gale when it attempted to dock here after returning from a trip to New York and up the Hudson River.

Abandoning efforts to put in here at the Steel Pier, whose management also operates the excursion ship, the 250-foot ship continued south along the coast to Delaware Bay, seeking a point where the passengers could be put ashore safely.

The ship neared Cape May, but, because of its size, was unable to dock at the largest pier.

Latest advices from the Coast Guard are that the ship may attempt to dock at Lewes, Del., or come up the Delaware River to Pennsgrove, N. J., early this afternoon.

The Steel Pier left here early yesterday on the excursion. It was due to dock on its return at 4 a. m. today. When the ship neared here about that time the high seas made docking impossible.

Hurricane Sweeping Toward New England

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Out of the southeast across the Atlantic, a gale of hurricane force was sweeping toward Boston and New England today. The "advance breath" of the storm was felt when a plate glass window was blown out of a Boston office building and the steamer Dorothy Bradford was forced to turn back on its way to Provincetown.

A severe tropical storm was blamed for the disturbance. The mercury here kept dropping steadily, reaching a minimum this morning of 54 degrees.

Off Highland Light today the wind had reached a velocity of 40 miles an hour and small fishing vessels were scurrying to port.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Moderating winds and seas today relieved the S. S. Munroyal, Munson Steamship Line freighter, of "immediate danger," its captain radioed to Coast Guard headquarters here in declining proferred assistance of Coast Guard cutters.

Buffeted by gale winds and heavy seas the Munroyal yesterday was reported drifting helplessly after losing its propellor.

Czechs Open Door To Admit Trotzky

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The Czechoslovakian government has granted permission to Leon Trotsky, exiled Soviet Russian leader, to come here for his health on condition he refrains from political activity during his stay. Trotzky, who now lives near Istanbul, has been assured by the Turkish government that he may return there after his stay in Czechoslovakia is ended.

Buyers Battle Over Kreuger Kitchenware

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Crowds of bargain and souvenir hunters fought today over the kitchen pots and pans of Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish "match king," who committed suicide in Paris last spring.

The crowds besieged the Kreuger flat, where a sale of his possessions was under way. Police were called out to preserve order.

'BABE' ILL FROM 'HOT DOGS'

Ruth Sees Overeating As Appendicitis, Teammate Says

International News Service.

DETROIT, Sept. 8.—Babe Ruth is not likely to be kept out of the world series, Manager Joe McCarthy, of the New York Yankees, said today, intimating that he did not believe the illness which sent the home run king to New York was serious.

Ruth left his team last night, after telephoning McCarthy at Buffalo that he was ill, and believed he had appendicitis. McCarthy gave him permission to go to New York for a medical examination. McCarthy, upon arriving here today, said:

"Of course, I haven't seen Ruth, but I know his temperament. I'm hoping he's suffering only from fatigue and nervousness.

STRAIN ON NERVES

"I told him when he telephoned me last night to go to the best surgeon in Detroit. But the Babe said he'd rather go to New York for an examination. So I told him to go ahead.

"The Babe has been playing great baseball all year and it is quite a strain on his nerves. I thought it best to let him go to New York and lose him in the Detroit games than make him stay and have him all upset for the world series."

Teammates were not inclined to view the big hitter's ailment as grave. One said:

"Whenever the Babe eats too many hot dogs he thinks he's got appendicitis. He'll be okay."

Ex-Valet Attaches Jack Dempsey's Pay

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—An attachment to garnishee the weges of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion now appearing at a local theater, was issued in Municipal Court today. Action was taken in behalf of Harry Hayes, who said he was hired by Dempsey in 1929 to act as valet, barber and chauffeur at 75 cents an hour. He alleged the fighter owes him $369.

Twin Girls Named For Mrs. Caraway

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway—herself the mother of three sons—has just been notified by another Arkansas mother that her twin girls have been named in honor of the country's first elected woman senator.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Clark, of Laneburg, Ark., have named their daughters Hattie Caraway and Mattie Caraway Clark.

Five Bandits Bind, Rob Woman of $1,100

In the kitchen of her home, Mrs. Fannie Wise, 48, today was beaten unconscious, tied, gagged and robbed of $1,100 by five armed thugs.

Mrs. Wise had the money in her apron when she went to the front door of the Wise clothing store at 2941 Penn avenue at 6 a. m. to answer their knock. This was payday for Pennsylvania Railroad employes and many cashed their checks at the Wise store.

A few minutes before, her husband, Paul Wise, 55, had stepped out of the house to get a cup of coffee at a nearby restaurant.

The hoodlums forced Mrs. Wise to her kitchen in the rear of the store. They tied her wrists behind her. When she screamed they shoved a handkerchief gag down her throat. She collapsed to the floor when one hit her over the head with a milk bottle.

The robbery required no more than three minutes. Mrs. Wise said she saw only one gun.

When Molly Wise, 19, came down to the kitchen she found her mother unconscious on the floor.

Suffering from lacerations and shock, Mrs. Wise was taken to West Penn Hospital.

APPEARANCE AT INQUEST BALKED

Probers Hope to Find Secret Leading to Suicide of Bern

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 8.—A fresh collapse on the part of Jean Harlow today halted plans to have her appear as a witness at an inquest into the death of her husband, Paul Bern, who shot himself to death Sunday night.

Announcement of her breakdown came from the home of her mother, Mrs. Marino Bello, where it was stated the new turn in her condition had caused friends and relatives to abandon plans to allow her to appear at the inquest to testify.

Eager to get a glimpse of the film "Cleopatra," whose reel life emotions have so often stirred them, hundreds of persons attempted to jam their way into the undertaking parlors where the inquest was ordered.

MAY REVEAL SECRET

The secret that lay behind the suicide of Bern may be disclosed to the coroner's jury.

After an airplane ride across the country, Henry Bern, brother of the dead executive, held a midnight conference with Miss Harlow and declared:

"I want no secrecy veiling the matter of my brother's death."

At the same time it was learned that Dr. Edward B. Jones, now in Honolulu, specialist and personal physician to Paul Bern, had held a lengthy radio telephone conversation with Louis B. Mayer, film executive.

WORRIED OVER CONDITION

Bern learned from friends that Paul Bern's fears and worries over his physical condition, and the fixed belief it would bar a happy marriage with the beautiful actress, led him to kill himself as "the only way out."

From the office of Coroner Frank Nance came information that an autopsy by Dr. Frank Weob, county surgeon, disclosed a physical condition which further verified statements of Bern's physicians that he had sought advice and help from them in his

OFFER BEAVER 5-CENT BUS

Bus service which costs 25 cents in Pittsburgh can be provided by the same owners in the Beaver Valley for from 5 to 7½ cents, according to testimony before the Public Service Commission today.

S. H. Baum, general superintendent of the Beaver Valley Traction Company and of the Beaver Valley Motor Coach Company, subsidiaries of the Pitsburgh Railways Company, testified as to the proposed fare if the application to discontinue street car service between Rochester and Vanport is granted.

Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president and general manager of the Pittsburgh traction and motor coach companies, as well as the Beaver subsidiaries, testified the Beaver traction line was insolvent, that it could not pay for $183,700 in needed trackage and repairs and that the saving by not making these would enable the buses to run for the low fare—five cents between Rochester and Beaver, and 7½ cents to Vanport, virtually the same distance as from the East End to downtown, six miles, which costs 25 cents.

The City of Beaver and Vanport Township are opposing abandonment of the traction line, hinting that a boost in bus fares would follow institution of that service.

Vet Brings Family Back From France

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Bernhard Ragner, of McKeesport, Pa., a World War veteran who returned to France to marry a French girl and has lived abroad for 10 years, arrived on the liner Champlain with his family yesterday to "see what Main street looks like."

With him were his wife and their daughters, Helene, 4, and Jacqueline, 8. They plan to visit McKeesport in their tour of the country.

'PEP' MEETING BRINGS RAIDS

Slot machines and numbers paraphernalia were reported seized in three raids by the county detectives in the city this afternoon following a "pep" meeting of the sleuths to speed the vice crusade urged by Judge Frank P. Patterson.

From a place in Frankstown avenue, said by the detectives to be a "numbers" station, slot machines, an adding machine and "number" books were reported seized. Pericles Katzfior was arrested and held for court in $2,500 bail by Alderman Thomas

Westmoreland Girl Dies of Paralysis

Gertrude E. Wellens, 15, of Murrysville, Westmoreland County, died from infantile paralysis today in the Children's Hospital. Dr. Philip E. Marks, superintendent of the Bureau of Infectious Diseases, said Pittsburgh had been remarkably free from infantile paralysis this year. It has been unusually prevalent in Philadelphia and New York.

Bern Will of 1920 Left Estate to 'Wife'

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—A will that has been tucked away for many years revealed today that in 1920 Paul Bern, now dead by his own hand, left most of his wealth to "My wife Dorothy Millette."

Existence of this document of the past added a new surprise to the identification of Dorothy Millette, referred to heretofore as simply an "old sweetheart" of the film executive.

She was a beautiful blonde and she was known to all of Bern's intimates. And so when he went one day to the office of his friend and lawyer, Henry Uttal, here, and said he wanted his will drawn up, Uttal was not surprised that "Mrs. Bern" was the beneficiary.

Uttal admitted today that the will still is on file in his office, that it was signed August 30, 1920, and that it "designated" Bern's wife. But from another source, it was learned that the will adequately provided for Dorothy Millette, in fact, left practically everything to her.

Uttal drecalled Dorothy Millette well. She was a blonde, he said, but not the platinum blonde type of Jean Harlow, Bern's widow. The lawyer recalled:

"They came to my house often, and I knew her as Paul5s wife. All his other friends knew her as his wife also. There never was any suspicion in my mind that they might not be married.

"She was a very pretty woman, very intelligent."

Uttal received a letter from Bern a week after the latter's marriage to Jean Harlow. It told of his happiness, related that he he found the perfect wife. Uttal said:

"I had no idea of what had become of his first wife, but in view of his marriage to Miss Harlow, I assumed that she was dead. Paul made no mention of her."

DRYS IN FINAL BATTLE OF THIRD PARTY MOVEMENT

LEADERS SPLIT ON CAMPAIGN FOR PRESIDENT

Vote for 'Coin' Harvey Urged as Protest In Rum Issue

By WILLIAM S. NEA
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—A final battle to commit the organized drys of the nation to a third party movement in the presidential campaign was opened here today as leaders gathered for two meetings which may chart the course of the drys in the fall campaign.

The leaders who demand that the dry organizations co-operate in a third party movement apparently were waging a hopeless fight because of their inability to obtain an outstanding national character to head the movement.

EXECUTIVES MEET

The executive committee of the Anti-Saloon League gathered for a two-day meeting with the Board of Strategy of the conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment scheduled to meet tomorrow night.

A complete statement of the attitude of the Anti-Saloon League in the political campaign will be made by the executive committee, Dr. A. J. Barton, of Wilmington, N. C., chairman, announced today.

Three outstanding developments marked the early stages of the conferences of the badly split dry leaders. They were:

1—An effort by third parties leaders to force a call of the board of the conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, 39 in all, failed because only a half dozen member societies would back the demand. Instead the smaller board of strategy will meet.

2—A proposal will be laid before the board of strategy by the Rev. Canon William Sheafe Chase, of the International Reform Federation, to co-operate with the Liberty party, headed by William H. (Coin) Harvey and the Prohibition party, in rolling up a protest vote.

3—The Anti-Saloon League committee, it was indicated, will approve the stand of Superintendent F. Scott McBride declaring neutrality in the presidential race and concentrating on the senatorial and congressional contests.

THIRD PARTY FIGHT

The Rev. Canon Chase, leading the third party fight among the organized drys, refused to follow Dr. Clarence True Wilson, who said that he would vote for Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president. Mr. Chase said:

"My idea is that we should co-operate with the Liberty party, which is 75 per cent dry, and the Prohibition party. We cannot support the Socialist party because it favors government sale of liquor."

The strategy board is expected to develop a battle between Dan Poling, head of the Allied Forces for Prohibition, and a supporter of President Hoover, and Dr. Clarence True Wilson and other opponents of the President.

REWARD POSTED IN SLAYER HUNT

LOGAN, W. Va., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The Logan County Court has authorized a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayers of Mrs. Mamie Thurman, wife of a Logan policeman, whose body was found in a lonely mountain ditch near here last June.

Prosecuting Attorney Lloyd P. Hager said the case was at a standstill unless further information could be obtained.

Two men are awaiting grand jury action on charges of slaying Mrs. Thurman. They are Harry Robertson, president of the Logan City Commission, and his Negro employe, Clarence Stephenson.

Conn. Democrats Adopt Repeal Plank

EASTERN POINT, Conn., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The Democratic state convention today adopted a platform calling for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, modification of the Volstead act, state aid for cities needing help in handling unemployment relief, and a state fund for aid of closed banks and depositors.

quest for a happy married life. The autopsy showed also that Bern was free from disease of any kind.

Dr. Jones was understood to have given Mayer information which may be presented to the coroner's jury today.

JEAN'S SECRET TALK

Mayer disclosed that Henry Bern and Miss Harlow had been closeted together for an hour alone at the home of her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Marino Bello, about midnight, discussing the secret reasons for Paul Bern's act.

Mayer said:

"Miss Harlow's condition is far worse than it was the day before yesterday. Henry Bern's resemblance to her dead husband caused her to break down and cry bitterly."

Henry Bern was met at the airport by his brother's secretary, Miss Irene Harrison. They went at once to the Bello home where studio officials waited, and the conference with Miss Harlow was started at 11 p. m., after which Bern was closeted alone with the platinum blonde widow for an hour.

They inspected various personal effects of Paul Bern.

DRAMATIC MEETING

Several physicians, including an associate of Dr. Jones, who knew Bern's secret in life and had tried to help him, were at the Bello home, and this secret was discussed with the brother under circumstances as dramatic as any ever presented by Paul Bern on the screen.

At 1 a. m. the Bello home was darkened and Miss Harlow was alone with her sorrow, advised by physicians to "try to get some sleep."

Meanwhile Coroner Nance had advanced plans for the inquest today. He sent Detective Joseph Whitehead to the Bello home to serve Miss Harlow with a subpena to appear. Silently she accepted the summons.

WIDOW EXCUSED

Nance said he would not insist upon her appearance as it would endanger her health, but the following were subpenaed to appear:

Henry Bern, Marino Bello, Irving Thalberg, studio executive called to Bern's Benedict Canyon home when the suicide first was discovered; John Carmichael, the Bern butler, who found Bern shot to death in a small dressing room of his home; Mrs. Winifred Carmichael, wife of the butler and cook at the Bern home; Clifton Davis, gardener; Blanche Williams, Miss Harlow's maid; M. E. Greenwood, studio executive, and Detective Whitehead, first officer to reach the scene.

In his radio telephone conversation from Honolulu, Dr. Jones was declared to have given Mayer in Hollywood "confidential information for the coroner's jury," and to have expressed belief that with this information in Mayer's hands, the inquest would be a mere formality and that all doubt concerning the motive for Bern's suicide would be cleared up.

Dr. Jones expressed willingness to appear before the coroner's jury upon his arrival here next week should the jury desire it and adjourn the inquest today.

COMING OUT OF DAZE

Bello last night said:

"Miss Harlow is still a seriously sick girl. She is just coming out of a daze and able to show a little interest in what is going on. She has asked what is being done with Paul's body, and things like that, but that is about all. We have tried to get her mind off the tragedy, but she keeps going back to it."

Hundreds of telegrams of sympathy for Miss Harlow have arrived at the Bello home, and friends, including many stage folk, have telephoned from all parts of the country.

Jetta Goudal, one of the many film players Bern had befriended, wrote Miss Harlow a lengthy personal letter.

Lawrence Stallings, the playwright, was another of Bern's friends who declared that Bern frequently had discussed suicide. He said:

"One day I saw Paul take a gun from his car and put it in his coat pocket. I asked what he carried it for, and he replied: 'I often think of suicide and when the right mood and right moment come I want to be all ready.'"

At the studio plans were made to proceed with work on a picture in which Miss Harlow has the principal role. The company has about 10 days' work on scenes in which the actress does not appear.

School Athlete Held By Coroner's Jury

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—A coroner's jury today recommended that John Bowersox, Punxsutawney High School athlete, be held for the grand jury in connection with the death of Paul Rankin, 11, of Albion, Tuesday night.

The boy was killed when struck by a car which, police say, was driven by Bowersox.

Relapse Suffered By Eva Tanguay

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Eva Tanguay, vaudeville dancer once known as the "I Don't Care" girl, suffered a relapse yesterday after improving from a heart condition which became critical several weeks ago.

She was given a second blood transfusion, which, physicians hoped, would restore her strength. Miss Tanguay is 54.

FIREMEN OPEN FIGHT TO WIN JOBS BACK

Clark and Smith Called As Commission Hears Ousted Men

Public Safety Director James M. Clark, Fire Chief Richard Smith and Dr. Daniel E. Sable, police and fire surgeon, and a number of ward leaders were under subpena today to appear before the Civil Service Commission, which will hear the demands for reinstatement of six ousted city firemen.

The subpenas were issued at the instance of Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, representing the firemen involved in a recent upheaval in the department in which 160 men were fired as being unfit for active service. Lindsay maintains scores of firemen still are on the force whose physical condition is far worse than that of many of the men dropped.

P. J. O'Malley, Republican chairman of the Second Ward, heads the list of ward chairmen summoned by Lindsay. Others include Sam Reno, of the Nineteenth Ward; Charles Martin, of the Tenth; Harry Feldman, of the Fifth, and John McGrath, of the Thirty-second.

The cases of three of the protesting firemen have been called for today. The remainder probably will be called tomorrow. John Heinz, president of the City Firemen's Protective Association; Delos G. Harvey and William Allen are those whose cases are listed today. The others pending are Clyde Moore, H. G. Meier and Henry S. Lejeune.

Originally there were 15 appeals of police, firemen and one building inspector involved in the wholesale dismissals.

FREED IN THEFT, BEGINS ANEW

MEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 8.—(INS.)—The dark shadow which a week ago shrouded James Steenbergh, 72, alias Frank Howard, and made him a lifer in state prison for stealing a pair of shoes, was dispelled today, and the sun shone again as he kissed his wife and daughter good-bye and started for work on his new job.

In his hand he carried a bag—the same one into which he tried to stuff a pair of shoes a week ago, an act which threatened to put him behind the bars for the rest of his life after he had "gone straight" for 18 years. Today it was filled with lunch, prepared by his wife.

Steenbergh was liberated by Gov. Joseph B. Ely and the executive council yesterday. The council refused to revoke Steenbergh's parole given him 18 years ago after he had served 17 years of a life sentence for armed robbery.

Unemployed and without money, Steenbergh stole the shoes in the hope of selling them to buy food for his family.

WAR ON LEGION CRITICS URGED

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Henry L. Stevens, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, today said he would recommend to the National Legion convention opening here Monday, action in courts, if necessary, against "unfair opponents and critics" of the organization.

The national commander said he also will recommend changing the constitution and by-laws to provide for "summary and disciplinary action" against "critics of the organization who have infiltrated themselves into places of leadership and office in the Legion."

Stevens said "full and free expression" on the bonus, the bonus army, prohibition and any other question "which may properly come before a national convention" will be permitted Legionnaires.

'PEP' MEETING BRINGS RAIDS

SUSPECT HELD

Harold Smith was held for court in $1,000 bail, after the detectives reported seizing slot machines in a confectionery in Carson street.

J. J. Spalder was also held when the officers testified they found slot machines in a confectionery in Spring street.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren addressed the detectives, all of whom had been ordered to report today, at the "pep" meeting.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Park said:

"Any raids made today will be on routine complaints filed with this office and not on the list furnished by Judge Patterson."

Action on the list submitted by the court is expected to be held up until after a half dozen constables, ordered to file amended reports, appear in court tomorrow.

M'KEESPORT RAID

One raid, resulting from the quarterly returns of constables, Tuesday, was made early today. County Detectives James Redlington and J. J. O'Brien raided the house of Mrs. Mary Ragalla, 1129 Market street, McKeesport.

They reported breaking down the door and seizing a quantity of home brew. Moonshine, they said, had been poured down a sink. Mrs. Ragalla was held for court charged with violating the Snyder act. Constable William Moran had reported the place in court on Tuesday.

Four raids were made by county detectives and city police yesterday.

It was revealed today that it has been costing Allegheny county more than $4,000 a year to stage the "Blind Men's Parade." There are 224 constables in the county, each drawing $2.50 per day and mileage for their service on each return day.

Jean 3 Years Older Than Fans Believe

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Although movie fans believe Jean Harlow to be 21 years old, she is actually 24, records of the Lake County Clerk disclosed today. When she was married here to Charles F. McGrew on September 21, 1927, she declared she was born March 30, 1908.

HITLER FORCES TO ALLY WITH BRUENING'S

Battle Lines Drawn For Convening of Reichstag

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—The battle lines between Adolf Hitler and the Von Papen government were definitely drawn today.

Two points stood out clearly as each side prepared for Monday's meeting of the Reichstag, the second of the newly-elected body and the one at which Chancellor Franz von Papen will present his government's program.

COALITION LIKELY

First, despite contrary reports, Hitler's National Socialists almost certainly will form a coalition with the Catholic Centrists of former Chancellor Bruening and thus present a majority rule of the Reichstag.

Second, this Reichstag almost certainly will be dissolved by the chancellor immediately after he has read his program, a step possible by the emergency decree signed by President Paul von Hindenburg and now carried in Von Papen's pocket, ready for use at any time.

Such a dissolution, however, will not dishearten the Nazis. Hitler, in a fiery speech at Munich last night, challenged Von Papen to a fight to the end. He said:

"We won't let you keep power, not if you dissolve the Reichstag 10 times."

He added:

FEARS NOTHING

"If von Papen believes the Nazis will stay neutral toward him he is badly mistaken. The National Socialist party will grow until the last German has awakened. If they blame us for entering a coalition with other parties we declare that we want to preserve the rights of the people with other parties if it is not possible otherwise.

"We are afraid of nothing.

"My great opponent (referring to President Paul von Hindenburg) is 85 years old and I am only 45. I am convinced nothing will happen to me because I believe destiny has assigned a task to me . . ."

CHIEFS STUDY FARM WAR

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—One lone group of farmers today attempted to forestall shipping of farm produce into Sioux City as midwestern governors or their representatives began to gather for a conference to work out an agricultural relief program.

These pickets maintained their stronghold on Highway 75, where yesterday they defied efforts of 100 deputy sheriffs to dislodge them, and turned back a train of 27 trucks.

Other farmers, however, turned their attention to organization of a parade tomorrow—the date of the Governor's conference—as a demonstration against low farm prices. Leaders declared there would be between 5,000 and 20,000 participants, and city officials made emergency plans to accommodate a huge throng and preserve order.

Ohio Consecrates Bishop Auxiliary

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—With impressive ceremonies attended by dignataries of the Catholic Church from many parts of the country, Mgr. James A. McFadden today was consecrated bishop-auxiliary of the Cleveland diocese.

Bishop Joseph Schrembs, of Cleveland, was the consecrator, with Bishops Michael J. Gallagher, of Detroit, and Thomas C. O'Reilly, of Scranton, Pa., as co-consecrators.

Finland Would Free Dry Law Violators

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—A bill granting amnesty to about 20,000 prisoners, mostly violators of the prohibition laws, which have been repealed, was introduced by the government in Parliament today. Its object is to relieve congestion in the Finnish prisons.

THE WRECKAGE OF THREE HOMES—BATHTUBS, BARRELS AND ALL—IN CHICAGO MYSTERY BLAST THAT INJURED SEVEN

Judge Gawthrop Shies At Utility Quiz Job

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Judge Robert S. Gawthrop, of the Superior Court, is not anxious to become chief counsel of the Public Service Commission investigating committee.

The Superior Court jurist returned to his home last night from Europe. He gave no definite answer as to whether he would take the post or not. He told Senator William S. Rial, chairman of the committee, he would take the matter under consideration and give his decision later. He said:

"I shall study the offer to be chief counsel and then make known my attitude. I can say now that upon my retirement from the bench next January 1 I have made certain commitments for my future.

"As the matter now stands the offer of the position as counsel to the committee does not appear to be especially appealing. However, I do not want to indicate I would not accept it until I have had the situation presented to me from all angles."

Informed that Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish had give an opinion that the judge would lose a pension of about $2,000 a year if he resigned before the end of his term, Judge Gawthrop declared:

"Everyone these days seems to take advantage of pension funds."

Ban on Jobless Voters Will Be Appealed

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Herbert E. Holmes, city solicitor and Democratic candidate for state senator, announced today that he will carry to the Maine Supreme Court the fight to restore the ballot to disfranchised voters who have received city aid. He said:

"The depression has taken a man's job and now the Board of Registration has taken his ballot."

Holmes appealed the decision of Superior Court Judge Harry Manser that a man who receives city aid within a 90-day period preceding a state election is a pauper. Holmes said:

"That statute, in my opinion, means that a pauper is a man who will not work even when work is plentiful and has to be kept by the city or town where he lives.

"It never was meant as a penalty to a man who is perfectly willing to work but is unable to find a job because there are no jobs. Before further action can be taken on the appeal, however, the Maine state election will be over. The election is next Monday."

Action of the Republican-controlled Board of Registration in removing 350 names from the voting list as paupers has been upheld by the Superior Court.

HOSPITAL GUARD ACCUSED AS MAN DIES AFTER BEATING

PROBE STARTED BY CORONER, SLEUTHS

Autopsy Reveals Many Injuries; Kin Tells of Victim's Charge

An investigation into the death last night in St. Francis Hospital of a psychopathic patient who declared he had been beaten by a hospital attendant was being made today by the Coroner's office and homicide detectives.

An autopsy at the morgue early today disclosed the victim, David M. Linton, 53, of R. F. D. No. 9, South Hills, had suffered fractures of seven ribs on the left side, a broken breast bone, a bruised neck and a black eye. Dr. J. W. McMeans, Coroner's physician, declined to give the cause of death until he confers with Coroner W. J. McGregor. The hospital attributed death to broncho pneumonia.

BROODED OVER JOB LOSS

Linton was admitted to the hospital August 31 as a mental patient, according to deputy coroners. The condition was due to brooding over the loss of his position, according to David Linton, of 1130 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, the patient's father. He said Linton has been employed at the National Tube Company for more than 30 years and was furloughed a year ago. He had been employed as a secretary.

Charges of the beating were related by an uncle, Samuel Linton, of 7207 Race street, Homewood. He said the patient told him on Labor Day of having been beaten by a guard the preceding night. The uncle quoted Linton as saying:

"I told the guard, 'I want to go home to Anna' (Linton's wife). The guard hit me with his fist, knocking me down. He then choked me and beat me some more."

Mrs. Anna Linton, the widow, told the Coroner her husband had said an attendant grabbed him by the throat and pounded his stomach and that he had identified the man.

HOSPITAL'S REPORT

The hospital report to the Coroner on the death of the patient read in part:

"Met with an unexplained accident during the night from September 4 to September 5 in the psychopathic ward where he was confined. He declared an attendant hit him, but his statement could not be verified. There were no eye-witnesses. The accused attendant denied the charge.

"The patient's mental state rendered the correctness of his statement questionable. There was evidence of a fracture of ribs on the left side."

After the autopsy, which was witnessed by a physician from the hospital, homicide detectives were notified.

Sister Thomassina, superintendent of the hospital, informed Deputy Coroner John Aldisert that the accused attendant was Edward Henigan, of 415 North Winebiddle avenue. He had denied the charge, she said.

Linton had lived in Winebiddle avenue, East End, until a month ago. Besides his widow, he leaves three daughters at home.

MISSING DOCTOR FEARED SLAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Discovery of license plates issued to Dr. Frank Lock, vanished Evanston physician, under the rear seat of a blood-stained and fire-damaged automobile last night confronted police with a mystery as to the doctor's whereabouts.

Authorities expressed fear that the doctor may have been slain. No one could be found who had seen him since he left his Evanston offices last January.

The automobile was found in suburban Oak Park. There were splotches police said of blood stains on the cushions. Oak Park residents said a man drove the car to the site where it was found and then fled.

Police said the automobile had been stolen from Morris Goldberg, Chicago.

Spur Home Building By Tax Exemption

BURLINGTON, Wis., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—A novel plan to encourage home building was approved by the City Council.

Edward Reuter, a building contractor, offered to build a home providing the city would exempt it from taxation in 1933. The Council accepted his offer and made the same proposition to anyone else who would care to build.

Navy Commends 2 Pennsylvanians

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Letters of commendation have been sent by the Secretary of the Navy to two Pennsylvanians for "outstanding merit" in 1931-32 gunnery practice. They are Lieut. Com. Harold F. Ely, of Jeannette, and Lieut. William L. Hoffheins, of Hanover.

SEEK TO RETURN 'KIDNAPED' HEIR

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Texas seeks the return from Kentucky of a 10-year-old boy, heir to a fortune, and his father, who allegedly kidnaped him from a guardian.

Two Dallas County officers are en route to Louisville with a warrant for the arrest of Hubert Johnson Jenkins on a charge of kidnaping Hugh Bradford Jenkins from the home of his grandfather and guardian, the late T. L. Bradford, millionaire mayor of Dallas. The boy is one of the principal heirs of Bradford.

Gov. Ross S. Sterling has issued requisition papers for Jenkins.

Jenkins, who took his son to his Louisville home early this week is not under arrest. A friend said the father had not kidnaped the son, but merely went for him after the death of his guardian, who had never adopted him.

Hazers Cut Hair Of Monaca Youths

MONACA, Pa., Sept. 8.—Charged with taking several members of the freshman class for "a ride" and cutting their hair, in defiance of orders prohibiting hazing, seven Monaca High School students were suspended from classes yesterday. They will appear before the Board of Education, September 12, D. C. Locke, superintendent of schools, announced.

Theodore Roberts Estate Insolvent

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The estate of the late Theodore Roberts, character actor, was shown to be insolvent when an accounting was rendered in the Superior Court here. It was estimated at $20,900 when he died in 1929. Under a settlement, creditors will receive 25 cents on the dollar.

Farmer Seeks Jail Sentence to Please Neighbors

TOWANDA, Pa., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Herbert Patton, Stevensville farmer, wants to go to jail "to satisfy my neighbors." He pleaded guilty to setting fire to some woods yesterday and the court said:

"Tell us about it."

Patton answered:

"I can't, I didn't set fire to them. My neighbors won't be satisfied until I'm locked up."

The court refused to pass sentence so Patton asked to be sent to jail on an assault charge of which he was convicted Monday.

He was to appear for sentencing on that count in November, but the court said it would move the date up to next week, if he wants.

HARRIS TO BARE MACHINE DATA

Balked in his efforts to continue the senatorial investigation of the Allegheny County vote machine muddle, principally the disposition of the $169,000 royalties in the $1,000,000 deal, Senator Frank J. Harris today was preparing a report for transmittal to Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth.

Resumption of the hearing collapsed in Harrisburg yesterday after Senators Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., and Chauncey W. Parkinson, refused to permit Senator Harris to question Attorney Hiram D. Hirsh and three other Pittsburghers as to the distribution of the fees paid them by the Poole Engineering Company, vote machine contractors.

MIX BATTLES FOR CHILD

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Tom Mix, screen star, carrying on his contest for custody of his 10-year-old daughter, Thomasina, testified in Superior Court yesterday his former wife, Victoria Olazabal, of San Francisco, apparently was neglecting the child.

Letters from Thomasina to her father were read, one of them saying:

"I want to come home. Won't you write mother a diplomatic letter and ask her if I can come?"

Mrs. Olazabal and her husband, Don Manuel de Olazabal, an Argentine diplomat, were in court to oppose Mix's move for a modification of the divorce decree. They were accompanied by Thomasina, who broke into tears when she heard the reading of this letter:

"Dear Dad. I want to come home. I am sick and tired of it. I am tired of being told to shut up and be quiet—and that by Don Manuel."

JURY ACQUITS POLICEMAN OF KILLING WIFE

Latrobe Officer Set Free After Brief Deliberation

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Deliberating one hour and a half, a jury today acquitted Patrolman Thomas Griffin, of Latrobe, of charges of killing his wife.

Given the case at 1:15 a. m. the jury of 11 men and one woman returned the verdict at 2:45.

Mrs. Griffin was killed as she stood at an ironing board in her home a month ago. It was first reported she committed suicide.

The state sought to show she was slain by her husband after much meditation. The defense contended she killed herself.

Mrs. Jennie Foster Burkhart, the state's "star witness," took the stand last night in rebuttal, but she was not questioned when the court ruled her statements would have to be in support of previous evidence given. She had been missing for several days, but was found by officers yesterday.

Griffin and two others are charged with conspiracy in connection with her disappearance.

SMITH TO CLEAR STAND

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Al Smith is about ready to declare himself.

Silent since the Chicago convention, the former Governor will make his position crystal clear concerning the national, state and municipal Democratic tickets in the November election.

Unless all the signs fail, he will give his blessing to the Roosevelt-Garner ticket; indorse Col. H. H. Lehman for the governorship of New York, and perhaps announce his support of Mayor Joseph V. McKee for the mayoralty.

The Republicans have been making capital of Smith's silence, but the ex-governor now proproposes to end it, once and for all, by an unequivocal statement that Gov. Roosevelt and Speaker Garner not only have his support, but that he proposes to take part in the campaign for their election.

Talk of Smith himself running for governor again, or for the mayoralty, is put down by his friends as "bunk."

The belief is growing in local Democratic quarters that "Jimmy" Walker will not be a candidate for re-election. "Jimmy" is being advised not to run by some of his closest friends.

CHILD BRANDED; HUNT MANIAC

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Juvenile authorities today were investigating the report of Mrs. H. J. Hidalgo that hed 3-year-old daughter, Dorothy, was brutally branded on the arm by a supposed maniac.

The child is under treatment at an emergency hospital. Physicians said a crude "A," surmounted by three wavy lines, apparently had been burned into the skin by fire, acid or a hot wire.

Mrs. Hidalgo said the child, playing in the alley near their home, screamed. When the mother reached the alley she said she found the child crying in pain and saw a figure darting around thre street corner.

RESCUED MAN LAUDS JOAN

BALTIMORE, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The part Miss Joan Lowell, novelist and playwright, played in rescuing him from the surf at Atlantic City Monday was given high praise by Albert D. Graham, chairman of the board of directors of the First National Bank, Baltimore, on his return here.

In a letter to the Associated Press, Mr. Graham said:

"No woman could have rendered more assistance, nor shown more courage than Miss Lowell.

"The cross-currents and undertow were unusually bad, but in spite of these conditions Miss Lowell did not hesitate to risk her life to save mine.

"I wish I could adequately express my gratitude for her act of bravery."

Mr. Graham was none the worse for his experience at Atlantic City. He had gone under twice when rescued.

Ortiz Rubio Reaches San Diego for Rest

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 8.—(A.)—Former President Ortiz Rubio, of Mexico, arrived here by train yesterday and was greeted by more than 150 representatives of Mexican families.

Ortiz Rubio's only statement was that he intends to stay in San Diego "for at least two months for a nice, quiet rest."

'VOICE' OF POPE MADE BISHOP

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Msgr. Francis J. Spellman, of Whitman, Mass., only American prelate at the Vatican, was consecrated auxiliary bishop of Boston at St. Peter's today by Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, papal secretary of state.

It was the first time an American bishop ever has been consecrated in the great basilica.

The brilliant ceremony was attended by hundreds of Americans and Italians and distinguished ecclesiastics of the church.

Msgr. Spellman has been the voice of Pope Pius to millions throughout the world since the Pontiff's radio broadcasts began. It is he who puts the Holy Father's words into English for the English-speaking world.

Parker, Author, to Be Buried Beside Wife

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Sir Gilbert Parker, noted author who died Tuesday in London, will be buried here where he was born.

Word was received today that his body would be brought here to rest beside that of his wife in Belleville Cemetery.

Poison Proves Fatal To Wife of Doctor

Mrs. W. J. Lange, 40, wife of Dr. W. J. Lange, of 5422 Penn avenue, died yesterday in West Penn Hospital from poison she swallowed last Friday, according to a coroner's report. Homicide detectives said Mrs. Lange told them she took poison because she was tired of living.

FAY TELLS TALE OF 'SQUABBLE' WITH RUDY

1-Day Renoite Eagerly Awaits Reunion With Crooner

By GILBERT GORDON
International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—"Just a little family squabble—all patched up!"

Outbound from Reno, where she had stopped, changed her mind about a divorce and skipped out on the next train, Mrs. Fay Webb Vallee, wife of Rudy Vallee, vagabond radio singer, crooned this greeting today in her native California, eagerly awaiting a reunion with her songster husband.

Disembarking from a Reno train at San Francisco, the vivacious young actress, radiant in a pale green ensemble, was escorted by a husky, 6-foot officer of the law. She smiled and said:

"Meet my father—Chief of Police Clarence E. Webb, of Santa Monica."

Chief Webb had been visiting his daughter in New York when the marital rift occurred, so Mrs. Vallee and Dad made the Reno trip together, and both are leaving San Francisco tonight for the parent's Los Angeles home.

TRAVELS IN PAJAMAS

En route to San Francisco, the radio crooner's wife, garbed in flaming red pajamas for hot-weather train comfort, summarized her Reno in-and-out for International News Service with this elapsed itinerary:

Arrived Reno, 12:45 p. m., Tuesday.

Registered at hotel with Dad.

Changed her mind—Telephoned Rudy at Atlantic City.

Left Reno at 12:45 p. m., Wednesday.

Total time spent in Reno—24 hours.

To this she added ruefully:

"And all I got in Reno was a bad cold."

Then, while Dad looked on with a paternal smile, the 24-hour "Renoite" told the story of her transcontinental train flight and brief stopover at the Nevada divorce Mecca. She said:

"I'll stay with Dad at Santa Monica for two weeks—maybe more or less—then return to Rudy.

"It was all just a childish quarrel—it was foolish of me to think of divorce. It's these little things that grow into trouble.

BOTH TEMPERAMENTAL

"I'm temperamental. So is Rudy. We were home together in New York on Thursday night. We agreed to disagree. Not a harsh word spoken. Rudy didn't want a divorce, but told me to do as I wished. He left for Atlantic City the next morning, knowing that I was going—west."

"At Reno I called him up at 11 o'clock. I talked to Rudy many, many minutes—then caught the next train out."

The conversation was a secret, she said.

At this point, the brunet actress talked about the castle-like home that Rudy had purchased in Beverly Hills, near Los Angeles, only six months ago. She said:

"We have called it 'Palmas Tras,' which means 'Three Palms' in Spanish. It has 25 rooms, I think, and it's empty now . . . some day we hope to live there.

"Rudy is a real artist, and he prefers radio work."

She was asked:

"Will Rudy ever change his style of radio presentation?"

She whispered:

"He doesn't like the word 'crooner!'"

DOUGLAS BOATS FREED OF CITY JUDGMENT

The city has released all the equipment placed by John Douglas, Jr., at the disputed wharf site at the foot of Stanwix street on the Allegheny River with the exception of one sand hoist on which proof of ownership is awaited.

Attorney Walter F. Michael, counsel for Douglas, has stated that all the goods involved belong to persons other than his client. At the same time he has indicated that he will represent the owners in fighting any attempt to have them moved.

FOUR GIVE BOND

Four of the five men named in the conspiracy informations made by Douglas before Justice of the Peace W. S. Edwards, of Glenfield, have posted bond for a hearing in court, but the fifth had not been located by the constable, Edwards said.

Those who have put up bond are Director Edward G. Lang of the City Department of Public Works; E. J. Foley, chief clerk of the Bureau of City Property; Edwin McBride, city wharfmaster, and George Vang, president of the Iron City Sand Company.

The fifth, D. G. Aronberg, president of the Aronberg-Fried Company, general contractors on the new postoffice building here, is reported in New York.

DEADLOCK CONTINUES

The strike of hoisting engineers on the postoffice, which started with the controversy regarding the employment of union men on sand and gravel hoists, remains in a deadlock. Douglas' new Union Sand Company, approved by the hoisting engineers, will retain its hold on the wharf site for at least six weeks until the case can come up in court.

6 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Six persons, three of them children, were injured in automobile accidents last night.

Mrs. Emil Naystrom, 30, of 2911 Jersey avenue, McKeesport, and A. F. Herrman, 35, of Washington avenue, East McKeesport, were hurt when the automobile driven by Naystrom collided with one driven by C. H. Wyman, 35 of 3922 Bigelow boulevard, at Fifth avenue and Beethwood boulevard. The victims were taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Kenneth Fitzroy, 10, of 4521 Liberty avenue, was cut and bruised when struck by an automobile on the Bloomfield Bridge. He was treated at West Penn Hospital.

Running into the side of an automobile driven by Harry Berberich, of 4377 Stanton avenue, in front of his home, Raymond Greif, 8, of 310 Main street, suffered head injuries. Berberich was arrested. The boy was taken to St. Margaret's Hospital.

Suffering lacerations of the head when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Grace Hawkins, Royal Yorke Apartments, 3500 Bigelow boulevard, near his home, James Fisher, 7, of 7004 Finance street, was treated at the office of a physician.

A victim of a hit-and-run driver, Thomas Short, 39, a bus driver of Willock, was in Mercy Hospital today with a fractured leg. He was standing near his bus in Gilhallen road, Clairton, when struck.

COX IN FARM STRIKE AREA

DAVENPORT, Ia., Sept. 8.—Father James R. Cox, Pittsburgh's campaigning priest, reached this city, gateway to the state of striking farmers, early today. He will speak here tonight.

He spoke in two Illinois towns—Joliet and Aurora—yesterday. To Joliet audiences he thundered:

"Shoot me if you like. Do what and say what you will about me. It makes no difference. As long as I have a tongue I will shout the truth about the Democrats, the Republicans and the capitalists, who are strangling the freedom out of America."

Father Cox is expected to fly back to Pittsburgh after tonight's meeting. He will resume the tour again Monday night in Des Moines.

Harvard Boys Safe In Cruise, Hunt Ends

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—A search for George Upton, Jr., and his brother, King, both Harvard students, ended today when their father, a wealthy Boston real estate trustee, was informed they had arrived safely aboard their 40-foot cruiser at the Raritan Canal, in New Jersey. They had been unreported since they passed through the Cape Cod Canal after leaving Marblehead Sunday for Yorktown, Va.

Presidential Trend by States

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

FLOODS BATTER TEXAS LEVEES

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Battering away at the walls of a $6,000,000 flood control system, the swollen waters of the Rio Grande surged over the lower valley today, isolating many villages and ranches on both sides of the international boundary.

The government-erected flood walls succumbed in many places to the relentless pounding of the waters. Hundreds of men were working feverishly with sand-bags to plug a 15-foot gap in the walls at McAllen.

Army planes roared over the flooded areas, directing the crews of flat-bottomed boats which went to the rescue of ranchers and their families, perched atop the roofs of their inundated homes. The fliers communicated their directions by radio.

Numerous villages and hamlets were entirely surrounded and covered by the vast sheet of water. Brownsville and other larger towns momentarily expected visitation of the flood's crest as the waters raged on toward their outlet into the Gulf of Mexico.

Evangelical Church Gains in Membership

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 8.—A gain of 428 members in the Pittsburgh Conference of the Evangelical Church was reported at the eighty-first annual conference here today. Contributions declined to $281,000 from $405,000 in 1931.

The Albright Brotherhood, the conference laymen's movement, elected these officers: President, Robert Brupbacher, Altoona; vice president, J. W. Everett, Indiana; secretary, O. R. Pang, Warren, and treasurer, John Aufderheide, Pittsburgh.

Venizelos Cabinet Resigns in Athens

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Premier Eleutherios Venizelos resigned today with his cabinet. President Zaimis will request him to remain at the head of the government.

VOTING CLOSE IN 3 EASTERN KEY STATES

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The battle for control of the three key states of the east is on in earnest with it anybody's race two months to a day before the election on November 8.

New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are swinging back and forth like a weather vane, with each new gust of wind shifting direction from the one before.

This is the way the presidential race looks in the East as thousands of new postcard ballots are tabulated and analyzed in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

MARGIN ONLY 95 VOTES

Today 10,572 ballots from three states were added to the total already of record, bringing the number from that area, which represents 99 electoral votes, to 36,897.

To show how very close the contest is in this dominant region, there is a margin of only 95 votes between President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt. The slim advantage is in Hoover's favor. The vote stands:

Hoover, 18,496.
Roosevelt, 18,401.

New York State, which has contributed 19,501 ballots, today gives Hoover a majority of only 17. A week ago Roosevelt had the state by a majority of 290. Last Thursday Hoover had cut this to 163 for Roosevelt. On Friday the state had turned to the Hoover side by a 19 majority. Saturday showed this increased to 190 for Hoover, and, as pointed out, today Roosevelt cut that 190 to a Hoover lead of 17.

PREDICTIONS HAZARDOUS

Two weeks ago today New Jersey was in the Roosevelt column by a 26 majority. New returns published last Saturday had swung the state to Hoover by a 119 lead. Addition of 2068 ballots today brought the total for the state to 6,749 and raised the Hoover majority to 317. The vote divides:

Hoover 3,533
Roosevelt 3,216

Pennsylvania with the addition of 3,931, bringing the state's total poll ballot to 10,647, today shows a Roosevelt majority of 239. Tabulation of the last returns from that state a week ago showed Roosevelt 290 in the lead. A week before he was 164 ahead. Today's tabulation shows:

Hoover 5,204
Roosevelt 5,443

These relatively small and widely fluctuating margins would appear to make any forecast now as to what either or all of the three states may do in November a hazardous guess.

U. S. TO AVOID ARMS TANGLE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—The United States government will view with the "utmost reserve" any efforts of France to include this country in the discussions of the Versailles signatories over Germany's demand for arms equality with the rest of the world. This was made clear at the State Department today following reports that the French government had already communicated with the United States regarding Germany's threat to withdraw from the League of Nations disarmament conference unless granted arms equality.

Secretary of State Stimson, who has just returned from a vacation in the Adirondacks, said he had not been back long enough to know whether any word had been received from France on the subject and that he would rather not comment if word had been received.

In other quarters, it was stated that while America is sympathetic towards Germany in the latter's demand for arms equality, this country is not a signatory of the Versailles treaty and our separate treaty with Germany does not include any reference to Germany's armaments.

Uses Stove as Safe, Money Now Ashes

CANTON, Ill., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Business was good with James Wright, second-hand dealer, but it cost him $85 to sell a stove. Fearing a robbery he put the money in a laundry stove. Then he sold the stove, forgetting the money. He hurried to the home of the buyer, but all that was left was a few coins. The rest was in ashes.

Veterans Protest Dog's Ashes in Memorial

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Sept. 8.—The presence in Uhrichsville's war memorial building of the ashes of "Bing," dog mascott of Company D, 136th Machine Gun Battalion, caused delegations from Welch Post, G. A. R., and the Spanish-American War Veterans camp here to protest to city council last night.

The veterans of the two wars threatened to withdraw their honor tablets from the building unless Carl Hamilton Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, removes the ashes of the dog that had to be chloroformed June 10, 1930, because of illness.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars agreed to vote on disposition of the dog's ashes.

Brazil Revolt Raises Price of Coffee

We regret to announce we are absolutely compelled to raise the price of our My-Te-Good and Fifth Avenue Coffee.

For two months now, the greatest revolution in the history of Brazil has been raging—the state of Sao Paulo, the richest state in Brazil, major industrial center and heart of the coffee business, having risen in revolt against the Brazilian Government.

Since the early part of July, all ports of Sao Paulo, including Santos, the world's greatest export center for coffee, have been blocked or closed by the government forces; thus large coffee shipments out of Brazil have been held up and coffee has been steadily advancing in price.

Censorship of news, by the Brazilian Government, has been most strict and complete—it has been possible to get but little information concerning the situation and only small shipments of coffee are being made out of several of the minor ports under government control—and such shipments are at greatly advanced prices.

The advance we are making in our retail price is not as large as the advance we have had to pay; consequently, unless the civil war in Brazil ends, or larger shipments of coffee are allowed to leave Brazil at a reasonable price, we will probably be compelled to make another price advance in a month or so—meantime the new prices are:

HOLDUP GIVEN AS ALIBI FOR ANOTHER

Charles Schaffer, 22, of Sharpsburg, was acquitted of a robbery because he claimed he was busy holding up a gasoline station at the time. He offered this unusual alibi in Criminal Court late yesterday.

Schaffer was charged with entering the office of Justice of the Peace Eugene Mehrlich, Millvale, January 5, 1931, carrying a gun in each hand, and holding up the squire and Chief of Police Philip Mitzel and Highway Patrolman Larry Moore, taking about $5 from each and the highway patrolman's revolver.

Schaffer was arrested June 19, a year and a half after the robbery, by Chief Mitzel, who said he recognized him at the workhouse, where he was serving time for the gasoline station robbery. Justice of the Peace Mehrlich, the next day, identified Schaffer, and held him for court the same night.

Former Policeman John Janick, of Sharpsburg, testified he had arrested Schaffer the night after the gas station holdup, and had taken him to Mehrlich's office to see if the latter could identify him as the two-gun robber. Janick said both Mehrlich and Mitzel failed to identify him. The highway policeman was not present.

Squire Mehrlich said the reason he did not identify Schaffer then was that so many suspects had been brought before him that he could not tell one from another.

KITTANNING, Pa., Sept. 8.—State police and county officers today are seeking three men who beat and robbed John McCullough, 84, in his home at Reesdale. They obtained $10. Recently Adam Johns and his sister, both aged, were robbed of $1,800.

Bus Permit Asked By Harmony Line

HARRISBURG, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—The Harmony Short Line Motor Transportation Company yesterday asked the Public Service Commission for a certificate to operate bus service between New Castle and Koppell, Moravia and Wampum, and Wampum and Ellwood City. The company averred in its petition it had reason to believe the Wampum Bus Company had ceased to operate between these points.

Gypsy Royalty Declared Fiction

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Irving Brown, Columbia University professor, has punctured the belief that Gypsies have kings and queens who arrange royal marriages and such like. The professor, who spends his vacations among the Romany Rovers, said that the talk about Gypsy royalty is "an American fiction." It is against the spirit of Gypsies to have rulers, he said.

OFFICER HELD AS SLAYER; GETS BAIL

By CHARLES A. FARLEY
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 8.—Patrolman John Cochran, of the Washington police force, was free under bond today on a manslaughter charge in connection with the midnight slaying of C. E. Bittner, store manager, nearly three weeks ago, following a Coroner's inquest which terminated late yesterday.

Cochran shot Bittner in front of the Washington County Courthouse. The policeman testified Bittner, who was being arrested on a loitering charge, had made a motion as though to draw a gun.

Cochran was admitted to bail by District Attorney Warren Burchinal after the coroner's jury recommended his detention on a manslaughter charge.

STILL SUSPENDED

Mayor Robert Griffiths said Cochran would remain suspended from duty pending disposition of the case. Eye witnesses quizzed by Coroner William Baker, District Attorney Burchinal and Attorney Robert Burnside, representing the slain man's family, told of seeing Bittner argue with the officer, then raise an arm into the air and drop the other to his side.

Testifying in his own behalf, Cochran refused to submit to cross examination on the grounds his answers might tend to further incriminate him. He permitted, however, examination by the Coroner and members of the jury.

FEARED BULLET

Cochran testified:

"I thought Mr. Bittner was going to shoot me. I reached for my gun and shot him. I didn't think the first shot hit him so I fired again."

Both shots entered Bittner's abdomen.

Washington Hospital attaches testified finding a .25 caliber revolver in Bittner's coat pocket. Relatives had previously contended he never carried a weapon.

Robert Dunn, former employe of the J. G. McCrory store, which Bittner managed, asserted the victim had once shown him the gun. It was carried, he declared, in Bittner's automobile.

AVALON PLANS RELIEF PARTY

A corn roast and supper, street dancing, and open-air movies, all to follow an afternoon ball game, and to be concluded by card playing at the Borough Hall, will be features in Avalon borough's big party Saturday to raise money for relief work. All clubs, church and civic organizations of Avalon, are uniting in the affair which will take place on the Avalon school grounds. A large crowd is expected to attend. Hugh Rankin is committee chairman.

Two Freed in Attack On American Woman

COLON, Panama, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Charges against two Colon policemen named Ledezma and Espinosa in connection with an alleged attack upon Mrs. Betty Andrews Chandler, American nightclub entertainer, were dismissed by Judge Rodolfo Arava in the Second Circuit Court today.

The Judge ruled that Mrs. Chandler was intoxicated at the time of the alleged assault; that she had refused to submit to medical examination and that there were no witnesses. He stated that the investigation carried out by Capt. Vincente Alvarado, chief of the Colon police, was "illegal."

Free Lunch Again Doomed; 'Speaks' Need Permits

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Pickles and cheese, salami and bread, sauerkraut and clam broth, and other dainties served as free lunch in many modern speakeasies as in the pre-prohibition saloon, faced a second doom today.

Two Brooklyn dispensers of alleged alcoholic beverages were arrested by police, charged with serving food without a permit.

2 CHILDREN GET MORGAN RICHES

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Junius Spencer Morgan, a cousin of J. P. Morgan, willed the major share of an estate of undetermined value to his two children, Alexander P. Morgan and Mrs. Sarah M. Gardner.

His will, as filed for probate in Surrogate's Court, explained he had made no bequest to the widow, Josephine Perry Morgan, of Princeton, N. J., because he had made "ample provision" for her. The son and daughter also received personal effects.

The art museum of Princeton University received "all my engravings and etchings, together with all my books and pamphlets relating thereto, and my Greek terra cotta vases."

Morgan retired from the banking field in 1906 to collect art objects and died August 18, in Switzerland.

CONVICTS FLEE WITH GUNS

PARCHMAN, Miss., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Six convicts, including three serving life senfences, overpowered guards and escaped from the State Prison farm here early today.

The life termers are Rouey Ealon, convicted of slaying a federal officer; Andrew Andrew, slayer of a rival in a love affair, and Clifton Smith, convicted of murder.

The others are O. B. Winters, Memphis bank bandit, and Tom Dear and J. P. O'Conner, convicted of robbery.

They seized Night Watchman Rover Warren and an attendant, took Warren's revolver, locked them in a cage, looted the prison hospital of several other guns and fled in a penitentiray automobile.

Waddell Funeral Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Marion A. Waddell will be held tomorrow afternoon in the home of her son, Robert N. Waddell, Carnegie Tech football coach, 6863 Meade street. Mrs. Waddell, the widow of Alexander E. Waddell, lived at 205 North Dallas avenue. She died yesterday at the Coraopolis residence of her daughter, Mrs. F. B. McConnell, whom she was visiting. She was born in Motherwell, Scotland. Besides Mr. Waddell and Mrs. McConnell, she leaves a son, A. B. Waddell, and two daughters, Mrs. Vokack, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Phillip Young, of Canton, O.

U. S. to Thank Persia For Consul's Rescue

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The State Department instructed Charles C. Hart, its minister at Teheran, today to thank the Persian government for the promptness with which it sent soldiers to the rescue of the three kidnaped American consuls the night of September 1.

ANTI-AMERICAN MOVE GROWS IN JAPAN

International News Service.

TOKIO, Japan, Sept. 8.—The growth of anti-American sentiment in Japan resulting from America's attitude in the Manchurian crisis was demonstrated today when Osaka police denounced the action of the National City Bank in taking photographs of Kobe, Osaka and Tokio to show the recent development of these cities.

Dan Waugh, Tokio manager of the National City Bank, explained that his New York headquarters had asked for the pictures and protested to the foreign office against the Osaka complaint.

The Osaka police alleged that the collection of photographs, mostly of industrial areas, was inimical to Japan's defenses, charging that "America would use them in the event of war and aerial raids."

Local newspapers took up the allegation, charging that "American and Soviet agents" are spying upon Japan.

The controversy is typical of the present definitely anti-American attitude. The government is directing widespread exhibition of the American film, "Hell Divers," as showing the need for a larger army and navy "to guard against American attack."

Newspapers, books and magazines display a decided anti-American tenor. Bitter attacks upon Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's stand during the Manchurian and Shanghai crises are frequent.

U. S. Scientists Trap 6 Sober Lizards

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The capture of six "perfectly sober" giant lizards was announced yesterday by the Smithsonian Institution.

Natives of petite Gonave Island, off the coast of Haite warned a Smithsonian expedition the great iguanas could be taken with safety only when intoxicated. They advised rum, and said that if given an opportunity the lizards would drink themselves helpless.

But expedition members found them harmless and captured six sober animals by hand. They look like miniature copies of the long-extinct dinosaurs and go to the National Zoological Park here.

BREAKS COURT TRADITION

When Attorney Jacob Shulgold appeared in Common Please Court yesterday to argue an appeal before Judge Harry H. Rowand, he was greeted:

"Well, we have the Prince of Wales with us."

Shulgold suffered a broken shoulder several weeks ago when thrown from a horse. The attorney likewise broke a court tradition when he appeared before the bar in shirt sleeves, explaining that a brace he wore prevented him from wearing a coat.

Representing John Briggs in an appeal against the City of Clairton, Shulgold won, the court ordering fine of $100 assessed against Briggs on charges of keeping a gambling house and possession and sale of beer, be refunded.

CONSTITUTION WEEK SEPT. 19

A week-long observance of the one hundred and forty-fifth anniversary of the signing of the Constitution, September 19, will begin next Sunday under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution. Col. Franklin Blackstone, president, has named the following committee:

Eugene L. Connelly, chairman; Malcolm MacPherson, John G. Buchanan, Frederick B. Westervelt, Walter A. Strayer, John A. Warfel, W. A. McCommon, Gen. Albert J. Logan, Col. Weaver H. Rogers, David F. Collingwood, Wesley H. Cogswell and R. C. Schanck.

All churches will commemorate the historical event, and the schools will conduct special exercises, according to the committee's announcement. Throughout the week there will be appropriate patriotic music played in Pittsburgh theaters.

MISS M'CALL TO SPEAK

"An Army of Boys on the Loose" is the subject Miss Bertha McCall, who studied the problem at the request of the President's Commission on Unemployment, will speak at a luncheon tomorrow in Kaufmann's.

A former Pittsburgh resident, former teacher in Allegheny High School, and executive secretary of the local branch of the Travelers' Aid Society, Miss McCall has completed a nation-wide survey of the alarmingly increasing number of boys under 20, swarming on the highways and freights, hitchhiking dangerously and hopelessly to "somewhere else."

Tickets for the luncheon are being sent to social workers, churches and civic centers.

'Autogiro Will Carry Huge Sign Over City

Pittsburghers will have an opportunity to see an autogiro tomorrow and Saturday when exhibitions of the latest in aircraft will be given over the city and suburbs by Guy Miller, piloting the Kellet K3 autogiro under auspices of Rosenbaum's department store, signalizing their sixty-fourth anniversary sale. It will carry a sign 140 feet long and nine feet high and will be seen Friday 11 a. m. to noon; 2 to 3 p. m. and 4 to 5 p. m.; Saturday, 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. and 12:30 to 1:30 and 3 to 4 p. m.

600 Radio Dealers Guests at Banquet

Six hundred Majestic radio dealers of the Pittsburgh district attended a banquet and showing of the new radio line in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night, given by Hamburg Brothers, distributors for the tristate area. E. A. Hamburg welcomed the dealers, and Harold Kay, sales manager, was toastmaster. R. E. Erlandson, sales manager of the Grigsby Grunow Company, spoke on sales and merchandise plans for the fall and winter seasons. Sectional meetings also will be held in Altoona, Youngstown and Wheeling.

Convict Gets Reward In Slayers' Capture

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—A $559 reward for aiding in the capture and conviction of the slayers of Policeman Carl Sherman was awarded today to William Shields, serving a 24-year sentence for robbery in the Ohio Penitentiary.

Shields, who received the largest share of the $2,000 reward divided among six persons, reported to police he overheard the killers in conversation in 1929.

Honjo Gets Ovation On Return to Tokio

TOKIO, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Gen. Shigeru Honjo, former commander of the Japanese forces in Manchuria, received a tremendous ovation today upon his return home.

He was met by Minister of War Sadao Araki and immediately escorted to the imperial palace for an audience with Emperor Hirohito. Gen. Honjo recently was replaced in Manchuria by Gen. Nobuyoshi Muto.

Ex-Grid Star Leaves Estate to Hospital

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Valued at $60,000 and upwards, the estate of Dr. John Hedges, former star end of the University of Pennsylvania football team, was left to Germantown Hospital and to his brother, William Henry Hedges, according to the terms of his will, filed for probate here. Dr. Hedges, who was 59, died last month.

JOSEPH HORNE CO
THE BEST PLACE TO SHOP, AFTER ALL

Today's Low Prices May Be Wonderful Bargains a Month Hence

AT last, after nearly three years, the pendulum appears to be swinging again the other way. The average of 50 leading stocks and bonds shows a greater percentage of increase for the past two months than for the entire four years from 1921 to 1925. Raw materials, as represented by cotton, printcloths, silk, rubber, hides, and wool, increased 56% on September 1, over the lows of this year. If these advances are sustained, they mean the return of prosperity, but they also mean higher prices for stable commodities which today are selling at the lowest prices in years, and in some instances in their history. We feel justified in calling public attention to these facts and the possibilities which they entail. To many they will suggest the wisdom of early shopping for fall and winter necessities at present favorable prices.

Worumbo

A Misses' Coat of the Genuine Thing!

$25

If there is such a thing as a "precious" fabric, as there are precious jewels and furs, it is Worumbo, a fabric that has always been approached with a kind of deference, and thought of only in terms of high-priced coats. Yet here it is, in a travel, sports and utility coat, at a popular price, through a certain turn of fortune that came our way.

The model pictured, natural-color or brown, in sizes 12 to 20.

Listening In— "Broke" in Arms; Hard-boiled Rudy; True to Radio

Mr. Brokenshire.

Energetic Norman Brokenshire has risen in arms against the movies for their "unkindly" interpretations of radio announcers. In the first place, he declares that announcers do not make fabulous salaries such as the populace is lead to believe through the films, and he "angrily denounces the attempt to make a monkey out of the business and those who practice its peculiar art" . . . Wonder what particular movie made him hot? . . . There's a reason why Vincent Lopez' music has been heard infrequently during the last month. He's been preparing for the fall and winter with a staff of arrangers busy on new orchestrations and stunts for the air.

Rudy Vallee is a hard-boiled lad when necessary. It made news when he socked that Pennsylvania miner. A similar episode occurred more than three years ago in the Villa Vallee when Rudy chased two big huskies off the floor for acting up . . . but it didn't get in the papers.

Bennie Kruger, the sax player, recently bought a neighborhood movie house in Jersey City. The opening night a short featured Rudy Wiedoeft. Bennie's outstanding rival on the sax.

Jimmie Melton has turned down some worthwhile musical show offers to remain in radio . . . Freddie Berrens, the Columbia band leader, now directs 47 programs a week . . . Ozzie Nelson wants song writers to send him "scat" numbers.

Arthur Jarrett is slated for a part in a new musical show . . . Sax Rohmer's Dr. Fu Manchu is due on the air at the end of this month . . . Jack Denny has been making some more movie shorts.

Dr. Sigmund Spaeth's "Song Sleuth" fans seem to have trouble with his name when it comes to addressing letters to him . . . His mail comes with Sleuth spelled Slute, Sloot, Slooth, Siewth, Salute, Flute and Sluet, while his own name varies all the way from Spade and Space to Spay—and after the announcer carefully spelled both names at the close of one of his programs, several letters came addressed to the new team of "Spaeth and Sleuth."

That petition circulated among Clevelanders to bring Gene and Glenn back to that city had its effect, evidently. Beginning Monday, September 19, the boys open a series of six-a-week programs from WTAM. Their morning programs, now presented from Chicago, also will be heard from the WTAM studios.

James V. McConnell, commercial representative of NBC, drops into the KDKA studios today for a two-day visit.

Jane Gibson, who chats with you on WJAS, makes personal appearances at Horne's next week for Barbara Gould, the beauty specialist, who opens a new series of programs on a Columbia chain Thursday.

Jack Pearl, Tully Play On WCAE

A modern counterpart of that swashbuckling teller of strange and outlandish tales, "Baron Munchausen," portrayed by none other than Jack Pearl, Broadway comedian and star of many musical hits, makes his debut as a regular weekly feature of the mystic "magic carpet" circle on WCAE tonight at 10 with Walter O'Keefe.

Jack Pearl

Straining the listeners' imagination somewhat, the modern "baron" indulges in a series of stories packed with laughs and depicting some of his adventures in the far corners of the world. Sharing the spotlight with Pearl is Ferde Grofe, American composer and orchestra director, whose "Grand Canyon Suite" and "Mississippi Suite" have won the praise of critics everywhere. This is Grofe's initial appearance on the dance hour.

Richard Walton Tully's "The Bird of Paradise," specially adapted for radio presentation, is heard over an NBC network, including WCAE, tonight at 9:30, with a notable cast of actors. The author, also starred in one of the principal roles, tells the history of "The Bird of Paradise," how he happened to write it and some of the amusing incidents of its production and its reception by the public, as additional highlights of the program. A musical background is provided by the NBC Symphony orchestra, directed by Erno Rapee.

* * *

Program Pointers

Patti Rude Baldrige, contralto and pioneer radio singer, is heard as guest soloist with the KDKA Orchestra directed by Zoel Parenteau during the "Silhouettes" program, presented over an NBC-WJZ network from the studios of KDKA today at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Baldrige, who made her first radio appearance three months after the pioneer station began operations on November 2, 1920, has appeared on the concert stage and with the Lyceum and Chautauqua circuits in the Middle West and South.

Mrs. Baldrige

Sir Arthur Eddington, plumian professor of astronomy at Cambridge University, England, gives the first of three addresses over WCAE tonight at 9 when he discusses "The Spiral Nebulae" or "The Island Universes."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

Aren't you delighted that there are to be several events to make up for the loss of the Greensburg horse show this fall?

And for that matter, the Pittsburgh Hunt horse show, which always has been held in the fall, although the Hunt's recent steeplechase did help take the place of the show.

The coming event is the Chestnut Ridge steeplechase and races, to take place Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, eastern standard time, on the Lazy Hour Ranch, near Dunbar, Pa.

One of the most interesting of the events will be the junior hunter trials, with the riders under 20, to be run over natural hunting country for a $100 purse.

Entries Listed

So far little Marian McCague has entered Princess Pat; Jane Flaccus, King Joy; Evelyn Thompson, of Uniontown, Moon Leaves; Mary Thompson, Whispers; Betty Gregory, Chestnut Prince; Nancy Patterson, who like her mother, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, wouldn't miss a race or show for worlds, will enter her famous Red Wing; Billy Bickel, Toxaway; Ashby Marshall, of Dunbar, Pa., Nobby.

Then there'll be a flat race for boys and girls under 15, with a trophy as the award. Evelyn Thompson will ride Miss Crowley in this event. Ashby Marshall, Code; Jane Flaccus, Rockaway; Joe Roberts, Frederick Fragile and Nancy Patterson, Redwing.

And after the races are over, there'll be a dance at the Summit Hotel, near Uniontown, with Fredericka, Mary and Evelyn Thompson, the Andrew A. Thompson's trio of daughters, in charge. The Thompsons are all from Uniontown.

* * *

Now to add to our list of homecomers, Mrs. J. Frederick Byers and her debutante daughter, attractive, Nancy Lee, arrived in New York yesterday on the Europa after a visit on the continent.

Benefit Dance

Plans are rapidly maturing for the subscription dance being held September 16, in the Edgeworth Club under the auspices of the Sewickley Red Cross for the benefit of local relief, the proceeds to be distributed by the Sewickley Advisory Council.

Susan O'Neil is chairman, you know, and each of her committee members has a committee of her own. Assisting Rosamound Fitch is Betty Childs, Mrs. Hartley Walker has Nancy Haworth as her aid; Peggy Griffith has a larger committee, Hester Lyon, Barbara Verner, Mary Curry and Betsy Liggett.

Selling tickets also are Mrs. William Galbraith, Mrs. Robert Applegate, who is aided by Mrs. Duncan Anderson, Mrs. Roy Rose and Miss Alice Brown.

Mrs. J. O. Flower is assisted by Martha Yost, Laura Childs, Ruth Brooks, Virginia Jones, Lois Tack and Betty Higgins.

Others working on the affair are Mrs. Van Leer Shriver, Jr., Dorothy Jarvis, Caroline Crittendon, Mrs. Dudley Livingston and Margaret McCready.

Judge W. H. S. Thomson and his daughter, of Aylesboro avenue, are spending the month of September at their summer home in Erie County.

Pittsburgh Girl Wins Easthampton Club 100-Yard Swim

Late season events at resorts are now dominated by swimming meets, yacht races and the like. And some Pittsburgh society folk are carrying off honors.

Up at Easthampton, Long Island, at the recent annual swimming meet, one of the members of our younger set covered herself with glory, Katharine Edwards.

Katharine, who is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards, Jr., of Fifth avenue, with Jean Lithgow and Natalie Hyde, won the 100-yard swim for club championship.

Her brother, Harkness Edwards, who with Mrs. Edwards, spends the winters in Dornerall, Lexington, Ky., won a cup for the season's yacht races, run from the Devon Yacht Club, of which Dr. Edwards is commodore.

The Edwards family goes to Easthampton every summer, where they have a cottage, Dunehurst. They entertain frequently, and Mrs. Edwards, Jr., is a patroness for most of the benefits given there.

The family is not expected back in Pittsburgh for some time yet, and probably will not be seen here until October.

The Edwards family will play a leading role, by the way, in the Gymkhana, to take place September 17 at the Riding Club. The affair was postponed from the past Saturday.

Rowland H. Erving III Joins Our Social Set

There's a new young man in town, Rowland H. Erving III, who arrived September 4 at St. Margaret's Hospital. His parents are, of course, the junior Rowland H. Ervings. And his mother is the former Elizabeth Glyde Wells.

Name Attendants For Patterson Nuptials

Miss Elizabeth Patterson, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Frank P. Patterson, of Portland street, whose marriage to Thomas J. Mahoney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Mahoney, of South Pacific avenue, will take place at 11 o'clock Monday morning in Sacred Heart Church, has named her bridal party.

Her sister, Mrs. J. H. Hartman, will be the matron of honor, and Fred Hoffman will serve as best man.

There will be no reception. Mr. Mahoney and his bride plan to reside in Pittsburgh. The bride-elect is a graduate of Seton Hill.

Two Bellevue Girls Returning After European Trip

Two Bellevue girls are expected home today after three months spent in Europe. They are Suzanne and Jane Orr, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Orr, of North Howard avenue, Bellevue. They arrived in New York yesterday on the Europa.

Miss Blanche Maloney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Maloney, of Northumberland street, left last week for a visit in New York City.

She was graduated from the College of New Rochell, New York. This fall, she will study for her master's degree at Duquesne University.

Sulphur Springs Attracts Many From North

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 8.—The opening of the fall season brings many to the Greenbrier from the northern resorts. For the next six weeks the colonists will enjoy the baths, golf, riding and tennis.

Recent visitors of note at the resort included the Siamese minister, Phya Subarn Sompati and Mme. Sompati, Luang Mitradarm, third secretary of the legation and Mme. Mitradarm and Prince Chirasksti and Prince Auddo. The Italian ambassador, Nobile Giacomo de Martino was also a recent visitor.

Adds to Painting

Mrs. Natalie Eynon Grauer, of Cleveland, who painted the portrait of Gen. Robert E. Lee, unveiled by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson during the recent Lee week celebration has incorporated into the murals by her husband, William C. Grauer, in the old White room of the President's cottage, a copy of a photograph of Mrs. Wilson as a girl with her brother, John Randolph Bolling and two of her sisters, taken in the garden of their early home at Wythville, Va.

At a recent dinner-dance in the Terrace dining room of the Greenbrier, the guests included Mrs. George W. Crawford, of Pittsburgh and New York, and her mother, Mrs. Robert Warmack.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—No matter what styles come or go, Paris never seems to give up its fondness for navy blue jersey suits. In seasons where red and brown are listed as the only smart colors, and when satin or velvet are the talked-of fabrics, fashionable dressmakers continue to make classic sports-tailored suits of navy jersey, and smartly dressed women continue to wear them.

* * *

THIS YEAR is no exception—and prophecies for 1933 fashions also include this favorite type of costume. The current version is perhaps a bit less severe than suits of former years; it may be worn with more striking accessories, but its general principles differ little from the suits of other times.

* * *

AN ILLUSTRATION of how simple and how practical this type of suit may be without losing one jot of its smartness is the Lyolene model, designed with flag color accessories. Note that the white scarf collar is so planned that it may be easily detached and another color substituted. Or it may be worn without any scarf at all.

* * *

NOTE ALSO that the blouse is not visible when the suit jacket is worn. Thus any other blouse in any other color or fabric may be substituted—allowing for limitless combinations of color and fabric. This particular blouse is in lightweight wool but is cut sleeveless—with the armseyes and collar edges in pinked design. The checks and criss-crosses fall into three wide strips, one white, one red, one blue. The buttons on the jacket are polished steel.

SHOT FROM GUNS

Every grain steam-exploded, made completely digestible AND CRISP

Think of it! A single dish of Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice, served with top milk and sugar, gives the same energy value as a baked potato or a lamb chop. Such rich nourishment from such a crisp dainty cereal! That's because Puffed Grains are "shot from guns." Every food cell broken open. Made completely digestible.

And now, in addition, Puffed Grains have been made twice as crisp . . . twice as good. Serve these super crisp . . . richly nourishing cereals for breakfast, lunch and supper.

County W.C.T.U. To Meet at 'Y' Next Week

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Annual reports and election, the president's message and a report of the national convention are the anticipated highlights of the annual convention of the Allegheny County Women's Christian Temperance Union, which is set for Tuesday and Wednesday of next week at the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Elizabeth J. Gibson, county president, will call the convention to order at 10 o'clock and will give her message at 11 o'clock. A luncheon for the official board will follow the quiet hour and noontide prayer. The election will take place Tuesday afternoon and at the same session Mrs. H. B. Littell will report the Seattle convention and Mrs. M. A. Brennan will sing.

Tuesday evening will be given over to a young people's rally with devotions under the direction of the Rev. Harold Ockenga. Mrs. J. J. Walker will supervise the gold medal oratorical contest and Count Cruea, of Mt. Lebanon, will represent the Allied Youth of America and Miss Virginia Sleppy the Young People's Branch. Music will consist of duets by Mrs. Albert C. Humes and Miss Frances McCaslin, Mrs. Anna King accompanying.

A memorial service will be one of Wednesday morning's features and that afternoon there will be the conclusion of the directors' reports, begun in the morning. The new presidents will be introduced, also.

Club to Fete Westminster Students

The Westminster College Women's Club will entertain at a tea on Saturday afternoon honoring the students who will enter Westminster this fall. The tea is to be held at the home of the women's dean, Miss Mary E. Turner, and her sister, Miss Laura B. Turner, Willian Penn Highway and Graham boulevard, from 2 until 5 o'clock.

Other Westminster students residing in this district will assist in receiving the new students and their mothers who have also been invited. Mrs. H. H. Donaldson and her committee are to have charge of the tea hour, the aides including Miss Dorothy Nevin, Miss Elizabeth Gilmore, Miss Sylvia Jamison, Mrs. Merle Burke and the 1932 graduates.

Miss Emma Campbell, program chairman, will present a musical program.

Stay-in-School Group Meets On Sept. 22

Plans for the October meeting at which the election will be held are to be made at a meeting of the steering committee of the Allegheny County Stay-in School Association on Thursday morning, September 22, in the Board of Education Building.

* * *

Instead of holding a meeting this month the Western Pennsylvania Dietetic Association will attend the lecture to be given by Dr. Henry Sherman in the William Penn Hotel this evening.

COLLEGE CLUB OPENS NEW HOME SEPT. 24

Saturday, September 24, is the date set for the formal opening of the new College Club. It is to be a tea with music from 2 until 6 in the afternoon, in charge of the social committee, under Mrs. E. W. McCallister.

The reception for the president, Mrs. George M. Swan, will be an event of Friday, October 7, and the regular Friday afternoon programs will begin the following week.

The new club house is rapidly being finished as to furnishing and decoration and all the bedrooms are rented and occupied. Indeed, the club may be said to have moved, although the house is not yet ready for visitors. The old club house has been redecorated and presents its most attractive appearance in years.

East Liberty Women Postpone Club Opening

From her summer home at Chautauqua, word comes from Mrs. Rollins A. Haddock, president of the East Liberty Woman's Club, that the club's scheduled opening has been postponed from Monday until later in the month. The exact date has not yet been settled upon.

Christ Church Mission Groups Meet Tomorrow

To open their season the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church will meet tomorrow afternoon in the home of Miss Carrie and Miss Ella Carnahan, Shady avenue. They will have as honor guest Mrs. Adna Leonard, wife of the new bishop of the Pittsburgh area.

Bradford Woods Club Chairmen to Entertain

Mrs. W. A. Crawford and chairmen of committees will be hostesses in Mrs. Crawford's home tomorrow at luncheon for the Woman's Club of Bradford Woods Community Church. Following luncheon a play entitled "Sewing for the Heathen" will be presented by the program committee.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- BY SALLY MARTIN

Some Pouting Husbands Are Just Like Infants

What'll she do about the big boy's pouts?

He's constantly putting on bigger and better ones, over everything or nothing. For days he won't speak to her, or even eat at the same table with her.

"And I am simply at my wits' ends," she moans. "I have tried everything—humoring him, petting him, reasoning with him, even leaving him—but none of it does any good."

What would you do with a guy like that?

And what ails him? He's old enough to be grown up—

But is he?

Dear Sally:

I am coming to you for advice before what's on my mind drives me to distraction. No amount of figuring on my part has helped me. Maybe what you can tell me will clear things up some. It seems to have worked for others.

The problem is my husband, and what to do with a man with a disposition like his is beyond me.

Over nothing at all he gets peeved and decides not to talk to me. Sometimes it goes on like this for weeks at a time. He leaves in the morning, comes home, reads the papers and goes to bed, all without even a word. Once in a while he goes out, alone; but even when he is angry like this he will insist that I fulfill all my obligations as his wife.

A week ago Monday he stopped talking to me over something so trivial that it hardly deserves mention. He is so set on staying angry that he won't eat when I do, and you can imagine how much I can eat under such circumstances. I am actually losing weight over it.

GETTING DESPERATE

I have tried to humor him, to pet him, to reason with him, to let him alone. I even left him, once. None of these things have worked out much in my favor. He is too stubborn to give in, even if he is wrong. Even his mother, brother and boy pal have called him down for acting this way, but it doesn't do any good.

I know I shouldn't let it bother me, as I ought to be used to it by now, but I do. I wish I could do something to wake him up. I am almost desperate.

We have a darling daughter—we've been married about six years—and we are both crazy about her. I dread the thought that she is getting old enough to realize what is happening between me and her father. He is 28 and I am 25. What on earth ails him?

What would you do with him? Oh, please try to realize my situation and help me. I will be looking for your answer.

MRS. R. F. E.

STILL AN INFANT

What would I do with him?

Well, personally, I'd be tempted to wham him with a meat ax; but since they arrest folks for murder, the next best thing is to walk out on him, until he agrees to act human.

The next time he puts on one of his little pouting bees, pack your suitcase. Tell him that if you're not good enough to talk to, you're not good enough to hang around where he is—then take your baby and make tracks. And don't have anything to do with him after that until he's ready to act like a man instead of a two-year-old.

For that's what ails him, sister. He has never grown up. He feels grown up, and looks grown up, but he's still just a silly, egotistical infant, determined to have his own way, and to punish you if he can't have it.

A jolt may cure him. It may not. Some people like that can't be cured. But if it doesn't, calling quits will be far better, for both you and that baby of yours, than spending years of misery trying to "humor" such a crybaby.

Guard Wedded Happiness by Ban on Harsh Words, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

When two persons meet, fall in love and marry, there is no one else in the world that they would prefer at that time.

And nothing is more important in their marriage than that they should try to retain that preference for each other always.

In nine cases out of 10 where they do not, it is more because of a series of petty misunderstandings than because of any great vital differences.

Petty quarrels. Petty naggings. Petty criticisms. Making entirely too much of some little misunderstanding. Exaggerating a small thoughtless act into a great injury to pride.

Inflating a slight suspicion with the poisonous gas of wild imagination.

The time to forget and forgive is BEFORE you utter a single harsh word.

Heart Disturbances Easily Determined Now

Great advances have been made in medicine since the discovery of electricity and its application to the wonderful mechanical devices of modern days. The invention of one such instrument, the electro-cardiograph, has made it possible for the physician to determine accurately the condition of the heart. By its use there is gained information which is of the utmost value in treating certain cases of heart disease.

Dr. Copeland

This marvelous instrument records the transmission of impulses through the heart. These impulses influence the rate, action and force of the heart. The device will reveal certain changes which could not be detected in any other manner.

For example, there is a certain heart disturbance known as "heart block." In this disorder the impulses arising in the upper chambers of the heart do not reach the lower chambers of the heart within the normal time. The impulses are delayed and cause an irregular action of the heart. When this disturbance is neglected serious damage may be done to this vital organ. It is quickly detected by the electro-cardiograph.

The electro-cardiograph will often disclose the reason for certain vague discomforts of the heart that cannot be determined by a simple examination. It is of tremendous value in connection with the information obtained from the history of the case and from a careful physical examination of the afflicted person.

Of course it is not used in treating heart disorders. But the treatment can be more accurately determined after the study of the electro-cardiogram, the picture made by the electro-cardiograph.

The manner in which the electro-cardiogram is made is simple. Whenever a muscle contracts, an electrical change is produced. The heart is a muscle that contracts and pumps the blood through the body. The electrical current generated by the heart may be recorded by connecting a very sensitive instrument for measuring "electrical energy," called the "galvanometer," to the extremities of the body. The connections are made to both arms; to the right arm and left leg; or to the left arm and right leg.

The instrument is attached to a sensitive plate and actual photographs are made of the various contractions of the heart. These are studied and compared with the pictures of a normally acting heart. Any alteration is quickly recognized and the actual site of the disorder is determined.

It is a safe and painless procedure. No harm can result from this examination. If you have been advised to have an electro-cardiogram do not delay having it made. It will enable your doctor to thoroughly understand your case. Take advantage of all the advances that have been made by modern medical science.

This method of examination is an accurate and scientific contribution that has enabled medical science to recognize and overcome many serious heart ailments. I am telling you about it because every such device is helpful towards wiping out disease.

Answers to Health Queries

I. Q.—What causes me to take cold every time I go out?

A.—Try to build up the general health and you will be less susceptible to colds. Take cod liver oil as a general tonic.

H. M. P. Q.—I am 32 years old and 5 feet 4 inches tall. How much should I weigh? Have a small lump on my right breast about the size of a pea, which has been there for about eight years. It has never enlarged. Should I consult a doctor?

A.—Your weight should be 132 pounds. You should consult a surgeon.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

To sport the chic coiffure, ears must be out in the open. It would seem now as if ears were designed for the purpose of holding back side locks. Since they are performing a part in the play called pulchritude they must be neatly powdered, touched with rouge, dabbed with a drop or two of perfume. If they have expanded beyond fastidious proportions, they can be partially draped over with hirsute lamberquins.

Large swansdown powder fluffs belong in the beauty kit. They dip into scented talcum, are patted over the body after the bath. Perfumes last longer when they come in contact with warm flesh, don't do a die-away as they do when poured on fabrics. Balls of absorbent cotton kept in a glass jar are convenient for the application of complexion powder, an improvement on the old powder pad that seldom conforms to sanitary laws.

Red-headed gals will be interested in a new shade of rouge that is designed especially for them. It is a red that almost drifts into brown—frightfully bewitching when the complexion is fair and the hair a lovely auburn. Best not to use cheek rouge with it. Nor will eye shadows make friends with this lipstick that makes you think of Tahiti beauties, even if you never saw any.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Wedding Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband's cousin is to be married very soon at her home in another state. I do not know if it will be possible for us to attend. Will you kindly let me know the proper time to send the gift if we are to be present or if we do not attend the wedding?

2. How should a person be introduced to a group of people?

S.

1. Whether or not you plan to attend the wedding, you should send your gift, say, about two weeks before the date of the wedding. Or at least a week before, if two weeks is perhaps impossible. But whether you go or not, send your gift. It is usually most convenient to have it sent from the shop in which you buy it. Most of these shops now have especially attractive ways of packaging wedding gifts and all in all, it is the safest and most convenient way of sending them.

2. When we are introducing one person to a group of people, we should make the introduction form as complete in each case as it needs to be without so much repetition that the phrasing of the form becomes monotonous.

A woman is first introduced to the other women present, and then the men are presented to her. A man also is, of course, first presented to the women, and then introduced to the other men. When women are introduced to women, or men are introduced to men, we may, if we wish, mention only the names. But when men are presented to women, we may use the polite and charming form: "Mrs. Matthewson, may I present Mr. Williams?"

Hope Chest

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. To settle an argument, please tell me whose place it is to buy a hope chest, the man's or the girl's?

2. Also, is this usually given before the engagement ring?

S.

1. Unless the man suggests that he would like to present the hope chest to his fiancee, the girl herself buys it.

2. It is usually given after the engagement ring has been given.

Household Hints

Spices tied in muslin and boiled in vinegar, and then removed, make a "tidier" pickle.

Linoleum will last much longer if occasionally rubbed over with linseed oil.

To keep butter firm in hot weather, fill a large basin with cold water, put in as much kitchen salt as the water will dissolve, then fold the butter in greaseproof paper and drop it in. Stand the basin in a cool place.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Minimum Bidders

A few years ago in the early days of Contract, it was the practice to open with a Forcing bid of two on hands too weak to justify this bid, which requires a hand of sufficient strength to assure game, even though partner holds little or no honor strength, but some slight distributional values. Nowadays, the fashion in certain circles has gone to the opposite extreme, and some New York players almost boast of the fact that they rarely, if ever, open with a Forcing bid of two in a suit. In this, as in other matters, the correct course is neither extreme. Forcing Opening bids should be made on hands in which game is a near certainty, regardless of partner's holding. When one holds practically a monopoly of the honor-trick strength, it is flirting with fate to anticipate that partner will be able to keep the bidding open, and there is no assurance whatever that the opponents will be kind enough to do so.

The hand below was dealt and played in a recent team-of-four match in New York City.

North—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

At one table, where a prominent apostle of the school of minimum bidding sat, the Opening bid was one diamond, which was passed by every player, and the Declarer had the dubious satisfaction of making his contract with two overtricks.

At the other table, the North player, using the Approach-Forcing System, correctly opened with a bid of two diamonds. To this South, after East's pass, responded with two notrump, and North ended the contracting with three notrump, which was made.

The Opening lead was a heart, and while playing the hands on the Double Dummy basis—that is, as though all were exposed—the contract of three notrump could have been defeated one trick. A player has a right to assume the average distribution and the average play.

When the heart is led, the Queen is played, and the method of beating the contract would be for East to refuse to win with his King. The Declarer then could in no way enter his hand to cash the fourth spade and heart for the game-going tricks. This play, however, would practically require East to have knowledge of the location of all the cards at the table. North's hand, while extremely weak in distributional values, has too great honor strength to risk a pass by his partner. It should, therefore, unquestionably be opened with a Forcing bid of two in a suit.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

North deals and bids one diamond. Should East bid two diamonds with the following hand?

♠ K 3 2 ♡ 8 6 5 ◇ A K ♣ A K J 8 5

Answer: No. A bid of two diamonds over opponent's one diamond is Forcing to game, and this bid should not be made on a hand which cannot guarantee game. The proper bid is either a Double or a Jump Overcall of three clubs.

Loses 18 Pounds of Ugly Fat In 2 Short Weeks

Mrs. Frank Cole

Reduces Bust 4 Inches
Reduces Hips 3½ Inches
Wears Dresses 4 Sizes Smaller

New Battle Creek Reducing Treatment Takes Off a Pound a Day—on a Full Stomach! Quick Loss of Weight Guaranteed—or No Cost

"I am so grateful for what BonKora has done for me that I want to shout it from the housetops. I have already lost 18 pounds in 2 weeks, taking only 2 bottles. Have reduced from 186 pounds to 168. I have lost 4 inches in bust and 3½ inches in hips. I used to wear 42 dresses; now I wear 38. My indigestion and headaches are gone too. I feel fine, never tired any more. My friends ask me what I have done for myself. I tell them I owe it all to BonKora."

602 N. Jefferson Ave., Saginaw, Mich. Mrs Frank Cole

How Many Pounds Would You Like to Lose Next Week?

5 pounds? 7 pounds? More? How many pounds would you like to lose altogether? 5 pounds? 20 pounds? 30 pounds? More? Then use BonKora, the new Battle Creek Reducing Treatment.

Don't despair if other methods have failed. Some people write that they had tried baths, exercises, diets, medicines—all in vain. They thought they had some kind of fat that couldn't be reduced. Then the BonKora Treatment took off a pound a day; 10 to 20 pounds in 3 weeks. One woman lost 41 pounds in 5 weeks. Another lost 57 pounds.

Some who were fat only in spots, saw these ugly bunches of fat go while retaining their desired lines elsewhere. Others, fat all over, reduced everywhere. Get rid of heavy chins, bulky shoulders, busts, waists, and limbs.

There are no dangerous drugs in BonKora. In fact, this treatment builds health while reducing fat the quickest way. Avoids wrinkles or folds as you get thin. Users say it made them look years younger. Try BonKora on money-back guarantee shown below. Your fat must go quick, or no cost. You don't risk a penny. So start treatment today.

Why "3-stage" Treatment Takes Off Pounds So Quick

BonKora Treatment takes off fat the new "3-stage" way. Triple action; triple results. That is also why it reduces fat when other methods have failed. All this is explained in BonKora package. You will understand why this treatment reduces fat and wish you had known of it before.

Don't starve. Never have a hungry moment. Just take a little BonKora daily to help body function properly and to remove heavy wastes and moisture from fatty tissues. And EAT BIG MEALS of the tasty food combinations explained in BonKora package. Reduce faster or slower, as you wish, as shown in directions. But don't get too thin. Stop reducing when you reach the normal and healthiest weight. Then hold your new slender figure.

The Fat Girl Loses Out, She Looks Older. The Wise Girl Loses Fat and Looks Younger.

PEOPLE EVERYWHERE WRITE LETTERS LIKE THESE

What BonKora Treatment has done for these people it should do for you. If you want to lose fat slowly, you can regulate the speed. Some of these writers who were very much over-weight reduced hurriedly. Others took it more gradually. These testimonials are genuine. We'll show originals to any one interested. They were written in gratitude by users of BonKora, delighted at quickly losing their ugly fat.

"I saw BonKora advertised and thought I would give it a trial. The first bottle took off 13 pounds. I am still taking it and reducing in weight all the time."—Miss H. Mae Stapp, Schnecksville, Pa.

Loses 28 Pounds in 4 Weeks

"I tried BonKora after another remedy did no good. It does not make you sick and you lose all the time. I have taken four bottles, lost 28 pounds and feel years younger."—Mrs. Edna Beard, 603 Erie Avenue, Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Loses 40 Pounds in 4 Weeks

"I lost 40 pounds in about four weeks. Took just four bottles of BonKora. I sleep better, feel like a new person. I recommend BonKora for reducing and for making one feel younger again."—Mrs. F. Rudolph, 4527 Park Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Loses 57 Pounds. Dresses Smaller

"I have lost 57 pounds taking BonKora. I wear dresses six sizes smaller. It improved my health, too. My dizzy spells and constipation have gone. I now feel full of pep."—Mrs. Mary E. Edwards, 822 Philadelphia Blvd., Flint, Michigan.

PHYSICAL LAWS OF UNIVERSE FATHOMED

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 8.—Weaving into an unified pattern the whole mighty universe and the incredibly small atom, with forces of attraction and repulsion, and yardsticks of the radius of space, Sir Arthur S. Eddington fathomed the fundamental laws of the physical universe here.

Speaking before the International Astronomical Union session at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology on "The Expanding Universe," the far-famed British astronomer of Cambridge University (England) vividly sketched the growth of relativity theory and its application to the origin, structure and present and future of the universe.

An interview also was granted by him to this writer, to bring out certain of his viewpoints with special subtlety.

RELATIVITY VIEWS

Sir Arthur said that the modern relativistic view of the universe had been developed by Einstein, and also De Sitter, of Holland; Abbe Lemaitre, of Belgium, and Dr. En, of India, on the theoretical side.

But the astronomical facts concerning the receding nebulae, the key to theories, have been gathered by American astronomers, Slipher, Hubble and Humason.

Nor did he omit to point out mathematical work of Hertzsprung, of Denmark; Levi Civita, of Italy, and of Count de Broglie, of France. What then is this new-fangled universe, shaped by the world's foremost scientific minds?

Sir Arthur said:

"Since De Sitter's first hint in 1917 that the universe was expanding, observations have confirmed it. The remote spiral nebulae appear to be running away from us, and their velocity increases in proportion to distance. They are not avoiding us; every one of the nebulae has the same experience—they are all running away from one another. That is, the universe is expanding, doubling itself in 1,300 million years, at the present rate.

ABOLISH INFINITY

"In 1915, Einstein just abolished infinity. He inserted a mathematical term in his new law of gravitation, which had the effect of making space at great distances bend round and close up, so that by going right on you can get back to your starting point.

"The term that Einstein added is called the cosmic term, and involves a cosmic constant. It is a force of repulsion, directly proportional to the distance."

Sir Arthur gives human consciousness the very first place in the scheme of ultimate reality. He said:

"The foundation of the material universe lies in the consciousness or the experience of the conscious beings. The physical world is an abstraction made by our consciousness for reality, which includes both consciousness and the aspect which appears as the physical."

East End Woman Robbed by Gypsy

Squirrel Hill police today were searching for a Gypsy fortune teller who robbed Minnie Minhaer, an employe in the home of Edgar Lewin, 5800 Aylesboro avenue, of $90 late yesterday.

The cash disappeared from a stocking which the Gypsy "blessed," according to police report. When the Gypsy left the maid discovered that the money had been stolen and the stocking filled with paper clippings.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a sick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Threatens to Turn His Pigs Loose Around Capitol

ST. PAUL, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—There'll be pigs wallowing on the state house lawn unless Gov. F. B. Olson does something to curb Minnesota's maurading deer.

That was the threat of Charles B. Ott, farmer, who appeared before the executive and complained deer from the state refuge invaded his truck garden, devouring rutabagas and whatnot. He shouted:

"If it isn't stopped I'll turn my pigs loose around the capitol building!"

Gov. Olsen referred the complaint to the state game and fish department.

MANY SEEKING HOME LOANS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Opening of the 12 home loan banks still is a month off, but already the federal directing board is scanning thousands of applications for direct loans.

The volume of requests from home owners was described today by Chairman Franklin W. Fort as a "deluge." But he said all are receiving attention and where the mortgage collateral appears sound the board is endeavoring to arrange the desired refinancing before the scheduled opening of its regional banks October 15.

The procedure is to forward such applications to lending organizations in the various states. They go to building and loan association clearing houses where these organizations exist, and the board is encouraging their creation throughout the country.

MILLIKAN FLIER SAFE IN NORTH

CORMORANT LAKE, Man., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Flying Officer R. G. Gordon, who is piloting the "flying laboratory" of Dr. Robert Millikan, noted California physicist, in the investigation of cosmic rays Dr. Millikan is making here, planned to make the last flight into the high altitudes today.

Gordon, for whose fate some concern was felt yesterday when he failed to return from a flight undertaken the day before, turned up safely last night. He had flown for nearly an hour at a height of 21,000 feet and nearly exhausted his fuel supply. A forced landing was made 300 miles north of here and the plane stuck on a sand bar.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Dispatches from Colima today said a strong earthquake shock was felt there last night. The quake was recorded on instruments here.

RECTOR ROUTED FROM FAIR

BLACKPOOL, England, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The Rev. Harold Davidson, the rector recently convicted of immorality by a church tribunal, fled from the law yesterday amid the cheers of the crowd at a country fair.

The incident came during the rector of Stiffkey's second brush with officers. At first the police charged him with "aiding and abetting the obstruction of a foot path" by sitting in a barrel on exhibition at 3 cents a look.

The charge was dropped when his manager promised to end his contract with the rector. Davidson again dared the law's disapproval when the manager exhibited him within a building. Again the roadway became impassable.

When the holiday-makers collected in numbers, the pressure on the door was so great police intervened to disperse the crowd. The rector and his manager fled.

Flat Taxi Charges To Airports Fought

Attacking the flat rates of the Yellow and Green taxicab companies between downtown and Bettis Field and the County Airport as "wholly for the purpose of destroying my business," Andy Garavini, operator of for-hire automobiles in William Penn way, yesterday filed a supplemental complaint with the Public Service Commission protesting the 50-cent charge.

He has asked an early hearing on the complaint.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

ATTILA—"THE SCOURGE OF GOD"

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great painter, Harvey Dunn . . . inspired by the barbaric cruelty of Asia's most dreaded plunderer . . . "the grass could not grow where his horse had passed"... 433-453 A.D.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"

That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

Tip

A year ago I might have shelved my pride
And sought your rooms and made a lasting truce;
But months have fled and now I stand aside
And laugh to scorn each old and shop-worn ruse.
You will not have me—will not let me go,
And take delight in marking me the fool;
And, oh, there was a time you mattered so
That all my anger quickly learned to cool.

But while you thought me safely in my lair
I wandered out and blinked in mild surprise;
I never dreamed so many maids were fair,
With invitations written in their eyes.

Oh, I'd advise a sturdy lock and key,
In case you land another lad like me!

For Women Only

From Regina Crewe, the moom pitchur oracle, comes the quip about the plump person who made up her mind to reduce. She phoned a friend who had found some relief from Mme. Sylvia, who has removed a mass of tonnage from the hips of several Hollywood stars.

"What does she charge?" asked the plump one.

"Well," was the reply, "Sylvia gets from fifty to one hundred dollars a treatment, it all depends. She might charge you less for a series."

There was a brief pause, followed by:

"Never mind, thank you. I've lost 10 pounds already!"

Oop!

According to the literati pages, "Jake Rothschild, a Brooklyn columnist, is doing a new book called 'Loudmouth.' It's about a newspaperman."

Autobiography?

System

At the shore the other afternoon a dice-shooter cornered Al Wohlman, better known as the lad who once played the horses and beat them for all he had.

"I got a new system," said the dice lad, "a sure way to win. You merely keep doubling up on the first five passes."

"I catch on," was the retort indifferent, "and then you beat your brains out!"

Incidentally

Up at the Spa (Saratoga to you!) where for almost the entire August month we tried the hardest way to make an easy living—we picked up this merciless pepigram:

"You can always beat a race—but you cannot beat the races!"

The Tragedy of Love

Fannie Brice was in the old country recently, holidaying for several months. When she was on the high seas New York-bound the other week-end, she cabled her husband, Billy Rose:

"Am coming back on the Vulcania. A 10-day boat. Miss you darling."

"Why not row back," he caustically cabled, "that takes 11 days!"

Quiteso, Quiteso

"Good old Jimmy," nifties Izzy Elinson, "before leaving he gave us all McKee to the city."

Street Scene

You probably observed him and his car—parked in front of the Broadway headquarters of the auto firm that sold him the machine. It has been parked there an hour every night for over a week now, and he hopes to embarrass the company into giving him a new and better car—or settle a huge chunk to have him cease humiliating them.

The machine features the following hand-painted cracks:

"This is a lemon. It's lousy! I paid $400 for repairs and it won't go yet!"

We talked with the aggrieved owner. He explained that so long as he finds a new spot every hour the law cannot arrest him—unless it be for disorderly conduct. He is very bitter about the treatment accorded him, and he admitted that he considers their car the ace of them all, but this time he drew a dud, and he will shame them into some money. However, he added, if he gets his coin back he will buy another machine—from them!

"I know," he told us, "that what I'm doing is the lowest thing any person could do."

We know some people who agree with him. They are the salesmen in those motor car firms where he parks when the law makes him move from in front of the shop he uses for his target.

By Way of Report

"Whatever became of that old gag that went: 'I'll tal you in two woids—Im—Possible.'"

"It's now in Andy Clyde's latest short—'His Royal Shyness.'"

Heheheh

And William J. Collins spells it Amerthicia.

Form of Criticism

A group of flip quippers were gagging about the seven lively arts again last night. Music came up.

"Do you think," growled one of them, "that Gershwin's music will be played 50 years from now?"

"Yes," replied another, "if Gershwin is alive!"

Add Sillies

Blossom Seeley's favorite person, Benny Fields, relays the one about the near-sighted football player.

BEHIND SCENES -:- Gossip About Events of Amusement Realm -:- SHOW CHATTER

Elder Eddie Foy as Fire Hero Is Brought to Mind By Eddie Junior

By GEORGE SEIBEL

The realistic theater fire shown in the German film, "Barcarolle" this week in the Cinema, and the coming of Eddie Foy, Jr., to the Nixon next week in "Humpty Dumpty," recall some tragic climaxes in stage history. There isn't much written about theater fires, because stage people like to have audiences forget them.

During Kate Claxton's career, while playing "The Two Orphans" for about 20 years, many thousands of playgoers would not go to see her, because the Brooklyn Theater fire in 1876, which cost 300 lives, had raised the suspicion of a "hoodoo," as they then called a "jinx." The Iroquois Theater fire in Chicago, in which Eddie Foy, Sr., was the hero, cost the theaters in the United States millions of dollars.

Mr. Seibel

It is surprising that there were not scores of terrible disasters in early days. They even used to have exhibitions of fireworks on the stage in New York, with inflammable scenery and flimsy costumes in frame buildings.

THE RICHMOND DISASTER

But the first great catastrophe occurred in Richmond, Va., the day after Christmas, 1811. The famous comedian, Thomas Placide, appeared in a new pantomime. Some scenery caught fire, and sparks began to fall. Many of the audience thought it was part of the performance and did not stir; others, panic-stricken, rushed for the exits. People in the boxes were cut off; some leaped from windows and were crushed to death; 71 victims perished in the flames, including the newly elected Governor of the state.

A law was passed forbidding all amusements for four years, and many good people thought the fire was Heaven's punishment upon sinful frivolity. That theater was never rebuilt, and a few weeks ago I was in the Memorial Church erected on the site. The grandfather of Kate Claxton, an actor in the company, became a clergyman.

THE IROQUOIS FIRE

The Iroquois Theater fire also occurred during the Christmas season, in 1903. A spectacular piece called "Mr. Bluebeard" was being presented. There was a flying ballet which floated in the air like thistledown. In one tableau, "The Triumph of the Fan," lace and feather fans appeared from everywhere, illuminated with colored electric bulbs.

Some of the fans had caught fire in Cleveland, the week before, but nobody thought of danger when "Mr. Bluebeard" opened the magnificent new Chicago theater, advertised as the most beautiful in the country. Every performance was jammed; Eddie Foy couldn't get passes for his own family, and took along one little boy, Bryan, to stow him in some corner where he could see the show.

The theater seated about 1,600, but it is believed there were over 2,000 in the house during the afternoon that resulted in the fire. To this must be added the actors, chorines, ballets and stagehands.

In 10 minutes 602 lives went out.

EDDIE FOY THE HERO

Just before Eddie Foy was to come on with his comic elephant, during a dance number called "In the Pale Moonlight," an electric globe high up on one side of the stage blew out its fuse.

Gauzy draperies caught fire; there were no extinguishers; there was not even an alarm box on the stage, and someone had to run down to the next block to turn in an alarm. The dancers bravely kept on dancing, to quiet the audience, but some fool had yelled "Fire!" and everybody went mad.

Eddie Foy found his boy, Bryan, put him in charge of a man to take him out, and rushed out on the stage. He called to the orchestra leader to "Play! Start an overture—anything! But play!" A few musicians, especially a fat German violinist, stuck nobly. Then Foy addressed the audience, speaking slowly to calm them. "No danger! Take it easy! Go slow, people! You'll get out!"

FIDDLER KEPT PLAYING

The trolley wire for the flying ballet kept the asbestos curtain from coming down; the draught from back stage blew the blaze into the theater. The fat little German fiddler was still fiddling away furiously, but alone; then the roar of the flames, and the roar of the mob, and "a great ball of fire" which singed Foy's wig

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"PERHAPS IT would be more appropriate," writes "Nocos," of Chicago, "if I sent this piece to Ripley. Your column will permit greater elaboration, however. And knowing that you have a great fondness for the longer stories, I present you with this one out of the kindness of my heart. I imagine you will embrace it fondly.

"I have charge of an apartment hotel in this city. My tenants, it goes without saying, are of all types and classes. In these days of uncertain conditions, I am having closer dealings with them than at any other time in my experience. They come to me with all sorts of problems, and I am supposed to understand them all and so deal out the wisdom of a Solomon.

"A short time ago, the wife of one of my tenants marched into my office in the loop. She had come, she told me, for advice and assistance. The tears rolled from her eyes as she unfolded her tale of woe.

"For a long time, it seems, she and her husband had been unable to earn any money. They were down to their last $200, and that was slowly melting away. Another tenant, a purveyer of good jokes and bad liquor by profession, heard about their plight. And he come to them with a proposition.

"They would, he said, open a beer flat in the hotel and thereby earn no less than $200 in cash every month. He would make all arrangements with the cops and they would never be bothered. The only thing necessary was the small sum of $300.

"Husband and wife talked it over, and both agreed that it sounded excellent. Whereupon an agreement was drawn and signed, and the huband turned $150 of the little cash he had left over to the 'medicine man.' The latter gentleman, of course, was supposed to add a like amount from his pocket and open up the business.

"More and better tears dropped from the lady's eyes.

"'That was almost a month ago,' she sobbed, 'and the place was never opened. He kept stalling us from day to day, until we finally grew suspicious. We explained that the $150 stood between us and starvation, and begged him to return our money to us.

"'And do you know what he did? He laughed at us! At first, he told us that there would only be a slight delay. But now he tells us openly that he has no intention of opening a place.

"'Oh, this is terrible. He seemed to be such a nice man, but he changed so terribly once he had our money. You know him, and you have charge of the building. Can't you do something to help us get our money back? Can't you? We need it so badly.

"She was very naive about the thing, as you can see. It meant nothing to her that she was going to open a speakeasy in my building, and that I could have fallen into serious trouble.

"I looked at her. She was a charming blonde in her early thirties. That helped me like her. Then, too, I had drunk some of that particular bootlegger's vile stuff. And when I thought of the headaches I had suffered, I made up my mind immediately.

"'Yes,' I replied, 'I'll do the best I can for you. I can't promise that I'll get your money back, but I'll at least make an effort. Bring your husband and that signed agreement to this office tomorrow at 10 in the morning. And please stop crying.'

"They both arrived the next day at the appointed hour. I'd had a hunch about any man who would fall for such a silly racket, and I wasn't disappointed. The husband proved to be a man in his late forties, and he looked as though he didn't belong to this world.

"He had a strange, faraway look about him. You'd take him for a dreamer of some sort, wandering soul who certainly required a guardian to guide him through the mazes of this advanced civilization.

"'Have you got that agreement with you?' I asked.

"The soul of courtesy, he asserted that he had. He fumbled through his pockets, and finally produced it with an apology for having kept me waiting. I read the agreement, and if it hadn't been so sad, I would have laughed out loud. For the agreement stated that each man had given the other $150!

"'Who wrote out this masterpiece?' I asked.

"'I did,' replied the husband.

"'I thought so,' I couldn't help snapping back. 'And while I don't want to hurt your feelings, I must tell you that it's a pretty brutal affair. There's but one slim chance that you'll get your money back.

"'Since he acknowledged before a witness that he took this money from you, tell him that your attorney has advised you that his act constituted fraud. And tell him that if he doesn't return the money in three years, you'll procure a warrant for his arrest. That might do some good.'

"Husband and wife thanked me warmly and prepared to leave. I watched the man closely and wondered what type of work he engaged in when he had a job. Just as they reached the door, I shot my question.

"'By the way, sir,' I cried, 'I'm a trifle curious about you. What business are you in?'

"'Didn't you know?' he replied. 'I'm a character analyst!'" . . .

"DEAR MARK:" writes J. Milton Josefsberg. "The silly you recently printed about the movie-struck girl brings to mind a similar story:

"For six months, Mr. Green heard Mrs. Green comparing him with her favorite movie heroes. He didn't care how often she went to pictures or how much she raved about him. But when she insisted on telling him that he should make an effort to resemble the stars of the screen he began to grow angry.

"'Look here, gal,' he growled. 'I'm getting tired of this. You've bawled me out for not wearing my hair like Donald Colman, my mustache like Adolph Menjou, my nose like Victor McLaglan, and goodness knows what else.

"'You've gotta cut it out because I'm a man that isn't going to stand it much longer. When you talk to me hereafter, you leave those picture guys out of the conversation.'

"No use. Mrs. Green came home the following night and tossed her pocketbook on the sofa. She looked at her spouse.

"'Oh, Gus,' she sighed, 'if you only had different teeth. Just like Clark Gable, for instance.'

"That was as far as she reached. Mr. Green swung wildly and parked a left hook on her chin. She dropped to the floor—and Mr. Green was panic-stricken. This was good for a divorce, and Mr. Green didn't want a divorce. He was funny that way.

"He dropped to his knees. He lifted her head and murmured his apologies. What would she say when she came to? Would she ever forgive him?

"Suddenly she sighed. She opened her eyes. She looked up.

"'Oh, darling,' she cried, 'that was wonderful. Just like Jimmy Cagney!'" . . .

drove him as the last man off the stage. The clown was the hero of that tragedy.

That fire caused 40 road companies to close their season, and about 15,000 people working in theaters were idle for months. That's how audiences are—and how the human race is constituted.

Nearly all improvements and safety devices in theaters have been the result of disasters. The oldest on record was when the wooden bleachers of a theater in the market-place of Athens collapsed in the seventieth Olympiad, about 499 B. C. There was a dramatic contest between Aeschylus, "Father of Tragedy," Choerilus, friend of Herodotus, "Father of History," and Pratinas, "Father of Farce." The collapse of the seats led to building theaters into hillsides, creating the Greek amphitheaters like that of Dionysus at Athens. So every disaster has led to improvements until theaters are now almost as safe as homes. There are a thousand chances of accident in your car while going, to one chance of peril in your orchestra seat.

Fans Given Peep Behind Scenes

The vogue for Hollywood pictures has been capitalized by Ralph Staub, director of Columbia's Screen Snapshots in his most recent picture, "How Movies Are Made." This short feature will take audiences through a studio, completely following the course a story idea pursues until it reaches the screen. It will show the uninitiated how scenarios are prepared, the building of sets, makeup, photography, sound mechanism and the laboratory work.

Zasu Changes Stripes

Her first entrance in a scene now is a signal for mirth!

Zasu Pitts is a good example of just how topsy-turvy life can get in Hollywood.

Once hailed as the screen's greatest tragedienne, by no less an authority than Erich von Stroheim, himself an outstanding director and actor, she is rapidly becoming one of the screen's greatest comediennes.

As you very probably know, the name Zasu comes from the fond wish of two aunts to have her named for them. One aunt was Eliza and the other was Susan. The family compromised by making it Zasu from the last part of Eliza and the first part of Susan.

Greasepaint Gives Way to Lights

Modern motion picture makeup is becoming less a matter of greasepaint than of electric light. Eyes may be darkened and hair lightened without the use of pigment or peroxide.

What Do You Know About

STAMP COLLECTING?

Do you know that there are 5,000,000 Stamp Collectors—young and old, men and women, rich and poor—in the United States?

Do you know that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and President Hoover are both ardent Stamp Collectors? Do you know that Stamp Collecting is the fastest-growing hobby and one of the most interesting studies in the world?

Does it occur to you that postage stamps are works of art, classics in engraving, and that the pictures on stamps indelibly illustrate people, events and countries of importance?—that they give you facts about geography, history, science, industry, adventure and discovery?

Do you know that the United States has issued twelve airmail stamps since 1918 and that next month a new 8-cent airmail stamp will be released to conform with the new airmail rate of postage?

Do you know that there will be two new United States 3-cent stamps commemorative of William Penn and Daniel Webster issued next month?

What is a cachet? Yes, this is the newest fad in stamp collecting. The collecting of cachets is sweeping the country like wildfire. Whether or not you are a stamp collector, you will be interested in this fascinating subject. There is a column for stamp collectors in the Sun-Telegraph every Sunday . . . and next Sunday you will be given the facts regarding several of the questions asked in this announcement, and also a list of dates for the new cachets. Sunday you will also be told how you can be among the very first to get the new Daniel Webster and William Penn stamps—long before they go on sale at the Pittsburgh Postoffice. And you will also be told how you can get a membership card for the Sunday Sun-Telegraph Stamp Collectors, which will entitle you to correspond with this club and get authentic information about stamps you want to know about.

And, by the way, if you don't boast of a hobby, try stamp collecting—it is fascinating, interesting and instructive.

OHIO SHOWBOAT SINKS, 5 FLEE

CINCINNATI, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—A showboat that once proudly plied the Ohio River between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh sank ignominiously in the Licking River early today, its hull gnawed into holes by rats.

The boat was the Valley, owned by Harry Hart. He, his wife, their child and his parents, were sleeping aboard when the boat listed and then sank at its moorings, but all five escaped.

Hart said he and his family had operated the showboat for years, but had temporarily given up their tours and had been using the craft only as living quarters.

The Valley is not known by the United States Steamboat Inspection Service here, nor could it be recalled by rivermen.

Missing Attorney Thought Sea Victim

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Police expressed the opinion today that James G. Heltzel, missing Portland, Ore., attorney and former member of the Oregon State Legislature, may have fallen overboard while en route here aboard the steamer Admiral Farragut.

When the boat docked here last Friday, Miss Hazelle Gearhart, Heltzel's secretary, vacationing here, visited the boat and discovered he was missing. His baggage was untouched, and his hat was found in the smoking room.

Roosevelt Attends Trooper's Wedding

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—With Gov. Roosevelt as one of the guests, Sergt. Earl Miller, of the New York State Police, former escort to Mr. Roosevelt, and Miss Ruth Taylor Bellinger, of Endicott, were married here today. The Rev. Ralph Thorn, of the Hyde Park Methodist Episcopal Church, was the minister for the ceremony.

Store Bandits Give Victim First Aid

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Two robbers, who administered first aid to their victim after shooting him, were sought by police today. One of the pair fired a bullet at John Hagopian, fruit store proprietor, before rifling his cash drawer of $100. The bullet, grazing his scalp, stunned Hagopian, but the bandits paused to revive him before fleeing.

Wife Meets Mollison, Reaching Cherbourg

CHERBOURG, France, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—J. A. Mollison, who recently flew from Ireland to New York, arrived here today on the liner Empress of Britain.

He was met by his wife, Amy Johnson, also a noted British long-distance flier. She flew here from England to accompany her husband home aboard the ship.

FORMER MAYOR ACCUSED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—An aged woman's whispered statement, "Billy did it," today formed the basis for a charge of assault with intent to kill against former Mayor William G. Reese, 48.

From her hospital bed, Mrs. Anna Washok, 77, murmured the words as police prepared to release Reese in the belief the woman was injured in a fall from a chair she was using while hanging curtains.

Mrs. Washok, recovering consciousness late yesterday, signed an affidavit outlining the incidents on which authorities based the formal charge. Reese, pleaded not guilty to the charge.

He explained to officials, they said, that when he went to Mrs. Washok's home Tuesday he found the door locked and heard the woman moaning for help. He said he broke through the front door but that Mrs. Washok meanwhile had gone out the back way, where a neighbor said she saw her stumbling helplessly as Reese came back out the front door.

"Is My Face Red!" said the Lobster. And we add, "Is that Lobster delicious!"

GOVERNOR LIKELY TO VETO POOR BOARD BONDS

POLITICS

One-Term-for-Mayor Law Being Discussed

By MARK SHIELDS

There is a story going the rounds of Pittsburgh politics that the next session of the Legislature will be asked to pass a law preventing a Pittsburgh mayor from succeeding himself. The law once so read, but was repealed seven years ago that former Mayor William A. Magee might have a second successive term had he been able to make the grade.

Mr. Shields

It is history that he couldn't, and that Mayor Kline in a harmony deal succeeded him, and profited by the law intended to pave the path of Magee, being re-elected in 1929.

Back of this new movement are reported enemies of Mayor Kline who do not wish him to continue in City Hall, and who fear he may be a candidate for a third term. To have any chance of success a law of this nature would require the diligent championship of a large part of the local Republican organization as represented in the Legislature, plus assistance from Philadelphia and other centers where the regulars control.

It would presuppose a split between the Mayor and other organization leaders, but under no conditions could it command a unanimous delegation from Allegheny County, for there are legislators who are faithful to the Mayor first, last and all the time.

* * *

Has Elements of Doubt; Capacity for Danger

Too much credence should not be put in the story, as much as some professional elements would like to block the Mayor. It has its elements of doubt and the process has a capacity for danger. The suggestion has come from no worthwhile source, but only from minor lieutenants of big leaders. These small fry have a zeal which sometimes outruns their judgment, and hot-headedly resent affronts, or fancied affronts, which the real leaders pass by as not worthy of being raised as vital issues.

Picture the condition if such a law should be passed. It would occur in the next session of the Legislature, probably nine months before the expiration of the Mayor's present term. He would be supreme for that time. In that period he could make miserable the existence of those professional politicians responsible for the statute.

He could through the power of his police force cut off the earning power of many. He could ruin such business as they have, and probably would not hesitate to do so. And these gentlemen, as well as the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, have suffered under the depression. They have not laid by a surplus off which they could live during three-quarters of a lean year.

Furthermore, such a period of sitting on the sidelines would handcuff their political power and make it simpler for the Mayor to name his successor did he not run himself. If there is a disposition to fight the Mayor, such as would be evidenced by introduction of a bill such as outlined, it could be done as well in the primary, and with less notice of the intention.

* * *

Sabin Letter Not Entirely Approved by All Signs

It develops that all of the Pittsburgh ladies whose names were signed to the letter to Mrs. Charles Sabin, national chairman of the Woman's Association for Prohibition Reform, did not approve it in toto. It will be recalled that a letter was sent from the Pittsburgh group repudiating Mrs. Sabin's indorsement of Gov. Roosevelt for the presidency. The letter approved President Hoover instead, and explained that the ladies believe unconditional repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment an impossibility.

This last expression was somewhat remarkable, as many of the signers of the letter only a few weeks ago had been most zealous in the campaign for buttons bearing labels expressive of a determination to bring about repeal.

Possibly the lettering on the labels was in disappearing ink, or bore no greater percentage of permanency of sentiment than is permitted under the Volstead act.

* * *

All Are Friends But Not Harmonious On Subject

Some of the ladies were willing to rebuke Mrs. Sabin. They thought she had gone farther than she should in so early indorsing Gov. Roosevelt.

But they were not willing to espouse President Hoover as a counter candidate. It was their belief the whole subject should be left for decision later in the campaign, when the positions of the candidates had been explained at greater length. But to their chagrin they were recorded as indorsing everything in the letter to Mrs. Sabin, including the approval of President Hoover.

They aren't going to make any open trouble. They are all friends and clubby among themselves, but they are not harmonious on this subject.

Weir Puzzled Over G. O. P. Committee Report

E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Company, according to a report made by the Republican National Committee to the clerk of the House in Washington, canceled a subscription of $2,500 to the national campaign fund. This puzzles Mr. Weir. He didn't take back the contribution, and has a letter appreciating the gift.

There must be some poor bookkeeping or imperfect stenographic work going on in Washington.

FEAR SILENCES MRS. PECORA, SLEUTHS SAY

Widow Breaks Promise To Name Slayers Of Racketeer

County detectives today were left in the dark in their investigation of the killing of Attillio Pecora, racketeer, shot down Saturday night near his Wilmerding grocery store, by the refusal of Mrs. Antoinette Pecora, the widow, to reveal the names of the killers as she had promised.

The dark-eyed widow told detectives to come after her husband's funeral and then she would "tell all" leading to the capture of the gunmen.

Detectives John Burke and Edward Frank kept their appointment with Mrs. Pecora yesterday, but she refused to talk, the sleuths said. Fear that the fate of her husband awaited her silenced the widow, the detectives asserted.

A check on the movements of a suspect whom they expected to bring in for questioning was continued by the detectives, who said they had discovered the motive for the crime.

The detectives said Pecora was living in fear of being slain. This was proven, they contended, when he received a myterious telephone call, possibly from the killers, to be at a certain corner in East Liberty the night before the murder. Pecora kept the appointment but took along a woman to ward off any possible attack, the detectives said.

JOBLESS CLEAR BURIAL PLOT

Restored and beautified by jobless volunteer workers, the historic Lobb's Cemetery, in Jefferson Township, near West Elizabeth, will be rededicated Sunday.

In the cemetery are graves of pioneer settlers, veterans of the Revolutionary War, and several Virginia officers detailed to this district during the Whisky Rebellion, and who are believed to have died of smallpox. One grave is that of an officer of the War of 1812.

The cemetery, originally in the State of Virginia, was later included in the recast state lines of Pennsylvania. The work of clearing the three-acre plot was under the supervision of H. H. Kelso, of Clairton, and was at the instance of leading citizens of the district in connection with the George Washington bicentennial celebration.

Pharmacy Stairs Damaged by Fire

Fire of undetermined origin did $200 damage to a stairway in the rear of a pharmacy operated by Ben Harris at 3400 Fifth avenue, early today.

CROWDED HOMEWOOD AVENUE AS DISTRICT PARADED, HER BANKING AND CIVIC LEADERS APPLAUD THE REOPENING OF THE CLOSED HOMEWOOD BANK

PARADE MARKS BANK OPENING

While thousands lined the streets, a five-mile parade moved through Homewood and Brushton last night in celebration of the re-opening of the Homewood Bank, successor to the Homewood Peoples Bank.

From an open platform in front of the Homewood Bank, Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking congratulated the residents of Homewood and Brushton on the community spirit which he said was largely responsible for the reopening.

At the open meeting that followed the "prosperity parade," John S. Herron, president of City Council, introduced Dr. Gordon and the new officers of the bank.

Dr. Gordon assured the audience that the bank was sound, and declared that there was more than enough money in the bank to pay off all depositors.

The parade was accompanied by several bands, floats and drum corps. In the procession were more than 1,000 automobiles, arrayed with banners predicting prosperity, representing nearly every business and organization in the community.

Potentate Hammers To Be Shrine Host

Shriners will be the guests of Potentate Karl Rex Hammers and Syria Temple at a stag outing tomorrow in Kennywood Park. A feature of the afternoon outing will be a baseball game between the Homestead Grays and a Dormont team. Miniature golf contests and other athletic events have been planned.

Mellon May Find War Debts Are Not Forgotten

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Some splendid Republican news from the deer runs and trout lakes of good old Maine.

The two-dollar poll tax excludes paupers from voting. If you haven't got the price you cannot vote for the man of the hour.

No Democrat has the two dollars. Therefore the Republicans will have a walk-over if they can straighten out their round heels.

The Democrats can get even by demanding an investigation of everybody who has two dollars.

The two-dollar poll tax also holds good in Connecticut. That's Gene Tunney's state. We don't know what Rudy Vallee is going to do about Maine but we suspect nobody is going to stop Tunney from voting under the present boxing laws.

Note from England. During another lucid interval Andy Mellon said nobody is thinking about the war debts now. Every time Andy preens his mental feathers he loses more plumage.

We're doing plenty of thinking about those battle loans. War is war and Andy is going to have a tough time convincing us it is Paine's fireworks.

After reading our diplomat's remarks we're convinced that this country needs is a sentry for unguarded moments.

M'BRIDE DENIES TAX JUGGLING

C. J. McBride, former secretary of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of taxes, today denied charges of juggling assessments in Homestead during the 1931 triennial assessment. McBride was named with Burgess John C. Cavanaugh, of Homestead, Jess Honse, chairman of Homestead Council, Port Eckles, Homestead school superintendent, and Martin Delaney, Homestead councilman, by Leo A. Riordan, chief investigator of the county bureau of investigations and claims.

Riordan charged McBride and the others sat in a meeting in Homestead and without the necessary legal formality ordered large increases in the assessments in the Fourth and Fifth wards of Homestead.

In his general denial McBride said the meeting was to compare notes seeking a fair assessment. He added:

"At no time were there any secretive sessions nor anything done which was not absolutely above board."

4 in Lunch Room Held Up by Bandits

Two bandits early today held up the U-Eta lunch room, 48 Eleventh street. They held three customers and a waiter at bay with a revolver and rifled the cash register of $24. The armed bandit remained at the door while his accomplice looted the register. Bill Gust, the waiter, gave police a description of the pair.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 8.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The doubtful are gradually falling into line. Calvin Coolidge has had everybody on the anxious seat for months as to who he would support in the November handicap. Campaign managers and politicians have been dogging his rubber-booted footsteps. But it took not a politician, but a commercial-minded gentleman, (proprietor of America's biggest nickelodeon), Mr. George Horace Lorimer, not with words, or editorial persuasion, but with his signature on a small piece of paper, payable at one of the few banks left open, to break Mr. Coolidge's dogged doubt.

Will Rogers

His printed indorsement of the Republican party is perhaps the biggest paid advertisement, (in favor of any purely commercial product) since Amos and Andy sold themselves "down the river" for toothpaste.

Yours, WILL.

'Seashore Party' for Children at Church

A children's "sea shore" party, at which a sand-strewn floor, toy spades and buckets will reproduce the beach atmosphere, will be held Saturday afternoon at the Friendship Park Methodist Episcopal Church. Members of the Cradle Roll Department are to be guests of the Beginners Department. Mrs. F. A. Heess is superintendent.

RAPS POLITICS IN RELIEF

Neither political nor administrative questions should stay today's relief work and thereby endanger child health that would be felt the remainder of this century, Dr. Henry C. Sherman, Columbia University food scientist, declared here today.

Feeding the child and adult is a community responsibility, Dr. Sherman said. He will speak at an open meeting tonight in the William Penn Hotel under auspices of local community relief leaders.

A noon luncheon at Kaufmann's was preceded by a visit to Mellon Institute this morning. Dr. Sherman was visiting child health conference stations during the afternoon.

Warning that health danger was more than satisfying the feeling of hunger, he said:

"The lack of sufficient minerals and vitamins in food, absence of which cannot be felt, bring the great danger in the health of the community in the future."

Airport 'Nuisance' Charge Trial Set

A jury will decide whether the Wilkinsburg airport is a nuisance. Judges James R. Macfarlane, James H. Gray and Elder W. Marshall today, after hearing arguments on a case brought by several property owners near the airport, ruled the question should go before a jury.

A preliminary injunction and a $25,000 bond put up by the airport company was continued until after the jury trial. Property owners claimed the airport was a menace due to low flying and other acts of aviators and others.

FEAR OF HUNGER FOR NEEDY GROWS

Flour Agency Replaced As Political Favor Probe Continues

It looked like a hungry winter for the destitute of Allegheny County, outside of Pittsburgh, today with news that Gov. Gifford Pinchot will, almost certainly, veto a bill allowing the Poor Board to issue relief bonds.

The veto, it was learned, is expected on advice of Attorney has questioned the legality of the bill.

The balance of $200,000 appropriated by the Poor Board in August for relief will be expended by the Emergency Association this week. State aid should be available, for food orders only, when the money runs out.

Apportionment of state funds under the Talbot act will give the county but half enough for monthly food orders for its 17,000 destitute families. Anticipated doubling of the relief load this winter will find state aid utterly inadequate, relief leaders have said.

U. S. AID UNCERTAIN

Federal aid, when it is obtained—and it is by no means certain, authorities insist—is not expected to fill the gap.

All plans for shoes for 17,000-odd county school children and their families; for subsistence rations for the destitute; for clothing and fuel were expected to fall through with the veto.

Refusal of the Governor to sign the bill had been predicted for several weeks. The County Commissioners last week requested Pinchot to veto the bill, on the grounds that allowing the poor directors to issue bonds to fund current expenses set a bad precedent.

In place of the bill, they offered $100,000 monthly from their funds and considered making available the $1,200,000 balance of a bond issue for highway improvement in the form of work relief.

FUND INSUFFICIENT

Welfare workers and relief administrators had said that the bond funds proposed by the commissioners for work relief would help less than one-third of the families dependent upon aid. They doubted that boroughs, townships and cities could, as was done in former work relief projects, furnish money for materials, making the county funds available for labor, alone.

The $100,000 offered, they said, would be a "drop in the bucket."

City relief, which has been restricted for the sake of consistency with the amount of county relief, was in question today. The city has sufficient funds for relief purposes, temporarily at least, and may be forced to ignore the condition of the county needy this fall and winter.

FLOUR AGENCY SHIFTED

Meanwhile, first action in the Allegheny County Emergency Association's investigation of alleged political favoritism in distribution of government flour to the needy came, today, when the Twenty-first Ward Relief Association was replaced as a distributing agent in its district.

The Family Welfare Fund will distribute all flour in the Twenty-first Ward, starting today, according to announcement by S. E. Claney, director of the Emergency Association.

The new order follows allegations that the Twenty-first Ward group had bartered flour for ballots in the last elections and had distributed flour only to favored partisans among the needy.

Inquiry into affairs of others of 133 groups distributing the flour in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County will contine, Claney said.

New Castle Relief Bars Communists

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 8.—Warning was issued by Mayor Charles B. Mayne to city employes and those given work and assistance under the Mayor's relief committee that if they desired this assistance and employment to continue they must refrain from attending communistic meetings being held here.

SCHOOL BOARD'S LEGAL CHIEF DIES IN HOME

J. Rodgers McCreery, solicitor for the Board of Public Education, and widely known in Pennsylvania legal circles, died at his home, 724 South Negley avenue, last night.

Mr. McCreery has been a member of the Allegheny County Bar Association 45 years, and was recognized as an authority on municipal school law. Upon his admission to the bar he became associated with the late William Blackstone Rodgers, for 25 years city solicitor, and the late Elliott Rodgers, judge of Common Pleas Court.

With Attorney Rodgers he was instrumental in many important matters involving municipal law, including the defense of the consolidation of Pittsburgh and Allegheny. Later they helped prepare the present school code, enacted by the state, and became the first solicitors for the school board.

In later years Mr. McCreery supervised bond issues for the public schools and was responsible for the erection of many school buildings. At the death of Mr. Rodgers he formed a law partnership with Robbin B. Wolf.

He was a member of the Duquesne Club, the Oakmont Country Club, the Calvary Episcopal Church and Crescent Lodge, F. & A. M.

He leaves a son, Maxwell McCreery, of Cambridge, Mass.; two daughters, Mrs. George Barrington Oates, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Andrew P. Moore, of Short Hills, N. J., and two sisters, Mrs. John H. Strong, of Larchmont, N. Y., and Miss Emilie McCreery, of Pittsburgh.

OUSTING OF 2 PAID DRIVERS PROTESTED

ARNOLD, Pa., Sept. 8.—The members of Arnold's No. 1 Volunteer Fire Company, in the heart of the business district, were on strike today.

They voted last night to strike until Council had reinstated Charles Geisinger and Elmer Roberts, the two paid drivers of the department.

This leaves Arnold with only No. 2 Fire Company to protect the entire town.

But, strike or no strike, Fire Chief Frank Kratz predicted the firemen would answer all alarms to preserve the good will of the people. He predicted, too, that if Council refused to give the dismissed drivers a hearing, a public mass meeting would be held.

The strikers suggested that Council call a special meeting to reinstate the two drivers whose dismissal is effective September 15.

Driver Roberts said of his dismissal:

"It's politics, nothing else."

Fifty-five of the 80 members of the company were on hand when they voted to answer no more alarms.

Council has named Charles Higgins and Ernest Johnson to replace Geisinger and Roberts.

At No. 2 Company there are no paid drivers. All alarms are received at the No. 1 Company.

EATON SCORES UTILITIES' FOES

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Congressman Charles A. Eaton, of North Plainfield, N. J., told the Pennsylvania Electric Association yesterday that America's next social problem is to create "laborer saving" machinery and to make men more than money the objective of all activity.

Speaking at the association's silver anniversary convention, he also said:

"For years in Congress a small group of persistent, self-appointed saviors of the people have been at work creating a bogey, which they call the power trust.

"This group will be most vociferous in demanding that we Russianize the public utility industry by taking it from the people who know how to run it and turn it over to politicians. All the American people cannot be fooled all the time. It is, therefore, a safe and profitable investment for the utilities of this country to keep continuously in every legitimate way before their customers and the people at large, the actual facts of the business."

AUTO REMOTE CONTROL TEST

A driverless automobile will weave its way through Baum Boulevard traffic tomorrow afternoon to East Liberty.

The feat will be accomplished through remote control. The wireless operation will be conducted from a second auto following 25 feet behind the unoccupied car.

The demonstration will start from the Pierpont Motor Company, Baum Boulevard and Morewood avenue, at 2 o'clock. The car will be driven along the boulevard to Highland avenue, crossing Penn avenue and ending at the Sears-Roebuck & Co. parking lot, 400 North Highland avenue. Demonstration of remote control will be continued there during the remainder of the afternoon. An Essex Terraplane will be used for the unusual operation.

2 ENTRAIN HERE TO BE DEPORTED

Yee Toon Wah, 38, alias Yee Ying, alias Gee Wing Aht, a Chinese, who formerly operated a laundry in Turtle Creek, was placed last night in an immigration deportation train en route from New York to San Francisco. He will be sent to his native country because of illegal entry into the United States in 1913.

At a hearing before the United States commissioner under the Chinese exclusion act, immigration authorities testified Wah came to this country as a seaman and deserted his ship in San Francisco.

The deportation train, running over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in charge of inspectors of immigration, Department of Labor, was to stop at various cities en route west to take aboard aliens for deportation. Pedro Dillareli, a Mexican, was also placed aboard the train here.

NEW BUS LINE ASKS PERMIT

An application for a new bus line to operate between Grandview Park, Mt. Washington, and the Pennsylvania Station, has been filed with the Public Service Commission by August Villiani, of Bridgeville, and Adelmo Rossi, of Bertha, Pa., it was learned today.

No date has been fixed for hearing. There is no other bus line serving the proposed route, it was set forth in the petition. The nature of the equipment the proposed line will use was not stated.

The proposed route is from the park entrance at Bailey avenue to Beltzhoover avenue, to Warrington avenue, to Saw Mill Run boulevard, through the Liberty Tunnels and over the Liberty Bridge to Sixth avenue and along Grant street to the station. Two routes on the return trip through the downtown are proposed.

Mr. Spear AND Miss Mint with DOLLAR BILLS for Wrigley Gum users

BEGINNING tomorrow (Friday) morning, and continuing for several weeks, thousands of men, women, and children here will be asked, "Have you an opened package of Wrigley's Gum in the new Cellophane wrapping?" and "How do you like it?"

A crisp, new one dollar bill will be paid for each user's opinion.

Mr. Spear and Miss Mint and their assistants will ask the questions. Every day, these Wrigley reporters will approach hundreds of people. They will go to every part of the city and suburbs. They will visit stores, offices, railway stations, playgrounds, theaters, amusement places — even homes and apartments.

In order to speed up the work, Mr. Spear and Miss Mint will give a dollar only to those they approach. They are instructed not to pay anyone who volunteers a statement.

BE PREPARED

Try any one of the four popular Wrigley flavors in the new, easy-to-open flavor-sealed Cellophane package. Note what a difference it makes. Note how lively and brisk the flavor — how refreshing this gum that reaches you in factory-fresh condition.

You will like the clever, easy way it opens — just unwind the red tape which removes the end cap . . . the Cellophane wrapping remains to protect the gum and preserve its flavor.

Then when Mr. Spear or Miss Mint or one of their assistants approaches you, prove to them that you have tried the Cellophane-wrapped gum. Tell them how you like it and you will be paid one dollar for your opinion.

• • •

An opened package of Wrigley's Gum in your pocket or purse is positive proof. Show them that. Mr. Spear and Miss Mint want honest, frank opinions from actual Wrigley users.

WRIGLEY'S WILL PAY DOLLAR BILLS to find out how you like the NEW Cellophane WRAPPED WRIGLEY PACKAGE

This new flavor-sealed package — with its easy, clever way of opening — is the biggest news in years in the gum industry.

You just unwind the red tape, remove the end cap . . . the Cellophane wrapping remains to protect the gum and preserve its flavor.

Wrigley's — always the leader and the favorite — comes to you as FRESH and FLAVORFUL as when it was put into the package. Wrigley is making a survey here and will ask thousands of local people their opinions about Wrigley's Gum in the new Cellophane-wrapped package.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Braves Grief to Bruins
Famous Pair Jobless.
Yanks Win 62 at Home.
Voice Aids Quarterback.
Boston Hockey Profits.
Toes Factor in Rowing.

GAP STILL WIDE DESPITE BUCS' GAIN

BILL McKECHNIE'S Boston club has been the main thorn in the side of the Cubs in the late stages of the season. The Braves were the only Eastern team to take a game from the Bruins during the latter's recent sensational home stand. On two other days in the same series they made the Grimms go 19 and 15 innings to win. And yesterday they lifted the Pirates to within five box scores of the top by tripping the league leaders twice.

Bill McKechnie

Whether or not the Bucs' gain will mean anything remains to be seen. It will be necessary not only for the Pirates to escape a slump after the breaking of their own 11-game winning streak, but also for the Cubs to do quite a bit more losing. Though the Bruins had dropped three straight games up to today and four of their last six, they cannot yet be said to be in danger of cracking. They were due for a few stumbles after the strain of their long winning drive. Besides, they were the victims of unusual circumstances yesterday in running into two pitchers who happened to be above normal. Fred Frankhouse had won only three games all season, and Ben Cantwell, with only two runs scored behind him, pitched his first shutout of the year. The leaders may break loose and get going again at any minute. The Pirates can only put their trust in the fates and fight their hardest for every game. A five-game margin with only 18 days to go is a wide gap. If the Cubs break even in their remaining 20 games, Pittsburgh will have to win 15 out of 18 to finish on top.

TWO GREAT BALL players of the past are now forgotten men in the city that was the scene of their greatest triumphs. Once idols in St. Louis, Rogers Hornsby and George Sisler are jobless in the Mound City and have nothing in sight for the future.

It was in St. Louis that Hornsby won six of his seven National League batting championships, and in 1926 he led the Cardinals to their first National League pennant and the world title. Sisler was the Browns' greatest player, one of the all-time stars, and managed the club three seasons. Now he appears to be out of the game for good, and Hornsby may have to follow him.

THOUGH THE YANKEES are a good enough ball club to win anywhere, it was on their own grounds that they made the great bulk of the season's gains toward wrapping the American League pennant.

The showing of the Yanks at their own park was so remarkable that it probably set a new record for the major leagues. Research fails to reveal a performance by any club to equal it.

OF THEIR COMPLETE home schedule of 77 games for the season, the Yankees won no fewer than 62 against only 15 defeats, for the amazing percentage of .805. Only one visiting club, Washington, succeeded in winning as many as four games out of 11 at the Yankee Stadium. Only once were the Yanks beaten two days in succession at their own field, and that was not accomplished until the Senators did it in the seventy-second and seventy-third games last Thursday and Friday. Next to Washington, the Browns made the best showing, winning three games in New York. The A's, Indians and Tigers won two each, and the Red Sox and the White Sox one each.

Frank DeCoster

FRANK DeCOSTER, Duquesne University's little Frenchman, is not a crooner, but his voice is nevertheless largely responsible for his football success. He is a quarterback and has that inspirational quality in his voice that spurs exhausted teams to greater effort and disconcerts the opposition.

"DeCoster is a good football player and can make himself a better one," said Head Coach Elmer Layden. "Certainly he has one of the best quarterback voices I have ever heard. There is a resonant quality of confidence in it. It is loud and clear. As he calls signals, DeCoster unconsciously cheers his teammates and nettles the opposition through his cocksureness."

FAMOUS LEADERS of men have been known to possess this quality, spurring and inflaming their followers not only through their words, but through the personality expressed in their voices.

The Night Riders look for DeCoster, who is a junior, to develop into a real field general, and believe he will get into his best stride soon after the opening of the Dukes' season against Westminster at Forbes Field one week from tomorrow night.

MAJOR LEAGUE HOCKEY may be a financial gamble in Pittsburgh and some other cities, but it yields fat returns where conditions are right. The financial report of the Boston club shows the ice game to have such a hold on Hub fans as to produce big profits even in a time of depression. For the season of 1931-32, the owners of the Bruins made an actual profit of $103,497, of which $54,897 went into the surplus and the remainder into dividends. In the preceding season, when Boston had the champion club of the American division, the profits were $205,813.

THE ONCE FAMOUS Kid Broad, who had long since dropped out of sight, was discovered in New York the other day among the bulls and bears of Wall street. He's a stocky man of 54 now, with the telltale flat nose and cauliflower ears of the fistic profession. Broad is employed as a bodyguard and bank runner, and occasionally fills in as a special pugilistic character in the movies.

During his ring career from 1898 to 1909, there was no better known figure in the fight game than the Kid. He met practically all of the leading featherweights and lightweights of his day, including Terry McGovern, George Dixon, Young Corbett, Oscar Gardner, Dave Sullivan, Benny Yanger, Aurelio Herrera, Joe Bernstein, Abe Attell, Tim Callahan and many others. Jack McClelland, of Pittsburgh, fought Broad twice in 1900, losing to him in 13 rounds and then getting a draw in 20.

ONE OF THE biggest and heaviest football teams in the country this fall will be the Boston Braves, made up of former college stars and representing the Hub in the major professional league.

Major Goodcell

So husky are the linemen that Tony Siano, erstwhile center at Fordham, is the smallest man of the lot. And Siano was considered anything but a midget while playing on Fordham's powerful teams during the last three seasons.

MAJOR GOODCELL, Australian oarsman, who failed at Los Angeles this week in an attempt to regain the world professional sculling championship from Ted Phelps, of England, rows with his toes. Of course, he doesn't actually grasp the oars with them, but they have much to do with the way he performs. The toes are more important to an oarsman than is generally realized. The rower encases his feet in shoes strapped to foot rests in the bottom of the shell. When Goodcell feels that he isn't rowing a true course, he eases up the pressure on one foot or the other, and he says this straightens out his boat. Also, instead of pulling his slide forward on the runners with his feet, he pulls the boat up under the slide. This maintains his forward motion at all times, and observers say there is no perceptible stop from the time Goodcell pulls his oars from the water until he digs in again.

SKIBO SQUAD REPORTS IN FINE TRIM

By JESS CARVER

The peace and quiet that has been loafing around Carnegie Tech's Bowl all summer departed P. D. Q. this morning with its tail between its legs as Judge Wally Steffen called out the Tartan varsity football squad for its initial pre-season practice of the season.

A squad of 40 men jostled in and out of the dressing room and cavorted about the field as the veteran Chicago judge gave them the old O-O. There were 18 holdovers from last year's varsity, including the co-captains, Hooks Sample and George Kavel; 15 sophomores, members of the plebe team of last fall; two letter-earners back from 1930; two plebes of '30, who were not eligible last year, and three lads who have been in school previous, but are making their initial bids for gridiron letters.

COACH'S MOTHER DIES

A pall of gloom was cast over the proceedings as the boys joined in extending their deepest sympathies to Head Coach Bob Waddell, whose mother, Mrs. Marion Pettigrew Waddell, died yesterday morning. Coach Bob probably will join the squad next Tuesday. He has been out of town, attending an insurance convention, and returned home when notified of the death of his mother yesterday.

Judge Steffen took the opportunity yesterday, upon his arrival in town, to deny that he was considering taking Alonzo Stagg's place as football coach at the University of Chicago, his alma mater.

There are two positions in the backfield that will draw unusual attention as the Carnegie eleven gradually is moulded into being. One is the quarterback post, where four outstanding candidates are in the race for the job and the other left halfback.

McCURDY RETURNS

With the return to school and good standing of Harry McCurdy, who quarterbacked the 1929 and 1930 Tech elevens, Coach Steffen finds himself with a nifty outlay of signal barkers. Beside Mac, he has Stu Dueger and Augie Bevevino, who shared the job last year, and young Bill Carlson, who directed the Plebe eleven last fall.

At left half, the Tartan mentor hopes big Tom Coulter, the Canadian Olympic hurdler and captain of the Tech varsity track and field team, making his first try for a gridiron berth, will come through. The Tartans have needed a fast stepping halfback and Coulter has the speed. If he develops along other necessary lines, he has all the potential stuff to make a truly great back.

Although the entire varsity squad reported in great physical trim, none looked to be in better shape than the co-captains, William (Hooks) Sample and George

PIRATES GAIN FULL GAME ON BRUINS

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. — The Pirates were a carefree crew this morning as they made ready for their last clash of the season with Max Carey's Dodgers. True, there was an undercurrent of disappointment in the Pittsburgh camp as a result of the Buccos' failure to win both ends of yesterday's double bill with the Dodgers, yet their accomplishments for the day were sufficient to record a gain of a full game on the Cubs who fell apart in a dual bill with Bill McKechnie's Braves in Boston.

The misfortune of the Bruins at the Hub had the effect of reducing their first-place advantage to five games. This, of course, is a big margin, especially with the end of the trail less than three weeks away, but the Bears may be in a bad jam before the curtain falls should they continue the slump which apparently has overtaken them. To cash in on such an eventuality, the Pirates, obviously, will have to win consistently while they are in the East.

CHAGNON TO HURL

Leon Chagnon, husky French-Canadian, who has turned in some beautiful ball games for the Buccos recently, will heckle the Dodgers this afternoon in the season's finale. The Pirates expect to look at the slants of one William Watson Clark, who bears quite a reputation as a lefthander.

It took a southpaw to stop the winning rush of the Buccos. Before Fred Heimach stepped to the mound in the second clash of yesterday the Pirates had copped 11 ball games. The former American Leaguer, who has been quite a pain in the neck to the Pirates this year, threw them back on seven hits.

The Buccos jumped all over Van Mungo, stalwart righthander, to insure victory in the first game. The fast-ball recruit was pounded off the mound in the first round, when six Pirate runs were made. The scores of the two games were 8-3 and 4-2.

Bill Swift took the measure of the Dodgers in the early fight. Bill was so clever he held the Carey clan to six safeties. A homer by Danny Taylor in the third inning gave the Dodgers their first run. They scored again in this frame, added another in the fourth and then looked at five goose eggs.

MUNGO CHASED

Mungo made way for Joe Shaute, who finished the game. The Pirates were still hot in the second against Joe, they making two more runs. Shaute quieted the Pittsburghers in the remaining rounds.

Lloyd Waner led the attack on the Dodgers in the opening game. Lloyd came out of this contest with four hits, two of which, a double and a single, were made in the first inning.

Bill Harris opposed Heimach for seven innings of the second encounter. Steve had been in action for weeks.

Harris yielded only seven hits, but the home team was able to bunch some of them at desirable times. They scored a run in the second and another in the fourth. Traynor and Piet merged their power to make a Pittsburgh marker in the fifth. The Dodgers added one in the sixth and when the Pirates came back with one in the seventh the home batters discounted this tally with their fourth run.

CHILLYSAUCE

The Cubs found Boston and the Braves a high barrier. Other teams entering the Hub in the remaining games are likely to meet with the same opposition.

There are two very natural causes for the determination of the Braves. In the first place, the Tribe is only three and one-half games away from third place, and a spurt might throw them into a first division notch, which would insure them a piece of world series pie.

Bill McKechnie, according to reliable information, is to profit to the extent of $5,000 in the event his team finishes in the first division in any of the four-year tenure of his contract. This is the third year of Bill's document.

Five Grand would not be hard for any player or manager to take, and McKechnie would be only natural should he exert himself in the last month with such a rich stake in view. It would be just like sharing in the winner's spoils of a world series.

The fading world champions must be astir themselves else they will be in a second division berth when the curtain falls two weeks from Sunday. The ailing Redbirds really are deserving of sympathy, especially some pity should be expressed for Manager Street.

The Cardinal owners, however, can scarcely expect a flow of consoling words, considering their stupidity in dealing with Chick Hafey, great outfielder. Chick was in high favor with the rank and file of the world champions, and when he was sentenced to the Reds the St. Louis morale fell plenty.

The Giants are reported on good authority to be on the trail of Tommy Thevenow, Pirate utility shortstop. Bill Terry apparently feels he has had nobody in the role this year who can come close to Tommy.

Tommy had a lot to do with the 11-game winning streak of the Pirates which the Dodgers snapped in the second game of yesterday. Many fans feel that Manager Gibson would have acted wisely had he benched Arky Vaughan in favor of Thevenow when the Pirates were in their awful slump of August.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

ROONEYS CARD DRILL

The initial workout of the season will be held by the J. P. Rooney eleven of the West Penn Independent Football Conference Saturday afternoon at the Phipps Playgrounds. The drill is scheduled for 2 o'clock. Coach Jim Rooney and Jess Quatse will be in charge.

PITT VARSITY OPENS DRILLS

WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 8.—Fifty Pitt football players comprising the 1932 varsity squad were sent through their initial workouts of the season today at Camp Hamilton, their mountain retreat outside the city. The workouts were supervised by Coach Jock Sutherland, whose outlook on life is, if anything, more cheerful than usual, despite the hard task ahead.

Despite the fact that the hardest schedule in Pitt history lies ahead, and that the entire varsity forward wall of 1931 rated by many the best in Pitt history, is missing, Sutherland is so well pleased by the condition of his team and by the mental attitude of the players that he is almost able to forget his troubles for five or 10 minutes at a time.

To all appearances the players have begun to respond to the demands which will be made upon them at an early date. Those who usually are sent to the diet table by the second night in camp have put themselves in condition during the summer; among this group may be found Johnny Luch, the Wheeling fullback, who has been a puzzle for years.

Tarciscio (Cheeso) Onder, another youth whose inability to refuse the second helping of food kept him on the bench last season, is also down to close to fighting weight.

Orders for today kept the heavy equipment reposing on the shelves of Percy St. Claire Browne's stockroom and Capt. Paul Reider and his crew were scheduled to do a lot of running around to work off the effects of Campbell's opening night chicken dinner.

Very likely Sutherland will organize some sort of a first team today and get signal drills started.

TOD SLOAN FREED

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Tod Sloan, 60-time famous jockey, and 15 other defendants, were freed today in court of charges of illegally racing turtles in Hollywood. They had been accused of violating lottery laws.

Three Auto Races Carded at Downs

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 8.—Two 10-mile preliminaries, with each event having 14 starters, and a 50-mile feature race will constitute the automobile racing program which will be offered at the Arden Downs speedway Sunday afternoon. The first preliminary will be staged at 3:30 o'clock (D. S. T.), the seven fastest cars in each event automatically will qualify for the main race.

SPRINGFIELD REPEATS

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The Western Association baseball pennant will fly again next season in Springfield. The Cardinals' 1931 champions, captured the 1932 bunting here last night in the ninth and final game of a playoff series, turning back Bartlesville's Bronco, 8 to 5.

WORLD PACING MARK SET

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 8. — (AP.)—Logan Scott won the Frank P. Fox 2-year-old pacing stake, valued at $6,447.79, during the Grand Circuit races at the State Fair Grounds yesterday, after dropping the first heat to His Majesty, which established a new world's record in the first heat by negotiating the distance in 2:02 flat.

Another feature of the program developed in the 2:10 pace, when Zombro Hanover covered the mile in 2:00 flat, which equaled the fastest race mile paced this year. He won the $3,000 purse in straight heats, with Hollyway the chief contender.

The 2-year-old trot was won in straight heats by Senator Hodge, and three straight heats were won in the 2:22 pace by Hal Dale.

A. M. A. Meeting Here September 19

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the Amateur Athletic Union will be held at the William Penn Hotel, Monday night, September 19. The convention will be held in the Cardinal room on the seventeenth floor.

Reports of all committees will be read, records accepted, and championships in all sports for the coming year awarded.

President William S. Haddock will preside at the meeting. The annual banquet which will precede the meeting, is scheduled for 6 p. m.

Salica Gets Revenge Over Olympic Foe

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Louis Salica, New York flyweight who lost to Steve Menekes, of Hungary in the semi-finals of the Olympic boxing program, turned the tables on the Hungarian champion at an International amateur program at Madison Square Garden last night.

Salica scored a clean-cut decision over Menekes in the feature bout of the card, outpunching his opponent from start to finish and dropping him for no count toward the end of the second round. Italy's representatives did somewhat better than the Hungarian battlers, winning a majority of their bouts with the American team.

KAUFFMANN, GALIDO LEAD IN SCHENLEY SEMI-FINALS

FORMER CHAMP 1 UP AT END OF 18 HOLES

By TOM BIRKS

Carl F. Kauffmann, five times holder of the City golf championship, was leading Art Sekay, of Pitt, 1 up, and Mike Galido was 2 up on Tom Barr at the halfway point of the 36-hole semi-finals of the annual City championship at Schenley today.

Sekay, vanquisher of S. Walter Phillips, defending champion yesterday, gave Kauffmann a tough argument in the morning round, being 3 up on the former titleholder at the fifth hole, but Kauffmann made a strong comeback and managed to get his one-hole advantage on the eighteenth when he scored a 4 to Sekay's 5. Kauffmann's score for the 18 holes was 70, while Sekay required a 71.

Galido never was behind in his match with Barr, leading at one stage, 3 up. The cards for the morning round:

Kauffmann out	544	543	443—36
Sekay out	453	434	344—34
Kauffmann in	444	343	444—34—70
Sekay in	454	334	545—37—71
Galido out	355	433	445—34
Barr out	455	434	444—37
Galido in	544	353	441—34—68
Barr in	443	344	443—35—70

Results of the first and second round matches in the title flight yesterday:

FIRST ROUND

Championship flight—Dr. C. S. Brandon defeated J. W. Platt, 2 and 1; Tom Barr defeated W. C. Pyle, 5 and 4; J. F. Lally defeated Jack Tierney, 7 and 6; Mike Galido defeated Andy Szwedka, 1 up; Art Sekay defeated J. W. Black, 5 and 4; Walter Phillips defeated Mike Krowain, 4 and 3; George Calhoun defeated Jerome Rosenberg, 1 up; Carl Kauffmann defeated Joe Engstler, 5 and 4.

SECOND ROUND

Championship flight—Barr defeated Dr. Brandon, 5 up; Galido defeated Lally, 2 and 1; Sekay defeated Phillips, 1 and 3; Kauffmann defeated G. Calhoun, 6 and 5.

Second sixteen—J. Calhoun defeated Mc-Mullen, 3 and 2; Boechert defeated Schoenfeld, 2 up; Fineman defeated Wise, 4 and 3; Long defeated Woodfin, 4 and 3.

MRS. SOULE VICTOR

Mrs. F. L. Soule defeated Mrs. M. Regan on the nineteenth hole in a thrilling first round match in the South Park women's championship golf tournament yesterday. The low medal score of the first round was turned in by Mrs. M. Stearns, who carded a 93 in downing Mrs. R. Van Dervanter, 4 and 3. The tournament will be continued today and tomorrow, with the final round on Saturday. Yesterday's results:

Miss K. Richards defeated Mrs. Fel Ornstein, 1 up; Miss Anna Horne defeated Louise Albright, 6 and 5; Mrs. B. Albright defeated Mrs. Anne Schaefer, 1 up; Mrs. M. Stearns defeated Mrs. R. Vandervanter, 4 and 3; Miss Helen C. Engeman defeated Mrs. E. Miller, 3 and 1; Mrs. F. L. Soule defeated Mrs. M. Regan, 1 up, 19 holes; Mrs. N. L. Claiborne defeated Mrs. W. P. Brennan, 3 and 2; Miss Gertrude Marouse defeated Mrs. K. Falke, 3 and 2.

Pairings for today:

Miss K. Richards vs. Miss Anna Horne.
Mrs. B. Albright vs. Mrs. M. Stearns.
Miss Helen C. Engeman vs. Mrs. F. L. Soule.
Mrs. N. L. Claiborne vs. Miss Gertrude Marouse.

Wind Handicaps Amateur Golfers

BALTIMORE, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—A strong northwest wind yesterday hampered the amateur golfers who toured the Five Farms course, practicing for the National Amateur tournament opening here next Monday.

Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., member of the United States Walker Cup team, and Eugene Homans, finalist in the 1930 tourney in Philadelphia, played the first nine holes.

A threesome attracted attention earlier in the day as H. Chandler Egan, of Del Monte, Cal., National champion in 1904 and 1905; Frank Dolph, twice Western amateur titleholder, and Johnny Robbins, both of Portland, Ore., tried out the full 18 holes. Robbins was the only one to keep his score, reporting a 72.

Livesay Captures Southpaw Title

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Upholding the honor of lefthanded men, southpaw golfers concluded their first annual tourney yesterday, Everett G. Livesay, of Columbus, O., annexing amateur honors with a 288 for the 72 holes of medal play.

Duncan Thompson, of Syracuse, N. Y., came next in the amateur division, carding 297, and Alvin D. Everett, of Rome, Ga., captured third place with 308.

Ben Richter, of St. Louis, blazed the way in the professional class, turning in a brilliant 279.

Chicago Cards Win In Grid Opener

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The Chicago Cardinals opened the professional football season here last night by defeating the Grand Rapids Maroons, last year's champion of the Michigan Professional Football League, 13 to 0.

Passes gave the Cardinals both touchdowns, one in the second period on a 12-yard toss, Sinas to Rogge, and the other in the third, Sinas to Moore. Frosty Peter's dropkick added the extra point after the first touchdown.

Nick Altrock
Baseball's Humorist
Says:

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 8.—I said to Griff today, "Commodity prices are certainly down this year."

Nick Altrock

Griff said, "You said it. For $70,000 I can now get a $100,000 pitcher who is actually worth about $1.75."

I said, "Well, foodstuffs are cheaper."

Griff said, "That's funny. The guys on this ball team still cost me four bucks a day apiece for grub."

I said, "Yeah, but we're tipping the waiters more."

Griff said, "There never was a ball player that tipped more than a dime."

I said, "Oh, yes, there was. I remember a color-blind outfielder on our club that tipped a waiter a $5 gold piece. He thought it was a nickel."

Griff said, "When a ball club starts a new season the waiter can't tell it from another one of Harry Lauder's farewell tours."

GUESTS GAIN POLO FINAL

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—A new polo generation which has been rising steadily for the past few years has assumed control of the open championship, bringing a final that will be, perhaps, less colorful than last year's international battle but in many ways more interesting.

Greentree against Templeton is the lineup for Saturday's final game and those famous names of polo such as Milburn, Hitchcock and Hopping are nowhere to be found on the two teams.

Templeton, which reached the final Tuesday, lines up with the two Guest brothers, Winston and Raymond, and two other young players, Mike Phipps and Stewart Iglehart.

John Hay Whitney is the leader of the Greentree quartet which eliminated the Hoppings and their Eastcott team after a terrific overtime struggle yesterday, but the featured players are two Texans, who burst over the Eastern polo horizon not so long ago, Cecil Smith and H. W. (Rube) Williams.

The fourth member, Gerald Balding, British internationalist, scored the winning goal yesterday after 30 seconds of a "sudden death" overtime period.

It was revealed today that Smith had played the last two chukkers with a bone in his elbow broken.

Play for possession of the Waterbury Cup, a consolation prize, scheduled to begin today, was postponed until Sunday because of cold weather.

ARMOUR SUES CLUB

PONTIAC, Mich., Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Tommy Armour, former American and British Open golf champion, has filed suit against the Tam O'Shanter Country Club for $2,000, allegedly due him for services as the club's professional.

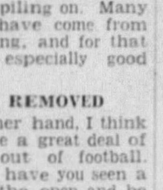
CASEY REVIEWS GRID RULES CHANGES

By EDDIE CASEY

Member All-America Board of Football
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

Every football coach, follower and enthusiast is looking forward to the coming season with a great deal of expectancy. Not only is he interested in the probable sectional and national champions, but he is vitally interested in the type of football that will be played under the new rules. That these new changes will affect the game a great deal, there can be no doubt.



Eddie Casey

Take, for example, the rule change in regard to the use of hands on the defense. Will the rigid enforcement of this be a serious handicap to the defense? If this is the result, then we can look for greater scores in the games this fall. We will find that teams will be on the offense more than usual, and possession of the ball will be more valuable than ever. However one thing is very necessary, and that is that the officials throughout the country rule uniformly on this particular rule. If one official calls illegal use of the hands right up to the letter of the rule and another official calls it seldom, then we are in for a lot of complaints and criticism on Saturday afternoons.

Another new rule that is of interest has to do with the man carrying the ball. If any part of a man's body other than his feet or hands touches the ground the ball is dead at that particular point. The idea of this rule is to protect the ball-carrier from injury and from piling on. Many serious injuries have come from just this one thing, and for that reason it is an especially good rule.

SOME THRILLS REMOVED

But, on the other hand, I think it is going to take a great deal of the spectacular out of football. How many times have you seen a back break into the open and be partially tackled two or three times, go down on one knee, and then get up again and continue on his way for a great run and many times a touchdown? Under the new rule this cannot happen. The moment the runner goes down on one knee the progress of the ball is stopped right there.

Many teams in their offensive play have the quarterback under center and when the ball is snapped the quarter goes in to take it from the center, usually bending on one knee and nearly always touching the knee to the ground. What will happen in this case? Will the ball be dead there or will the play be allowed to progress? The officials will certainly have many a difficult decision to make this fall.

The rule changes were made with the idea of lessening injuries, and they will have great effect in this regard, I am sure. But always with rule changes there are unforseen details that arise and are difficult to decide. Careful study of the rules by both coaches and officials will eliminate these unpleasant happenings and will make for uniformity in calling penalties.

BOON TO PLAYERS

Still another new rule that will be of great benefit to the players is the substitution rule. This year a player may return to the game once in any quarter. This will tend to lessen the heavy duty that was often imposed on the star player because the coach was afraid to take him out of the game. Now he can take him out, rest him, then send him back in the next quarter without fear of losing the benefit of his stellar play.

The flying wedge has been practically eliminated from football because of a new alignment of the men on this play. This was a very constructive idea of the rule committee because there were more serious injuries on the kick-off than in any other play in football.

HOMER DRIVES BEAT KNIGHTS IN OPENER

BECKLEY, W. Va., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Dan Boone, Charleston Senators' slugging outfielder, won the first game of the Middle Atlantic series from Beckley's Black Knights last night, 6 to 2.

Three home runs, two of them scoring teammates, was the record the husky outfielder set in rapping balls pitched by McNeil, Beckley hurler, who was touched for 11 hits.

Boone's first trip to bat resulted in a circuit clout on the fourth ball pitched. Longnecker, shortstop, previously had reached first on a single to center. Boone smacked another homer in the third with none on base and again in the ninth knocked the ball over the left field fence scoring Johnson, centerfielder, ahead of him.

Lamaster, Charleston southpaw, drove in the sixth run on a hard single to center that scored Whitlock, third baseman.

Only four hits were given up by Lamaster. Two of them came in the fifth, when Beckley's two runs were scored. The score:

FREE BOOKLET—"Essolube, A Five-Star Motor Oil," gives you the story of the great hydrofining invention which makes Essolube possible. Ask for it at your "Standard" station.

The perfect motor oil must excel in five essential qualities—low carbon content—long life—low consumption—winter fluidity—ability to keep its body.

The best Paraffinic oils rate well in three of these qualities. They lack two.

Naphthenic (Asphaltic) oils are excellent in two of these qualities. They lack three.

Hydrofined Essolube is the only oil ever produced to excel in all five essential qualities.

Hydrofining made this possible—for the first time.

Essolube is so superior to all other oils that it has replaced "Standard" Motor Oil. Yet hydrofined Essolube sells at no extra cost.

Essolube is sold at all stations and dealers of the following companies: Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, Standard Oil Company, Incorporated in Kentucky, Colonial Beacon Oil Company, Inc.

no great concern today over the condition of Babe Ruth. He said:

"No arrangements have been made to meet him coming in from Detroit. Ruth is perfectly capable of taking care of himself, and there is no indication that he needs hospital treatment."

"DON'T FEEL GOOD"—RUTH

ALBANY, N. Y. Sept. 8.—(INS.)—Babe Ruth, home run king, was stretched out on the bed in his compartment when his train passed through Albany shortly after noon today.

Ruth is being rushed to New York where he will be examined by his personal physician, Dr. Edward Kane. He was taken ill yesterday at Detroit. Mrs. Ruth said her husband did not sleep well during the night. Ruth said:

"I don't feel so good. My right side hurts every time I try to walk."

Asked if he thought he would be able to play in the world series if the Yankees win the pennant, he replied:

"That will all depend upon whaat amy doctor says aafter he hs examined me."

Railroad officals said that when they asked Ruth if he wanted to leave the train at the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Station in New York, he replied:

"I'll never be able to walk down the steps."

BRAVES SCORE ON CUBS

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—With their first place lead cut to five games by yesterdays' double defeat the Chicago Cubs today met the Boston Braves in another doubleheader.

Charley Root, for Chicago, and Ed Brandt, for Boston, were the pitching selections.

The Braves scored one run in the first inning, on three singles and a sacrifice hit, Rabbit Maranville carrying the Boston run across. There was no other scoring by either side through the next two innings.

The fourth, fifth and sixth innings developed into a pitchers' duel with the Cubs getting one hit and the Braves two. Demaree doubled to start the Cubs' half of the fifth, but was tagged out on Koenig's hit to Walters. Berger got as far as third on Koenig's error, Holland's single and an infield out in the last of the fourth but Spohrer popped to Koenig for the Braves' third out. Urbanski singled after two were out in the fifth for the other Boston safety.

Ingram, Crafton Play Second Game

Ingram Presbyterians and Crafton Presbyterians will meet this evening at Crafton Field in the second game of the series for the championship of the Crafton-Ingram Church League.

Ingram took the first game by a 7-6 count and if it repeats this evening the series will be finished. However, Crafton will be out to tie up matters.

Dormont, dethroned City League champion, and Books, the new champion, will clash at Kennywood Park tomorrow evening as a sports feature of the Shriners' stag outing. The game will start at 6 p. m.

Swissvale and Whitaker will meet in the final round of the Greater Pittsburgh elimination series at Greenlee Field Saturday afternoon. The winner will represent this district in the National Baseball Federation's championship series at Dayton, O.

Harmsworth Race Rule Change Offered

DETROIT, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The defeated British challenger for the Harmsworth trophy—Miss England III and her pilot, Kaye Don—sped eastward today while race officials here discussed proposals of changes in the date, time and course for next year's race.

The disabled English hydroplane is en route by rail to Montreal where she will be put aboard the Duchess of York, sailing September 9.

The changes for next year's race are proposed by Otto F. Barthel, American member of the Harmsworth commission, who said he would endeavor to have the race run in mid-August, instead of early September, in late afternoon, instead of early morning, and on the Detroit River, instead of Lake St. Clair.

BOUTS REVOLVE ABOUT DATTO

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Fred Lenhart vs. Pietro Georgi, 6 rounds, Tacoma, Wash.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Johnny Datto, Filipino veteran, suddenly has become a key man in the local boxing situation, as a result of his four-round knockout victory over Charley Baxter at Hickey Park, night before last.

Battling Gizzy has refused to box Datto unless the latter first defeats Joe Marcus, and Datto won't fight Marcus. Marcus will fight either or both, or anybody else the promoters will get for him, and is champing at the bit for action.

BOXES JOHNNY CHIODO

Datto is back on the Hickey Park card next Monday night, against Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, in the first of two 10-round bouts. Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, meets Art Giroux, of Canada, in the main event. Johnny Durso and Al Farone box the opener. Gene Baker, Johnstown heavyweight, may be a principal in the second bout.

Hickey Park, incidentally, announces it will run one more show after its program of next week, on September 19.

The fans are sitting back waiting for the indoor clubs to announce their opening cards. Motor Square Garden opens the first Monday in October and the Kaphan arena, on the North Side, the preceding Friday.

TUNNEY INVITED HERE

Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, has been invited here to referee one of the bouts on an amateur card under the auspices of the Women's Roosevelt-Garner organization, to be held in the Moose Temple Wednesday, October 5. Tunney is actively engaged in campaigning for the Democratic presidential and vice presidential nominees and it is believed he may accept the bid if his itinerary calls for him to be in these parts at that time. Phil Goldstein has been appointed matchmaker for the show.

The Pastorious A. C. will stage an amateur boxing show in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, next Tuesday night.

Baer and Griffith May Meet Sept. 23

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Matchmaker Nate Lewis of the Chicago stadium, today expected to close for a 10-round bout between Max Baer, of Livermore, Cal., and Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City, Ia., heavyweight September 23.

Griffiths signed last night, and Baer, who is being sought for bouts in New York and Boston, following his triumph over Ernie Schaaf at the Stadium last week, was expected to agree to terms today.

Glens Falls Golf Play Opens Today

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—An army of golfers, pros and amateurs, moved in on this Adirondack city today to shoot at the $3,500 prize money in one of the last big northern matches of the season, the Glens Falls open.

Leo Diegel, Tony Manero and Denny Shute put in a day of practice yesterday, polishing off for the start today of the 72-hole medal play grind.

DR. W. D. M'CLELLAND — COACH SUTHERLAND

And here we find the good Dr. Sutherland in a more serious mood as he talks over the tough schedule of the Panthers with his old friend and former teammate, Dr. W. D. McClelland, former boxing commissioner, just before the train pulled out for camp. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Did you ever speak over the radio and suddenly have the microphone go dead on you and leave you talking to yourself for some seconds before word could be got to you to move over to a new mike? . . . It happened to the Trained Seals last night, and they now know how it feels to hang suspended in midair during a dream . . . Jess Quatse, Pitt all-American, was being introduced when it occurred, but he's just back from Hollywood and didn't mind . . . And neither did Howard Harpster, Geneva coach, who also was on the program and has been in hotter spots on the gridiron.

Signs of the times: The Cleveland News' annual Christmas fund benefit boxing show, held in the Cleveland Stadium recently, netted a profit of only $3,200, and the Max Baer-Ernie Schaaf battle in Chicago the night before dropped $14,000 . . . The Cleveland show drew less than $20,000, whereas twice that much was expected . . . The only thing that saved it from suffering a loss was the fact that the main bout principals were on percentage after having first asked for a split of $25,000 between them . . . In previous years the Cleveland shows have drawn upwards of $40,000.

The Rev. John P. Joyce, who was drowned while swimming in the Allegheny River near Cheswick several weeks ago, was one of the most promising local sandlot players some 15 years ago . . . He was a member of the famous Oakland Rebels kid team, which compiled a great record, and later played third base for Duquesne University and then St. Vincent College . . . He played against the Pirates several times in exhibitions at Beatty, Pa., and once made the wisecrack that the greatest third baseman and the worst were opposing each other . . . The star was Pie Traynor, captain of the Corsairs . . . The Rev. Joyce might have gone a long way in baseball if he had not decided to pass up the national pastime to enter the priesthood.

The rivalry between Benny Bass and Tony Falco, who meet in a grudge battle at Convention Hall, Philadelphia, next Monday night, dates back to the days when the brilliant Falco began to complain that he was being held back because he was a stablemate of the experienced Bass, a former champion . . . Their manager, Phil Glassman, gave Falco his release, and now the former pals are to meet for blood in the ring.—HARRY KECK.

Hamilton Racer Wins in Regatta

TORONTO, Ontario, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Andy Cleland, a stocky Scot from Hamilton, Ontario, won the major honors in the Canadian National Exhibition motorboat regatta yesterday, capturing both the Lord Wakefield and the Sir Thomas Lipton trophies. Charles B. Cabot, of New Haven, Conn., and several other drivers from the United States pressed him hard for the day's prizes.

Cleland took the Lipton race, a free-for-all outboard race open to amateur drivers from all over the world, from three United States drivers, Horace Tennes, Eagle River, Wis.; A. J. Straley, Buffalo, and Phil Ellsworth, Big Moose, N. Y., who followed in that order. He covered the five miles in 7:03 2-5.

COCHET FACES SHIELDS IN TEST TODAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Frank Shields, the earnest tennis workman who went all the way to Paris with Uncle Sam's Davis Cup team only to be sidetracked on the eve of the challenge round, had a chance at vindication today when he faced Henri Cochet, of France, in the quarter-finals of the National singles tournament at Forest Hills.

In fighting his way to the quarter-final Shields defeated such good men as Fritz Mercur and John Olliff, British star, in straight sets. Playing at top form again, his service, one of the most severe in the world, he is capable of giving the French ace a rousing match.

Ellsworth Vines, Jr., after three days of easy opposition in defense of his title, appeared to have a peck of trouble on his hands in big Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, the only unseeded player among the eight remaining in the tournament.

Another combat was that between Wilmer Allison and Sidney Wood, Jr. Wood, dropped from this year's Davis Cup squad, is in the middle of a determined comeback that carried him yesterday to victory over Frederick Perry, of England, by scores of 3-6, 4-6, 6-0, 6-0, 7-5.

George Lott, Jr., victorious over Frankie Parker and Takeo Kuwabara, Japanese champion, in his last two tries, faced Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, intercollegiate titleholder, in the last of the quarter-finals.

The Tipoff

Bernie Bierman, in the coaching saddle at Minnesota after a successful reign at Tulane, has come out very much against the new "dead ball" rule, declaring it to be entirely too drastic. He doesn't want it rubbed out, but thinks it should be modified.

The new ruling, which declares the ball dead when the carrier touches any part of his body, except his hands to the ground, was formulated and inserted into the code at the end of last season in an effort to reduce injuries.

"I believe it should be modified to a certain degree," Bierman said. "I cannot see where there is any excuse for a rule which declares the ball dead when a player, who is running in the open field with no one near, stumbles naturally and touches his knee to the ground. It might, however, save pitting in massed plays where the man is already stretched out."

Maj. Ralph Sasse, who, on the plains at West Point, is hammering away at his Cadets, thinks the rule is pretty much okey-okey. He believes it is just the thing for high school and prep school players, and is of the opinion that any college player who can't keep his feet when in the open deserved to be downed.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, professional football eleven, has signed one of the Pacific Coast's outstanding backfield stars of last season in Bud Toscani, crack St. Mary's College star. It was this Toscani bird who pulled in the pass and scored the touchdown that beat Southern California, in one of the season's major upsets last fall.

West Virginia's varsity squads hops off today on a rigorous training grind planned for it by Coach Greasy Neale. The Mountaineer squad consists of 35 players, but will be increased to 50 or more after school opens. All West Virginia has to worry about for its opening game is Duquesne. All the team that eventually wins the National League pennant has to worry over will be the Yankees. Oh yeah!

Elmer Layden, who has only about a week more to think over his starting lineup for the season's inaugural with Westminster at Forbes Field next Friday night, is taking full advantage of the cool weather and working his Dukes plenty hard. The two-a-day training schedule will be discarded after Saturday, and beginning Monday, the Red and Blue will work but once a day.

So far, the Night Riders have progressed with pleasurable result. Joe Bach, upon whose shoulders falls the duty of constructing the line, is satisfied with the way in which his linemen have come through. Some of the sophomores have been making it plenty tough for veterans, which is a good thing for all concerned.

Women's Tourney At Stanton Tuesday

A one-day golf tournament for women will be staged at the Stanton Heights Golf Club next Tuesday. This event was added to the local slate by the Western Pennsylvania Women's Golf Association because of the cancellation of the proposed state women's tournament. A one-day tourney scheduled at Stanton about a fortnight ago was postponed.

Those wishing to enter the Tuesday event are requested to call the Stanton Heights Club for starting times.

DRIVER UNIMPROVED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Little improvement was shown today in the condition of Spud Green, Wheeling race driver injured at Arden Downs Labor Day, hospital attaches said.

Rockne System To Get Trial At Sing Sing

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The Rockne system of football, taught in many colleges by the disciples of Knute Rockne, has arrived for Sing Sing football team. The prison team has been drilling in secret for a week under the tutelage of John Law, captain of the 1929 Notre Dame eleven and later coach at Manhattan College.

Sing Sing is out to avenge several defeats suffered last year, particularly that inflicted by the Port Jervis Police team, and is expecting larger crowds. The grandstand, which accommodated 1,200 spectators last year is being enlarged to make more room for "outsiders."

Law, who is in the real estate business in New York and is a candidate for the Assembly, takes time off from his various duties to go to Sing Sing every Tuesday to coach.

What's Wrong Here?

COACH WALLY STEFFEN ARRIVES . . . . READ ON BELOW

If we didn't tell you this is Judge Steffen, the advisory coach of the Carnegie Tech football squad, you'd probably never know it. Why? Because he was wearing a straw skimmer instead of the usual iron hat when he reported to take up his training work, beginning today. Head Coach Bob Waddell will be unable to participate in the drills for several days because of the death of his mother. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

NET LINEUPS IN DOUBT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Draw for the second annual Allegheny Country Club turf court men's doubles invitation net tourney will be made this afternoon, according to Chairman W. P. Snyder, Jr. Pairings will be announced tomorrow.

Competition, originally scheduled to get under way on Saturday, is virtually certain to be moved ahead to tomorrow afternoon. Sixteen teams already have indicated intention to compete and inasmuch as quite a number of combinations have still to record their acceptances, it undoubtedly will be necessary to run off a preliminary round tomorrow afternoon in order to wind up festivities with semi-final and final contests on Saturday.

With Dr. Billy McElroy and Dr. Dave O'Loughlin still out of town, doubt still remains as to whether or not the 1931 trophy-winning outfit will pair up for the impending action. Dr. John O'Loughlin, first ranking Western Pennsylvania star, is thus left more or less on the fence, for in the event of McElroy's failure to return to the city in time for the tilting, 'tis likely that John will team up with brother Dave.

If Dave and McElroy cavort together John must find a partner outside the family, for Billy youngest of the O'Loughlin clan, is slated to seek laurels with Wally Arensberg, Harvard captain-elect, with whom he progressed to the finale in the Allegheny affair of a year ago.

Mrs. Lutje Wins Sharon Golf Title

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 8.—Mrs. Fred Lutje, of Masury, O., upset the dope in local golf circles by defeating Mrs. E. E. Reagle, Sharon, 3 and 1, to win the 1932 championship at the Sharon Country Club.

KREMER LEAVES FOR COAST

Pitcher Remy Kremer, of the Pirates, who did not accompany his club on the eastern jaunt because of a sore arm, left today with his family for his California home. Kremer held a conference with Pirate President William E. Benswanger before he departed. He was a sorely disappointed athlete on account of his failure to take his turn on the slab this year, and said he would spare no effort to get himself ready for another successful season.

Pitcher Hal Smith, recently acquired from Kansas City, left Pittsburgh last night to join the Buccos in Brooklyn. Smith was slated to travel with the others, but troublesome teeth caused him to stay in Pittsburgh an extra day for treatment. He was in fine trim when he departed and is likely to pitch one of the games in Philadelphia.

Rochester Yacht Cops Second Heat

DETROIT, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—Shadow, boat entry of the Rochester Yacht Club, drifted across the finish line first in almost a dead calm yesterday to win the second race of the series for the Richardson trophy and the championship of the Great Lakes.

Shadow led Gossoon, the Chicago Yacht Club entry that won Tuesday's first heat, by the commanding margin of eight minutes in a race run in the flukiest air that has prevailed on Lake St. Clair this season.

Night Polo Battle At New Kensington

Two ranking polo teams of Pittsburgh will clash in a night polo game at Parnassus Athletic Field, New Kensington, next Wednesday evening for the benefit of the New Kensington American Legion Post No. 347.

The American Legion post band and the drum and bugle corps will be added attractions.

Public Still Retains Wide Interest In Stocks

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE BEAR MARKET, lasting nearly three years, did not destroy the interest of the general public in common stocks as mediums for both investment and speculation. This is becoming more apparent as the rise in prices continues.

At no time in previous economic history was the public so thoroughly sold on the desirability of common stocks as it were in 1929. But it was generally thought that the drastic results of the bear market would create a feeling of caution and distrust.

Recent event, however, indicate that the small investor and the small speculator have not been frightened away. They still believe in common stocks. They think that the present is the time to pick up bargains. In spite of unfavorable experiences of the past they are back for hair of the dog that bit them.

* * *

Many Factors Show Interest

THERE HAVE BEEN many indications of the continued public demand for common stocks. During the long period of falling market prices the number of individual stockholders in leading corporations has been increasing. More persons than ever before participate in the ownership of such outstanding companies as United States Steel and General Motors. In view of the strained banking situation during the past two years, it appears quite certain that nearly all these new stockholders paid for their shares in full.

Since the average stock prices reached their record lows on July 8, the general public has been taking an increasingly great part in the buying which has been boosting stocks out of their depression levels. The growing volume of trading has been a definite indication that the market is not dominated by purely professional traders. The steady rise in prices without any reaction of importance reflects the purchases of amateurs who continued their operations through periods when professionals felt that reactions were due.

Brokerage Office Crowds Increase

A FEW MONTHS ago the customers' rooms of brokerage offices were practically deserted. A month ago they became crowded and since that time the press of traders, most of whom have small resources, has been increasing.

The public realizes that it came into the market too late during the last bull movement. Today it is intent on recouping its losses by getting in at the ground floor of the recovery.

DETROIT, Sept. 8.—Robert C. Graham, executive vice president of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporations, stated today:

"We are greatly encouraged by the sharp upturn in August sales. Orders received at the factory for Graham sixes and eights during August were 67 per cent ahead of those for July. More important still, August, 1932, orders exceeded those of the same month a year ago by 47 per cent."

General Motors August Sales Up

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—August sales of General Motors cars and trucks to consumers in the United States totaled 37,230 compared with 32,849 in July and 69,876 in August, 1931.

COTTON REPORT JOLTS STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP.)—The bull market in stocks encountered some decidedly rough going today, receiving a particularly sharp jolt in a larger than expected government cotton crop estimate.

Speculators for the rise fought with determination against a large volume of profit-taking, and after many of the leaders had lost 1 to more than 2 points in the middle of the day, in sympathy with a break in cotton, the list recovered somewhat in the early afternoon. Trading was in huge volume, but a number of prominent issues, notably United States Steel, had failed to make notable progress on the upside from the start.

Steel dropped 2½ points to 50 in the midday selling, then recovered partly. Such issues as American Telephone, Santa Fe, Du Pont, Case and United Aircraft got down about 2 points, and miscellaneous issues off a point or more at the lowest included American Can, Bethlehem, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Westinghouse, Eastman, North American and others. Rails retained a substantial part of a morning rise, however, Norfolk and Western sagging less than 2 points after a runup of 6. In the fourth hour, Southern Pacific was up 2 points, and New York Central, American Radiator, Johns-Manville, Lorillard and Corn Products were up 1 to 1½.

The day's news was by no means devoid of items susceptible to bullish construction, but the recent advance had been so swift that traders were anxious to take profits. Despite some convincing signs of a seasonal quickening of business activity, cautious traders pointed out that it might be well into 1933 before business improvement is reflected in substantial gains in corporate earnings.

Tangible evidence of the reported quickening of retail sales during the month appeared in General Motors monthly report, issued at noon. August sales of General Motors cars to consumers in the United States totaled 37,230, against 32,849 in July.

Another favorable report of the movement of revenue freight for all Class 1 railroads was indicated by several individual reports already at hand for last week.

WHEAT SLIDES AFTER RISING

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Influenced by stock market buoyancy, grain values averaged somewhat higher early today. Liverpool reported that wheat price declines had brought forward more buyers. Opening unchanged to ¼ higher, wheat later developed a downward trend. A steadying factor, however, was confirmation of continued reduction of European stocks of breadstuffs. The amount of wheat on ocean passage, too, was reported as below actual weekly absorption, and but little more than half the total a year ago.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Better Call
For Quality
A Good Sign

By B. C. FORBES

MERCHANTS TELL me a revolt against shoddy, against poor quality, has lately set in.

A buyer for a chain of department stores says the demand from practically every center now is for a better grade of goods.

I heard my wife remark this week:

"I find you still have to pay for quality."

This new trend is healthy and encouraging. It suggests that people have become more rational, more normal, not to say more optimistic, in their thinking. It means that conscientious manufacturers will be subject to less temptation to sacrifice quality in order to pander to clamor for cheap, second-rate products. High-grade concerns will have a better chance to earn a profit.

B. C. Forbes

The mental effect of using the best and of being obliged to use far-from-the-best is very different upon most individuals. Just as it tones us up to wear good clothes, to be generally well groomed, to eat in attractive places, to live in a nice home, to own a presentable car, the influence on our mental state and our general attitude toward life is the opposite of helpful, bracing, invigorating.

Hard necessity has compelled a lamentable number of families to lower their standards of living. Adversity doubtless has its much-trumpeted uses; but, personally, I have never been able to see beauty or virtue or anything else fascinating in poverty. My considerable experiences with it taught me to hustle strenuously to emerge from it. Nor has it left pleasant memories.

So I, for one, am profoundly glad that the painful depression promises to give way to less unpleasant conditions. It will help, not hurt us, to be able to surround ourselves with and utilize, not the most inferior and cheapest, but more attractive and better quality things.

A PRICE-LIST of 25 staple commodities shows that only two new low prices for the year were recorded in July (wheat, lead and only two in August (oats, iron).

August saw new peaks for cotton, printcloths, refined sugar, lard, gasoline while already September has brought new 1932 maximum quotations for coffee, zinc, tin, hides.

In addition a number of other important products are close to their best prices of the year.

ANDREW CARNEGIE'S advice, "Utilize dull times to build new plants," has been followed profitably by one large concern Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company. It has gone straight ahead through the depression with a $30,000,000 modernization and expansion program.

Next week it will formally open a huge central breaker at St. Nicholas, Pa. Two years ago it completed a similar project at Locust Summit, Pa. The results?

Whereas 1929 incurred a loss of $795,000, 1930 showed a profit of fully $1,000,000 and last year the figure rose above $1,360,000. President Andrew J. Maloney decided to abandon the fetish of "domination of the market."

He concentrated upon earning profits for stockholders. High-cost mines were closed. Millions upon millions have been spent on the new modern centralized breakers on electrifying mines and other profit-making improvements.

"Coal travels into it on a rubber belt at 30 miles an hour, divides into two streams, is automatically sized, separated and cleaned. Five minutes later it is in the cars. Ten minutes later the sales department—not production but sales department—has a scientific laboratory report on the quality."

President Maloney's guiding maxim is:

"Pay more attention to the customer and less to the competitor."

He has made it pay.

ONE MORE healthy sign: President George O. Muhlfeld, of Stone & Webster, tells me that the latest weekly figures show that Engineers Public Service Company's electrical output maintains "the steady improvement shown since the middle of July." The rate then was 15 per cent below the previous year; the decrease now is only 7 per cent.

THE ECONOMIC barometer continues to move in the right direction.

And Wall street continues cheerful.

VALENTINE

Captivating Story of a Shy Girl Rushed Into Love

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Worried About Engagement, Aunt Julia Decides to Call Val's Mother

CHAPTER XVI.

"I must be tactful," Aunt Julia thought. "I must be careful to say the right thing. You can easily make them contrary, by seeming too opposed to a thing."

It was Sunday morning. She was getting breakfast. Val was splashing in the bathtub, singing some silly, tuneful thing.

Joe was gone. They had all seen him off at the station. All the Careys. And Val and Aunt Julia.

Aunt Julia didn't want to go. She didn't want to have to look at him or talk to him. She was afraid she would break down and say something mean that would make trouble.

But Val insisted.

"Oh, you must come! Because Joe hasn't told his mother, and if I went alone she might suspect. But if you come with me, why it will be just neighborly——"

For a moment Aunt Julia felt really hopeful. Then Joe hadn't told his mother. Didn't intend to tell her just yet. Well, he'd see! He'd find out when he tried to tell her. Hmm . . . a fine time she'd give him. Joe wasn't too strong minded, either. When she began to fuss he'd probably back down, and if he didn't Val's pride would step in, and she'd put an end to it. Val wouldn't let Mrs. Carey shriek at her . . .

"You see, Joe says that our case isn't just like others," Val went right on. "Joe thinks that a couple should always tell their families. I TOLD you the very first minute! But he says that his mother is so sensitive—yes, I know she isn't, she's just mean, but you know how he feels about it. Anyway, Joe says that in his mother's case the thing to do is not to tell her until we're actually married—"

BID JOE GOODBYE

Married. The word made Aunt Julia feel a little sick . . . Her little girl, Valentine . . .

She gulped.

Well, it isn't, she told her conscience. A boy ought to tell his mother. He owes it to her. . . . Oh dear, he WOULD think of that. Just about the only way he could do it without a scene.

So she had to go to the station with Val, and stand next to Mrs. Carey, and watch her palpitate, and sob, and make a nuisance of herself while strangers looked on solicitously, and spoiled little Vivian clung to her, crying out of sympathy. Val and Joe shook hands decorously, and twinkled at each other, full of their secret. Not even unhappy at being separated, secure in planning to be together again soon.

"Humph!" she had said on the way home. "You'd think Mrs. Carey was going to do an Anna Karenina and throw herself under the wheels just because that great big grown boy is going away. If it isn't the most natural thing in the world for a child to grow up and leave! She ought to be ashamed of herself, the way she tried to keep them all tied to her apron strings. Even Betty! You'd think Betty's child was hers, and the husband hasn't got any more rights around the place than a burglar—" And then she thought of herself, losing Val, and she felt she couldn't bear it.

"Coming down with a cold, I guess." She wiped her eyes, blew her nose vigorously.

FULL OF PLANS

Already Val was full of plans.

"Aunt Julia, don't you think I ought to have some linens? You know, sheets and things, as well as just pretty lingerie? Marjorie had seven HANDSOME nighties and oh, just scads of the grandest stepins and things, but all she had was two bridge cloths, and I thought at the time that I'd love some real linens—you know, Aunt Julia—NICE ones—"

"I always wanted linen sheets," the spinster said. "Miss Volmer's mother had some, put away in a chest, I always thought—not that I ever wanted to get married, or anything silly like that, but I thought, maybe linen sheets with hemstitched borders would be nice for a girl to have."

"Yes, but they're so expensive. I thought NICE colored ones, Aunt Julia, some of that eggshell blue, and some pink, and I want all my bathtowels to be those same shades, blue and soft pink, and I want things for the table to be just the opposite—I mean, all white, because silver seems to be much brighter on white and you can always have a big centerpiece of flowers, and with amethyst glass and blue pottery plates . . . do you think that's too much? The blue dishes and amethyst plates—too arty, I mean.

"I think you're way ahead of yourself. Pshaw! . . . You'll change your mind nine times before you get married. Of course you think it's Joe now, and I'll admit Joe is a good boy—"

Aunt Julia choked on that, but she had to say something nice . . . mustn't antagonize Val too much—"but you may marry somebody entirely different—somebody you don't even know now."

"Oh, no I won't!" Val smiled quietly, spoke gently, with no antagonism, no wish to convince.

AUNT JULIA WORRIED

Aunt Julia's heart sank.

Long after Val was asleep that night, she lay awake worrying. That last quiet smile of Val's had convinced her. The girl was serious. She wouldn't change her mind. She'd always liked Joe, ever since she was a kid . . .

Every day Val came home with something for the little home she was going to have in Minnesota.

Two Italian linen towels. A big brass bowl she bought in Chinatown.

"Look, Aunt Julia, I'm going to use it for a dishpan! And have my kitchen all brass and copper pots and pans, you know, like the civil war. And I'll get Russian lacquer canisters for tea and coffee and things, and at the windows I'll have theatrical gauze curtains with cross stitch designs in red and black wool—quite a big design, very Russian."

"How are you going to ship all that junk?"

"Oh, boxes and things. It will be easy," Val said airily.

Every time Val mentioned Minnesota, it was a knife turning in Julia Macfarlane's heart.

It wasn't until Val was off to work the next day and she was alone that she remembered the things she should have said . . . Brass dishpan! Perfect nonsense! Copper cooking utensils! Enough to give you gangrene, or whatever you get from copper . . . verdigris, maybe . . . poisonous anyhow. But not even the thought of the verdigris worried her very much . . . nothing worried her but the knowledge that Val was going away, and that nothing, nothing in the world, would make her stay.

To cap the climax, Val came home late on Saturday afternoon with a big pasteboard box in her arms.

"Begonias," she said, lifting the lid. "Look; aren't they pretty? I couldn't resist them, because I can remember how sweet they were, growing in pots in Millie's rooms, when I was ever so little. I'm going to get some five-finger maiden-hair fern, too. They were so pretty, all growing together, in pots on the windowsill."

The sharp words that had risen to Julia Macfarlane's tongue were never said. She never told Val how perfectly absurd it was to pay expressage on flower pots.

Millie . . . the one person in the world who could distract Val's mind from Joe . . .

And Val's mind must be distracted. She mustn't marry Joe . . . one of the good-for-nothing Careys . . . mustn't marry into a family like that . . .

Millie had been trying to interfere long enough. Now was her chance! Let her do it, if she could!

Synopsis

Valentine Macfarlane's early childhood is steeped in romance. Her gay, widowed mother, Millie, is her ideal. When Val is 8, her mother goes to the orient and leaves her in Oakland with a man-hating maiden aunt, Julia Macfarlane. Aunt Julia clings to the girl, declaring Millie is not a fit guardian. Val has trouble in finding a "boy friend." She likes Joe Carey, a neighbor boy, but Joe's mother opposes her. Val takes a position as stenographer. At a dance, she meets the dashing, wealthy Lester Sherwood and becomes infatuated with him. Lester insists on "petting." When she rebels he quits her in anger. Joe Carey, out of town for three years, returns. Despite Joe's mother, he and Val become engaged.

Now Go On

"Married!" The word made Aunt Julia feel sick.

Heart of a Wife

Madge Faces New Problem Because of Visitors

"I have a cork in the next room," Katherine said, replying to Lee Chow's odd request. She was at the door as she finished speaking and returned as quickly, holding in her fingers a medicine bottle cork that she evidently had just washed.

"Will this do?" she asked, holding it out to Lee Chow.

"Yes, this will do admirably," he said, and proceeded to push the cork over the needle so that no vestige of it was visible.

"Did that pressure send it back into its base again?" Harry Underwood asked.

"No," Lee Chow answered. "That can be accomplished only by touching a certain secret spring. If the envelope were not in the way I could find it, or, as I said before, the merest accident might send it back."

He laid the envelope in the bottom of the secret compartment, put the others on top of it, closed the box and locked it, then held out the key to Harry Underwood.

"May I have your promise that this box will not be opened again until I am here to do it?" he asked.

Harry Underwood looked at Lillian and she nodded.

"Of course," the big man said, "but—this must be asked, you will understand—suppose you should die in the meantime?"

"That is well put," Lee Chow spoke thoughtfully. "And before today is over, I shall prepare instructions concerning the opening of the envelope—and other things. These I will seal and leave with you to be opened only in case of my death. Is that satisfactory?"

"Perfectly," Mr. Underwood said, and then Lee Chow leaned back in his chair and shut his eyes.

WANTS TO EXPLAIN

"If you will indulge me for a few seconds," he said, and Hugh Grantland bent toward him, and murmured something that we could not catch. But his tone was a protest. Lee Chow, however, shook his head, and Hugh waited with the rest of us until that motionless, central figure in our group stirred again.

"You are all entitled to an explanation of the very unusual activities we have brought to your home," he said when he had opened his eyes again. "I am sorry that because of certain things that I suspected concerning this box—suspicions that now have been confirmed—I cannot tell you all I wish at this time. Some of it must wait for the opening of the box."

"Why not all of it," Dicky broke in, astonishingly to me, for he had said no word since our entrance into the little study. "I think I speak for my father-in-law and my wife, as well as myself, in assuring you that we of the farmhouse need no explanation of either your activities or your reason for them.

"We shall all be present, I hope, when Marion's eighteenth birthday is celebrated, and we can listen then to whatever you wish to tell us. So if there is no other reason for speech except to proffer us explanations, I beg of you, sir, not to give them to us at this time."

DANGER REMOVED

I thrilled with pride in my husband, so charming and easy was he in his graceful speech. Lee Chow looked fixedly at him, then unexpectedly capitulated.

"I thank you," he said with stately formality, "and I shall take advantage of your offer. Two things, however, I must tell you. One is, that you will have no more trouble with Chinese. I pledge you my word on that. You may remove the guards and live in peace.

"The other is, that I shall at once make arrangements to have my friend in the next room removed to a hospital. Danger has been removed from him, also. All he will have to do now will be to get well.

"And for the rest—I will see you upon the young girl's eighteenth birthday."

"Poor fellow!" Lillian commented when we had gone to the living room, leaving Lee Chow to the ministrations of Katherine and Hugh Grantland. "It looks to me as if that library were destined to remain a hospital room. The present patient may be removed to a hospital, but it strikes me that Lee Chow is due for a session there."

I glanced at Dicky in sudden dismay. How would he react to this prospect of Hugh Grantland's continued presence at the farmhouse, which, of course, would necessarily be involved in Lee Chow's illness?

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Betty Bird, member of the Mt. Oliver-Harris Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club spent her vacation at Dent's Run, Pa. She writes the following description of her vacation to the members of her chapter:

Dear Club Members:

One of the most interesting trips I have ever taken was to Dent's Run, Pa. Upon arriving we boarded a mountain "dinky" made from a Ford truck on trolley wheels, which takes you through miles and miles of beautiful country, all the time going up hill. Small deer—does—kept running across the track, inquisitive about the noise. We saw several water forts which the beavers had built.

Arriving at the cottage at which we were to live, we enjoyed several beautiful scenes, including a sunset such as you would never see in Pittsburgh. It gets dark very early so the people retire early. Getting up at dawn we went down the mountain to get the milk and mail. On one of these trips the men killed a rattlesnake. When caught and strung it was about 6 feet 3 inches long and contained 17 rattles. In order to go fishing we had to go early as it gets exceptionally hot in the afternoon. In order to get a good trout stream you must travel across fields of large farms. After arriving at the trout streams you must get into hip boots in order to fish. Several fish were caught at once but had to be thrown back as they were under 6 inches. It took a while to get the larger fish biting.

The small animals up there are quite tame. The rabbits come up to the porches and eat from your hands. Not far from the house was a large creek, dammed so that we could swim. But trouble with the swimming was that at any time an eel might wrap itself around your body.

But, all in all, everybody had a good time.

BETTY BIRD.

NEW SCHEDULE

Starting one week from this coming Saturday at each of the 16 theaters where the Junior Komic Club meet will begin the new fall and winter schedule, stage entertainment will return. Members who entertained the clubs last winter will have returned from vacations in different parts of the country and they are just as anxious to entertain the members as the members are to be entertained.

School will have been opened two weeks, the members will have had a chance to get acquainted with the other boys and girls in their classes and it is hoped that they will each bring one new member to the meeting on September 17.

However, any boy or girl who wants to join the Junior Komic Club before September 17, may join this Saturday at any of the Warner Theaters where the club meets, or send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

LITTLE GIRL WOULDN'T EAT

YESTERDAY she only toyed with her food—and of course Mother was a little concerned. But today, she has a bowl of Kellogg's Rice Krispies and milk—and just see the difference! Watch her dip right in with her spoon and enjoy every mouthful of that good, nourishing treat.

Kellogg's Rice Krispies actually crackle in milk or cream. The very sound fascinates youngsters. And how they love the flavor!

Serve for breakfast, lunch—fine for the children's supper. So easy to digest, Rice Krispies invite restful sleep. How much better than many hot, heavy dishes.

Sold by all grocers. Always oven-fresh in the red-and-green package with the sealed inside WAXTITE bag. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Quality guaranteed.

HERE WE HAVE A COMMITTEE FROM THE PEOPLE'S PARTY CALLING ON CANDIDATE NEBB AN' LOOK AT THEM! THERE IS NO QUESTION BUT WHAT THEY ARE HERE IN THE PEOPLE'S INTEREST
WE'RE GOING TO RUN A VERY ELABORATE CAMPAIGN--WE'VE GOT A FLOCK OF GOOD SPEAKERS WHO HAVE NEVER TAKEN INTEREST IN POLITICS BEFORE--MEN WHO ARE UNQUESTIONED AS TO PRINCIPLE AND VERACITY--WE'VE COLLECTED A WAR LOAN AND WE PUT YOU DOWN FOR 10,000 BUCKS
I CAN RAISE THE 10,000 BUCKS BUT I'M NOT SO SURE I WANT TO MAKE THIS FIGHT--I CAN'T STAND THE CRITICISM AND ABUSE THAT GO' WITH THE JOB--YOU'D BETTER DIG AROUND FOR ANOTHER BOY
AW, WHAT DO YOU CARE?--YOU GOT TO EXPECT THAT IN POLITICS--THESE TWO OPPONENTS WILL TRY TO THROW OUT THE SMOKE SCREEN TO COVER UP THEIR REPUTATIONS BY ABUSING YOU--YOU'LL GET SO THAT IT WILL BE MUSIC TO YOUR EARS--NOW DON'T TELL ME YOU DON'T LIKE MUSIC

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

Still on the Payroll

OH, I'VE BEEN ALL OVER THE RANCH--YOU KNOW, SINCE THE OWNER CAME BACK--I KNEW YOU'D BE AWFULLY BUSY--BESIDES, I DIDN'T WANT HIM TO SEE ME!

THAT LAST REMARK CALLS FOR A HEAD OF EXPLAINING--WHY DON'T YOU WANT THE OWNER TO SEE YOU??
WELL, YOU SEE, I THOUGHT MAYBE HE'D THINK I WAS TOO SMALL TO BE A GOOD CALF-NAMER--AN' THEN I'D LOSE MY JOB!

HA HA--WHY, YOU'RE JUST THE SIZE A FIRST CLASS CALF-NAMER SHOULD BE!--DON'T WORRY, ANNIE--YOU WON'T GET FIRED AS LONG AS I'M FOREMAN HERE
GEE, MR. BOB--YOU'RE JUST GRAND
DARRELL McCLURE

THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Gone!

WELL GEORGE YOU MIGHT AS WELL GET READY FOR ANOTHER GOOD CRY, GUMBO AND MARGY ARE GONE AGAIN. LEFT HERE THIS MORNING WITH YOUR COUSIN SAM BUNGLE.
WHAT! GONE? MY....I KNEW SOMETHING TERRIBLE HAD HAPPENED. I FELT IT. THAT'S WHY I HURRIED HOME EARLY.

WHEN SAM GOT HERE HE TOOK BOTH OF THOSE PEOPLE TO THE WINDOW SO THEY'D SEE HIS BIG SHINY AUTOMOBILE. THEN HE GAVE GUMBO A GREAT BIG CIGAR AND TALKED TO HIM FOR ABOUT 20 MINUTES IN THE FRONT ROOM.
OH IF I HAD ONLY BEEN HERE, I KNEW I SHOULD HAVE STAYED HOME. THAT GYP, SAM.

AND I DIDN'T FALL ON MY KNEES AND BEG MARGY TO STAY HERE EITHER. OR...OH GEORGE BUNGLE I KNEW EXACTLY HOW YOU'D LOOK AT ME WHEN I TOLD YOU THAT, BUT I'VE HAD ENOUGH. TOO MUCH.
LISTEN JO YOU DIDN'T SAY ANYTHING TO HER, DID YOU? I MEAN SNAPPY STUFF? NO! THAT'S FINE! GREAT!

MARGY WASN'T ANY TOO ANXIOUS TO LEAVE, BECAUSE IT WAS NEAR LUNCH TIME. SAM NOTICED THAT SO HE OFFERED TO BUY THEM A LUNCH AND TAKE THEM UP FOR A RIDE IN AN AIRPLANE. THEN THEY SIMPLY TORE OUT OF HERE.
WHAT A SITUATION! THE IDEA OF SAM BUNGLE COMING HERE AND TAKING RELATIVES IN THE SAME WAY HE USED TO GRAB CHICKENS OFF A ROOST. THAT GYP!

"Few parents are fit for the job of bringing up the modern child," says a juvenile psychologist.

About all parents can say in reply is "Why bring that up?"

Q. & A. DEPARTMENT

DEAR HELPFUL A. BELLA:

I have often heard that "the way to a man's heart is by his stomach." I am interested in a well-to-do man who loves to eat and drink. Perhaps you can tell me—how do you mix an old-fashioned "Tom and Jerry?"

CURIOUS.

Ans.—I use an electric washing machine.

Practical Hints For Practical Women

So many, ah! so many women strike a gong of discord in the home by saying to their husbands—

"Why don't you look me in the eye? Whatsa idea of pasting the carpet with your foot when you try to explain? Houdja get that chow mein on your necktie?

A better plan would be to extend the arms, gracefully, and say something like this—

"Is my great big mans all tired out from overwork so he can't lift his chin? Here! Lemme take off the old shoosies. Sit right down in the big chair. While you're resting I think I'll tiptoe into the kitchen and make you a three-layer cake."

Somehow, leaders never misuse Chasers to evade the issues.

"I resent being called a gold digger," says Moronia, as she tosses the rose from her hair, "jus' because I mine my own business."

Be Sure to Register

The Registrars Will Be in Session for the Purpose Until 11 O'clock Tonight.

The rush of last-minute citizens to be assessed yesterday was not so great as on the last day for assessment four years ago. It is to be hoped this does not indicate that interest in the forthcoming presidential election is less keen than was the interest in the contest between Hoover and Smith.

The result of the November voting will be no less important.

This is the first of three days on which residents of the cities of Allegheny County—Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton—may register for the election.

Register today if you can. If you put it off, something may come up on the other days to prevent, and the November election may find you ineligible to vote.

If you did not register this morning the registrars will be in session at the polling places in Pittsburgh from 5 to 11 o'clock tonight, daylight saving time.

The City Becomes Safer

But We Still Have a Long Way to Go Before Pride Will Be Justified.

The National Safety Council reports that Pittsburgh's traffic accident rate dropped 28.8 per cent during the first seven months of this year.

The city accordingly stands in good position to win the National Traffic Safety Contest.

Inasmuch as the industrial safety movement had its inception here, or at least received great impetus from the support given it by local manufacturers, it would be rather appropriate that Pittsburgh should also lead in street safety.

But let us not be too complacent about the improvement in safety. The record, even with the reduction in accidents, is still horrible. We had 74 traffic fatalities in the seven months.

Accident lists published yesterday contained the names of three children, none more than 7 years old, who were struck by autos in Pittsburgh the day before.

There is a reminder in this of the need for extreme caution occasioned by the fact that the schools have reopened and thousands of lively youngsters are back on the streets at certain hours.

Art for the Bridge

The New Westinghouse S[illegible] Will Not Be Complete Until It Has Been Suitably Ornamented.

The new George Westinghouse Memorial Bridge, which is to be dedicated and turned over to the state Saturday, lacks the ornamentation that sculptors can give.

It cannot be regarded as complete until the inscriptions and sculptured figures have been added.

Chairman Charles C. McGovern, of the Board of County Commissioners, blames the state for the omission of the art, saying it refused to abide by an agreement to share the expense with the county.

There may be, and probably are, good reasons why the county should not go to this expense now; but the art plans should not be abandoned.

Commissioner McGovern hints that private citizens are willing to pay for the art. If the sculptured figures, tablets or inscriptions that they propose are beautiful, dignified, suitable for the bridge, and meet with the approval of the Art Commission, why should the offer not be accepted?

Sunny Pittsburgh

We Would Be Better Off If Bright Days Were Not So Numerous.

There is—or was—a hotel in Yuma, Ariz., which advertised free board for every day that the sun failed to shine.

Pittsburgh hotels could have made a similar offer this summer without loss.

The sun has shown its face unobscured by clouds every day since June 13. On eight days the sunshine was 100 per cent.

W. S. Brotzman, the meteorologist, says it is almost if not quite unprecedented for Pittsburgh to have so long a period of bright days.

We would be better off if bright days were not so plentiful.

An Ohio scientist has estimated that a deficiency of one inch in the rainfall during the growing season costs the farmers of that state a million dollars in the damage to the corn crop alone.

The drought has been costly to the gardeners and farmers in the Pittsburgh district.

'Howdy, Stranger!'

The Highway Patrolmen's Salutation Could Be More Dignified, But Shows the Right Spirit.

Pennsylvania's highway patrolmen have been furnished small printed cards to hand to motorists from other states who have been detected in petty violations of the Motor Code.

The card carries the salutation "Howdy, Stranger!" It welcomes the visitor to Pennsylvania, expresses the wish that the trip will be enjoyable, calls attention to our traffic regulations, and asks the traveler to observe them and so help to make the highways safe.

Coming, as it does, from the commonwealth, "Howdy, Stranger!" is a rather undignified greeting. But the spirit back of the message is fine.

In respect to courtesy, other policemen might well take a leaf from the highway patrolmen's book.

Blocking the Way

(Copyright, 1932.)

If all the power spent today
On party politics,
If all the forces thrown away
On cheap campaigning tricks
Were harnessed up to shop and plow
And factory and mill,
Ten million would be working now
And breadlines would be nil.

If all the gales of ballyhoo
Were put to honest toil
The industries would thrive anew
Upon this troublous soil.
But ballyhoo and politics
Are waxing strong today,
And with their ancient party tricks
They simply block the way.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Artists, popularly imagined to be in tune with attic improvidence, have had little sympathy during the withering bleakness of the passing trio of years. Yet, perhaps, never in history have they been forced to endure such leanness.

Hundreds, swept into boom time opulence, have been forced to return to The Village garrets from duplex apartments. And in their retreat, found scant work to keep the gas jet aflame. Magazine curtailments have left many recognized artists completely stranded.

The worst blow was to commercial artists with regular and profitable assignments from the large advertising agencies. A number of these limners, in the prosperous period, drew from $15,000 to $60,000 annually, occupying penthouses and driving expensive motor cars.

Such top-notchers today are finding it difficult to maintain the moderately priced studios. Some have gone back to the Left Bank, to Holland, or the Isle of Majorca, to await better days. Naturally, there is a quota little affected but the greater number are.

Several foremost magazine illustrators had rolled up huge but frangible margin accounts in broker shops. Arthur William Brown, for instance, dropped a million in such profits in 48 hours. Herb Roth, caricaturist, was a fortune ahead when the blow fell. And so on.

The Critics Circle, a brave little brochure in London printed by dramatic reviewers, recently cauterized George Jean Nathan thusly:

There is a little jackass named Nathan
Who smells like limburger cheese,
A dunce, a shyster, a moron
Whom nothing can ever please.

* * *

I always suspect Nathan's continual pokes at the drama were meant to produce just that effect. It is a most excellent way to win notice, even from one who writes extraordinarily well.

Annie Chambers, of Kansas City's night life in its hell-roaring and high-frequency days, is writing her biography—perhaps the first of its kind ever published. She was a part of the decadence that flowered in green-shuttered houses across the railroad tracks. It will bear the frank title: "An American Madame."

* * *

One of the astonishing statistical geniuses is Octavus Roy Cohan, Jr., 16-year-old son of the talented writer of Negro tales. He knows more of the technical side of railroading than many experienced executives, and he can tell the ownership, tonnage, weight and displacement of all the Pacific and Atlantic liners at a glance.

* * *

A diversion of bachelors these days is reading at dinner parties the notes left by part-time maids and cleaning women in their quarters. One amusingly enough read: "Mister: I clumb out the baf window to get your tooth brush that lit on a lej and tore my dress clean up the back. It was brann new. For fixing dress in tooth prush pick-up, 75 cents. Molly."

* * *

After two years of housekeeping, there is a curious reaction I wonder if the more experienced feel. This occurs when, after closing things up and leaving the place deserted, I return a few minutes later for something I have forgotten. In the interim everything has taken on a solemnity, a calm. Even chinks of sun filtering through the windows seem forlorn. All the rhythm of a home has congealed. I find myself unconsciously on tip-toe. Outside again, the world, by contrast, seems in sudden landslide. This was never true of a hotel. It always retained a topsy-turviness.

* * *

To his annoyance, I persuaded the keeper of a tiny shop in Grand Central last night to reopen a moment so I could purchase from a window display a tourist souvenir. It was an imitation pearl heart, frescoed with forget-me-nots. An inscription in gilt reads, "Welcome to New York," and it's to pin on the coat lapel. I'm now longing to wear it at one of those high-handshake teas.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I've been having a hard time for the last eight months. Been traveling around this country, looking things over. I have seen things that almost destroyed my faith in America and Americans. There have been times when I wouldn't have given a busted nickel for the whole measly mess of us.

All this has done something to me. I can see that it is doing something to other people, too. It is changing us from a happy, confident, proud people into disorganized, suspicious, embittered individuals.

That's bad. That mustn't be. American life mustn't end this way for us who started with so much—

So, I've pulled up short. I have forced myself to look where I was drifting . . . and to take stock of what courage and confidence is left in me. And out of that stock taking, I have made a new creed for myself. It may not mean anything to you. You may not even think you need it. But I need it a lot. Without it, I'm blotto. Here it is:

I AM GOING TO BELIEVE IN AMERICA.

I am not going to believe in America just because it is America. That sort of patriotism is simple-minded and never did any country any good.

Nor am I going to believe in America because it had a glorious past. Our fathers may have fought and bled and died—but we're not entitled to any dividends on their agonies. The heroes and sages of yesterday can't keep things going for the cowards and fools of today. We must stand on our own hind legs if we stand at all.

BUT I AM GOING TO BELIEVE THAT WE CAN STAND.

I AM GOING TO BELIEVE THAT WE HAVE INHERITED NOT ONLY THE GLORY BUT ALSO THE GUTS OF OUR FOREFATHERS.

I AM GOING TO BELIEVE THAT WE CAN DO SOME HONORABLE SWEATING AND WEEPING AND BLEEDING ON OUR OWN ACCOUNT.

I am going to believe in America because I think she still represents the finest vision of organized brotherhood which men have ever had.

We have never fulfilled that vision. And I'm not going to pretend that we have. We have never become the sort of people we wanted to be. And I'm not going to blind myself to the sort of people we are. I know that we are silly and selfish, stuck on ourselves—weak and wobbly and wasteful. And yet, in spite of all that—

I BELIEVE WE'RE A FINE PEOPLE.

I BELIEVE WE WANT TO BE HONEST . . . AND WANT TO BE STRONG . . . AND WANT TO BE KIND AND WISE.

I believe these things about other Americans because I know that they are true about myself.

I know I'm pretty much of a mess. I know I seldom practice what I preach. I know I'm not worthy of the opportunities which have been given me. And yet—

In spite of all that, there's something in me that's regular. I blunder a lot—I cheat and whine—but, in the end, I put up a good fight for good things and I win through.

So, though I know a lot of daggone cussed things about myself, I believe in myself—I bet on myself. And, if I can bet on myself—it's a cinch that I can bet on almost anyone else.

SO I'M GOING TO!

I'M GOING TO BELIEVE IN AMERICANS . . . IN ALL AMERICANS . . . IN SPITE OF EVERYTHING THEY ARE AND EVERYTHING THEY AREN'T.

I'M GOING TO BELIEVE THAT WE'RE REAL PEOPLE FIGHTING FOR A REAL CAUSE.

AND I'M GOING TO BELIEVE THAT WE'LL WIN THROUGH.

WE'RE IN A BAD MESS NOW. WE DON'T KNOW HOW WE'RE GOING TO GET OUT OF IT. WE HAVEN'T MUCH OF A PLAN. BUT WE HAVE OURSELVES.

AND WE STILL HAVE IN OURSELVES THE THINGS THAT MADE AMERICA.

They were faulty, too, those first Americans. They did some brave deeds—but they also did some mighty onery ones. They blazed at times. But at other times, they weren't so hot.

YET THEY MADE AMERICA!

IN SPITE OF THEIR FAULTS AND WEAKNESS, THEY MADE THIS GLORIOUS THING WE CALL AMERICA.

AND IF THEY COULD MAKE IT—SO CAN WE!

WE CAN!

WE WILL!

LET'S GO!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

With the Twilight

Will you forget, at nightfall,
The lance of mellow light
That rests upon the river,
The tireless gulls in flight?
The river, slowly nearing
Its long-desired sea;
Will you forget, at twilight,
The prairie wind, and me?

You may forget, at nightfall,
Those scenes where once we moved,
And all the fading pageant
Of beauty that we loved;
But ever with the twilight
And those lost joys we knew
I shall come creeping back, dear,
I shall be near to you!

Text For Today

There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.—Romans, viii:1.

No Time to 'Throw Votes Away'

By Claude G. Bowers

Some time ago Heywood Broun, the popular columnist, who is a Socialist, wrote that "this is a good year to throw your vote away." This is a year that no one can afford to throw his or her vote away.

Were nothing involved in the coming election but a change in office it would not matter whether or not a vote were thrown away. If conditions governmentally were not desperately bad it would not matter.

But conditions are desperately bad.

What Broun was aiming at, of course, was to persuade the reader to vote for Norman Thomas or some other candidate—if there be any—rather than vote for either Hoover or Roosevelt.

Mr. Broun says frankly that were he forced to vote for one or the other of these, he, unhesitatingly, would vote for Roosevelt. There are many like him who feel that conditions almost force them to make this choice.

The brilliant essayist admits that there is not the slightest chance in the world to elect Norman Thomas. A vote for him is a "vote thrown away," according to Broun's admission.

But it is something more than that—it is a vote indirectly for Herbert Hoover.

* * *

Wall Street For Hoover

The important gentlemen on Wall street—with all its ramifications—will not "throw their votes away," albeit they are not enamored of Mr. Hoover. They know that he has been a failure; that his ineptitude has been disastrous even to the element to which he intends to bow, and there are scores of men it would have preferred for the Republican nomination.

But it is Hoover or Roosevelt—and it will cast its vote for Hoover, because it knows he is sympathetic toward the policies of high finance that have brought on the depression. And it knows that Roosevelt is not.

Anyone who is a Socialist, or who believes that our present system has gone to the bow-wows and is not worth reforming, ought to vote for Norman Thomas. He is an able, cultured gentleman without horns, and he believes scores of things I believe, and his election, even, would not mean the end of civilization.

But he cannot be elected.

To vote for him is to "throw one's vote away," in the language of Broun.

* * *

'Throwing Votes' Only Aids Hoover

The Hoover concept of government, the Hoover ineptitude cannot be put behind us if people throw their votes away. They are given the vote that they may put men out of office whose regime in office has meant tragedy. The present regime has been tragic enough.

There is just one way to continue this tragic failure in government, and that is for the people who are opposed to Hoover—as Mr. Broun clearly is—to divide their votes among third, fourth and fifth candidates. The one hope of Hoover is to split the opposition.

His supporters in high finance want nothing better than for the people to "throw their votes away."

* * *

Public Has Much To Gain at Polls

There have been times when the people would not gain no matter which of the two old parties won. This is not one of them.

The platform adopted by the party that nominated Roosevelt is the most progressive we have had in years. It promises reforms of evils that have brought our present plight upon us.

They mean nothing?

Then why this mobilization of the evil forces against Roosevelt and for Hoover?

The big thing before the people this year is to take advantage of the opportunity to rid themselves of an administration throughout which there has been more human misery than this land has ever known.

This cannot be done by throwing votes away.

To do this every possible vote must count.

* * *

Time Not Ripe for Socialist Vote

There is just one hope in the near future for the Socialists and the Norman Thomases. If the Democrats are put in power, with Roosevelt as President, and there is no rectifying of these political, economic and social wrongs under which millions suffer, it will be evidence strong enough that nothing can be expected of either of the old parties.

Should Roosevelt in office fail, after Hoover has failed; should Roosevelt register the will of the powerful men instead of the average man as Hoover has, four years hence there would be such a rush to Socialism, or something much more extreme, as could not be checked.

The American people are not yet ready to scrap our institutional forms and experiment with an entirely new order. They first want to know what the trouble is with our institutions and not merely with the men charged with their operation.

There is but one way to find out—to give the Democrats, who have opposed these Hoover policies that have wrecked the prosperity of the nation, a chance to prove that their policies actually will mean prosperity and equal rights.

* * *

More Discontent Than Ever Before

It ought to be enough to the millions who are in distress to observe that the element they feel is responsible for the collapse is against Roosevelt and for Hoover.

This element will present a solid front this Fall.

If the victims of this element divide, Mr. Hoover has the chance to pass through the divided ranks into the White House for four years more.

Is that what the victims want?

It is inevitable that the Socialists will increase their strength this year and that the Communists will increase theirs. There is more disgust with our institutions and our social system among more men today than ever before in history.

Under our laws men who feel that way can vote for Communism if they will—but this would not be an intelligent protest. It would not put a Communist in power—we all know that. And without intending anything so foolish and unfair as to associate Communism with Socialism, voting for Thomas this year will not elect him.

Voting for him is casting half a vote for Hoover.

Unless you are convinced that Socialism is what you want, that you are through with our institutions, an intelligent protest must take the form of a vote for Roosevelt.

Don't throw votes away this year!

Make your ballots count—and not count for Hoover.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

Isn't it true that when you say you are thinking, you are only allowing your imagination to form impossible dreams?

The real problems are thrust back in your mind and pleasant mind pictures present possible easy methods of obtaining what you desire.

How childish this is!

A sheer waste of time—nothing to be gained by it.

In fact, much valuable time is lost when you should be thinking out something practical.

The more you encourage these day dreams the less you get down to reality and your real duty.

How much intensive thinking have you done in your lifetime?

Even when your thoughts are sensible they are surface thoughts.

You have never concentrated to a point where you could completely forget the outside world.

No, you keep that roving eye, and that roving mind that stamps you as shallow.

Teach yourself to think by forgetting what others are doing and doing something connectedly and earnestly yourself.
